Hiram Johnson Supports Willkie, Assails 3d Term

Political Issue Transcends War Crisis, California Senator Asserts

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Senator Hiram Johnson, California's veteran Progressive Republican, last night indorsed the Willkie-McNary Republican ticket and called for the defeat of President Roosevelt in a passionate attack on the third term.

Johnson said the third-term bid presents a greater crisis than the war and may involve "the preservation of the last fortress of democracy on this earth."

The California isolationist and former strong supporter of President Roosevelt said he differed on some questions with Willkie and McNary, "but they are eternally right upon the great issue, and the all-important one of a third term."

Admires Their Fight

He said he admired their fight "practically single-handed and alone."

They are fighting, he said, against "almost insuperable odds" because the President has the South's 125 electoral votes, more than 1,000,000 Government employes and 9,000,000 Federal beneficiaries on his side. If these aids were taken from him, Johnson said, "the contest would no longer be in doubt."

Shouting: "Wake up, Americans, rush to protect what protects your liberties!" Johnson charged that "in secrecy and stealth, with the aid of all the boss-ridden cities of America," a 150-year "sacred" tradition is being destroyed.

He said Americans are asked "to gamble now with the most precious of human rights—liberty. We must not do it."

Claims Nonpartisan Stand

Johnson, who captured every party nomination for reelection except the Communist in the recent California primaries, said he spoke without partisanship to "preserve that which has been most dear to me in my life—my independence and my country's weal."

Word that Johnson, with his vast influence in California politics, would attack the third term had thrown consternation in the ranks of New Dealers, who expect to carry California by a large margin.

Thursday, Senator Downey (Democrat), of California, formerly four-square with Johnson against a third term, was called to the White House. He flew immediately to California and last night broadcast a reply to Johnson's speech. He said that while he has had "a traditional sentiment against a third term," he now "must support the liberal Roosevelt ticket" as against "a conservative rule under Willkie."

Relations Cooled

Johnson and Roosevelt, whose relations cooled shortly after the President's first term, reached a parting of the ways during the fight for repeal of the arms embargo. But Johnson made no reference to his isolationist views last night beyond charging that "a war scare and a war hysteria" were whipped up and used to feed the third-term drive.

Shortly before the California primaries, the President told reporters he no longer considered Johnson a liberal. Willkie recalled this in his tour of California three weeks ago, praising Johnson as a "great liberal" and saying "he has always been one of my heroes."

Republicans counted heavily on the Californian's third-term attack to help narrow the odds in the State

Willkie Says Roosevelt Is For 'Socialism'

New Deal Spending Attacked in Speech At Springfield, Ill.

William B. Ardery
Associated Press Staff Writer

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 18.—Wendell L. Willkie declared tonight President Roosevelt had demonstrated he favored the establishment of "some form of state socialism in the United States."

Speaking without a prepared text in the State Arsenal in this burial place of Abraham Lincoln, Willkie told an applauding crowd:

"The issue is whether America shall adopt a form of what might well be described as state socialism, or, if you prefer the term, state capitalism, or, if you wish to state it in a different way, state centralized government dominating the economic life of the people.

"Whether consciously or not, the third-term candidate is in favor of establishing such a system of government in the United States."

The Republican Presidential nominee said that "I am on the negative side of that question," he continued. "I know of no way to maintain the freedom of the individual under such a system."

Spending Attacked

Discussing New Deal spending, Willkie said that "continued creation of a national debt without any intention of ever reducing it or of preventing its constant increase means just one thing—that the Federal Government gradually takes over the economic instrumentality of this country."

"If the United States becomes involved in another war," he continued, "it is my judgment that the national debt will rise to such a point that all the economic instru-

Roosevelt Charges 'Falsification'

Accuses G. O. P. Of 'Deliberate, Systematic Program' Of Altering Facts

President Roosevelt came out of his nonpolitical corner yesterday aiming charges of "deliberate falsification" at his political opposition.

He gave virtual assurance that Wendell Willkie will get his chance "to meet the champ."

The President told reporters that in five paid-for radio speeches he will call the American people's attention to "a systematic program of falsification by the opposition."

In neighboring Baltimore the Democratic and Republican candidates may meet practically face to face.

The President disclosed that a proposed October 30 speech here at Constitution Hall may be changed to Baltimore, where Willkie is considering a speech. Told Willkie would be in Baltimore, the President said that was good.

In Old Fighting Mood

It was in his old campaign fighting mood that the President discarded his July intention not to engage in "purely political debate." New Deal advisers have long been urging the move, and have brought added influence since Willkie's sharp upswing.

In New York, Republican National Chairman Joseph Martin said that the President's charges of deliberate falsehoods "will all be taken care of," but declined to comment on "generalities."

Willkie, who expressed "delight" at the President's decision, had hurled equally personal charges at the President in New York's Bronx, where he accused the third-term candidate of "shame, fakes and misrepresentations in his re-election race.

Willkie had declared that "this is not a truth-telling Administration."

Committee to Pay

The President indicated his political radio speeches will not interfere with projected defense inspection tours in the Northeast area, but he told reporters that for the benefit of people whose ethics differed from his own the Democratic National Committee will pay for the inspection trips on which the political speeches are made.

Republican Chairman Martin recently protested to the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee that the Government bore the cost of the Southern tour on which the President made his Chickamauga Dam speech. This speech Martin charged was "political."

The President read the following prepared statement to reporters:

"In the speech of acceptance to the Democratic convention on July 19, 1940, the President said:

"'I shall not have the time or the inclination to engage in any purely political debate. But I shall never be loath to call the attention of the Nation to deliberate or unwitting falsifications of fact.'

"There has been in this campaign, however, a systematic pro-

State Department Consulted in Fear Of Diplomatic Break

New York, Oct. 18.—The State Department in Washington, it was learned today, has received data purporting to show that Dr. Friedhelm Draeger, German vice consul in New York, is the head of a nest of Nazi propagandists having offices in the German consulate here.

The data, together with a complete file of evidence, was submitted to the State Department for advice as to whether the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities can reveal its information at open hearings without jeopardizing diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany.

Known as a fiery orator, Dr. Draeger is generally regarded in German circles in New York as the Nazi Party's official orator in the

The Third Corps

The Third Army Corps Area, comprising the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania, must provide 87,816 of the 800,000 men to be called under the selective service system in the coming year, it was announced last night.

National selective service headquarters, making public the quotas for corps areas, revealed that the Second Area, including Delaware, New Jersey and New York, will produce the largest number, 148,294.

Other areas, with the number to be called from each, were given as follows:

First, comprising Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont, 37,960; Fourth, comprising Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina and Tennessee, 100,515; Fifth, including Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia, 91,192; Sixth, comprising Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, 131,137; Seventh, including Arkansas, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota, 84,627; Eighth, comprising Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas, 52,474; Ninth, comprising California, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, Washington and Wyoming, 54,984; Hawaii, 1,400, and Puerto Rico, 9,600.

Other Defense Steps

The quotas were announced amid numerous other steps designed to give substance to, and round out the national defense effort.

D.C. Reserves Get $750,000 Armory

WPA to Start Work on Building At 11th and M Sts. On November 15

Underpass Plans

FINAL CONSTRUCTION plans for the Scott Circle underpass in Sixteenth Street were approved by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission. Page 13.

A Big Surprise

A new armory for the District of Columbia Naval and Marine Corps Reserve, costing $750,000 and modern in every detail, will be constructed at Eleventh and M Streets Southeast, officials revealed yesterday.

Construction will begin about November 15 and will be completed in nine months, under an arrangement reached between naval officials and the District WPA. The WPA will construct the building under supervision of the commandant of the Navy Yard, it was said.

Disclosure of the project climaxed a three-year drive by local Reserve chiefs to replace the present ramshackle armories with an up-to-date structure. It came as something of a surprise, as efforts to obtain Congressional action this year had been unsuccessful.

The armory will be built on the site of the present Naval Reserve Armory and the Navy Music School at the southeast corner of the Navy Yard Reservation. During construction the Naval Reservists will move into the new administration building at the yard.

Reserves Await Call

One or more of the three local divisions is expected to be called into active service within the next week or two, with the others to follow soon after. The local Marine Reserve Battalion is already under orders to report to Quantico, Va., November 7.

The new building will be of brick and concrete, with a steel frame, and in general design will resemble the new National Guard Armory now under construction. Smaller than the Guard Armory, it will be 234 feet by 184 feet over all. The long side will be on Eleventh street and it will face on that street.

The drill hall will be 180 by 120 feet and with galleries can be used as an auditorium seating about 1,000 persons. A complete target range will be established in the basement.

Park Speed Limits Lifted

The office of National Capital Parks yesterday removed speed limits from all major park roads in Washington but announced reckless drivers will be prosecuted with vigor.

All roads in Rock Creek Park, the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway and East and West Potomac Parks are affected by the new order. Heretofore they have had a 30-mile speed limit but officials admitted it was almost impossible to enforce.

The following kinds of driving are among those which will be held reckless by park police:

1. Failure to decrease speed in time to avert mishap when approaching or crossing an intersection, or when approaching or rounding a curve.

2. Rounding a curve at a speed greater than will permit the stopping of a car within the area of the road in view.

3. Approaching a hillcrest without diminishing speed.

4. Driving on a narrow or winding road at a speed which will not permit prompt stopping.

5. Driving at a high rate of speed despite pedestrian or other hazards.

6. Failure to curtail speed in bad weather or under adverse highway conditions.

7. Failure to operate a car at such a speed as may be necessary to avoid colliding with any person or vehicle on or entering a highway.

British Pledge 2-Fold Raids Against Berlin

Greenwood Threatens Retaliation as Guns Smash Nazi Attack

By the Associated Press

London (Saturday), Oct. 19.—"What has been done to London will be doubled to Berlin," Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio in the British war cabinet, declared last night to an audience of war workers at a southeast England factory.

He said the Royal Air Force already had bombed western Germany and the Ruhr "far more heavily than any place in this country" had been bombed.

Arms workers, he asserted, must regard themselves as front-line soldiers.

Night Raid Smashed

As Greenwood spoke, low-hanging clouds and a roaring barrage of antiaircraft fire were reported to have taken the steam out of the forty-second consecutive night of Nazi raids on the British capital, and the all-clear signal shrilled several hours before dawn. However, another alarm was sounded just at daybreak.

Last night, in the face of defensive fire so heavy that it appeared the guns were being loaded and fired on the recoil, the Germans struck at the city singly from different directions.

The Germans spread out, too, all over the United Kingdom, causing casualties in the London area and elsewhere.

Among six dead in one London area were three R. A. F. members.

Earlier, despite bad flying weather, the Germans spread out over all

R.A.F. Nipped Nazi Invasion, British Say

Caught Foes Aboard Boats and Ready To Start Sept. 16

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 18.—The British announced today that the Royal Air Force had blown a German invasion army out of its ships more than a month ago, and disclosed officially that German warships had been engaged in the eastern Atlantic by the British fleet and air force.

Only the most meager details of the story of an abortive attempt to land a sea-borne army on these shores last September 16 were given out by authoritative sources, but they were borne out by the air ministry's own news service and by piecemeal communiques and reports which have passed the censorship on that date and since.

The kernel of the story is that the British bombers, aided by a providential gale like that which scattered the Spanish Armada, attacked German troopships on the French "invasion coast" just after they had been jammed from beam to beam with German troops "and made their departure impossible by the ferocity of their attack."

To this, the air ministry news service contributed a report that the German troops, or those which survived, then were removed from the ships and the invasion plans canceled.

Athens Is Told To Sever British Trade Relations, Let Fascists Rule

By Edward Kennedy
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 18.—Germany and Italy have made five all-inclusive demands on Greece, calling for territorial concessions to both Italy and Bulgaria, the use of Greek air bases by the Axis powers, and reorganization of the government to fit the Axis pattern, Greek diplomatic circles reported tonight.

The demands were said also to stipulate that Greece break off trade relations with Great Britain.

Specifically, the five points were said to have been set down by the Axis partners in this order:

Immediate severance of economic relations with the British.

The cession of a strip of territory adjacent to the Albanian border to Italy and the cession of a corridor to the Aegean Sea to Bulgaria.

The grant of the right to Italy to construct a road from Albania to Salonika, Greek port and so-called key to the south Balkans.

The use of certain Greek air bases by Germany and Italy.

Last Remaining Friends

The [illegible] Premier-Dictator John Metaxas and the formation of a pro-Axis government.

The Greek diplomats said they learned of the alleged demands directly from Athens.

Greece and Turkey are Britain's last remaining friends in the Balkans. The British are pledged to aid the Greeks against attack and are aligned with Turkey in a mutual defense pact.

[Unofficial reports earlier in the week from Ankara said Turkey would go to the aid of Greece in the event of an Axis thrust. The Turks already have declared "two million bayonets" will resist any German-Italian drive against the Near East.]

Charges and denials that the WPA is being used for political purposes flew thick and fast at a hearing of the Senate Committee Investigating Campaign Expenditures yesterday.

On the one hand, Acting WPA Commissioner Howard Hunter denied that the WPA rolls had been increased "for any reason other than the relief of the unemployed." David Lasser, former head of the Workers Alliance, also said there had been no political padding of the WPA.

On the other hand, new charges that "the Democratic Party machine" has employed "every form of vicious intimidation" against WPA workers were made by Richard N. McKibben, president of the Workers Alliance.

William Levner, president of a WPA Teachers Union local, added that he had "evidence of a conspiracy by the New York City Work Projects Administration to de-

Denounces Flynn's Interpretation of 'Clean Politics' Act

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 18.—The Democratic high command's interpretation of the Hatch "Clean Politics" Act, which National Chairman Edward J. Flynn said "speaks for itself," was denounced today by Republican leaders as "strongly hinting of intimidation" of Federal employes.

Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr., Republican national chairman, declared that the Democratic strategists had "put more than 1,000,000 Federal employes on notice that they are expected to stand and deliver to the Democratic third-term treasury, 'or else'."

He termed a "cold-blooded, ruthless bluff," a letter and accompanying opinions sent to Democratic workers regarding their activities as they are affected by the Hatch Act.

Flynn, at his press conference, was asked specifically about a letter received by Democratic workers in Minneapolis which indicated they

Carpenters at Fort Meade Strike for Double Overtime

More than 200 carpenters building barracks at Fort George G. Meade, Md., as part of the national defense program, walked off the job yesterday in an effort, their leaders said, to force the Quartermaster Corps of the Army to carry out War Department orders for overtime pay.

Settlement of the strike before Monday was not foreseen by H. W. Blumenberg, general representative of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, an A. F. of L. affiliate, who called the strike. He said work would not be resumed pending a settlement of the carpenters' demands unless he could confer with the executive board of the Consolidated Engineering Co., of Baltimore, contractors. He was endeavoring to arrange such a conference for Sunday, he said, but feared the board could not be brought together before Monday morning.

The strike was called, Blumenberg said, because the Quartermaster Corps declined to authorize double pay for work on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays as called for in a letter from Assistant Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson September 27 to Sidney Hillman, of the National Defense Advisory Commission. Carpenters on the job, he said, have been working five eight-hour days a week, totalling 40 hours, but the seven-day week schedule followed requires work by some men on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

In support of his contention that these men should be paid double time, although their week totals no more than 40 hours, Blumenberg

Nazis Demand Yugoslav Ore

By the United Press

Belgrade, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—The Yugoslav government today drastically curtailed railroad passenger service effective October 28 in a move said to have resulted from pressure by Germany which seeks a quick route across the Balkans.

[Usually Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg moves have been preceded by a sharp curtailment of public use of the railroads in Germany, virtually halting passenger traffic and turning the lines over entirely to the military forces.]

Eighty-six passenger trains operating to all of the Yugoslav frontiers will be suspended in order to "facilitate increased freight traffic," according to an official announcement.

Hitler, it was said, is particularly anxious to provide new, quick routes for the shipment to Germany of Rumanian oil, huge stocks of which are said to be jamming the Rumanian railroads.

Germany was understood to have demanded 600,000 more tons of Yugoslav iron ore a year because the output of French, Luxembourg and Swedish ore mines has been greatly reduced by war damage and sabotage.

The demand was made, it was said, through a German trade mission now negotiating here.

Promise Troops Will Leave

Bucharest, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—German troops and air force units will leave Rumania and surrender the bases they have set up at strategic points as soon as their "mission of instruction" is completed, the Rumanian people were assured today by newspapers.

More German troops and large supplies of war materials continued to flow into the country, however, but Rumanian and Nazi authorities said they were unable to give an estimate of the size.

Meanwhile, it was announced that the Rumanian Minister to Greece, Radu Guivara, has been recalled from his post effective November 15 to take a new position in the foreign office here. The recall of Guivara was described in well-informed quarters as of a "routine" nature.

Rumanian soldiers arriving in Bucharest today said that a most intensive and thorough course of instruction under the Germans already had started.

Tass Denies Clash

Moscow, Saturday Oct. 19 (AP).—Tass, the official Russian news agency, today issued a denial of reports published in foreign newspapers that Russian troops had entered Rumania or that a clash occurred between Russian and German frontier guards in the vicinity of Galati, Rumania.

The agency also denied foreign reports that a Soviet destroyer sank a Rumanian ship in the Black Sea.

"Tass is authorized to state that all the above reports are devoid of any foundation whatsoever," the agency declared.

British Envoys to Confer

Istanbul, Oct. 18 (AP).—Preparations for an important conference of British diplomatic representatives in the Balkan countries were reported afoot here today, as the Turkish radio voiced new defiance to the Axis powers and their aspirations in the Near East.

Word of the impending conference was circulated following the arrival in Istanbul of George W. Rendel, British Minister to Bulgaria.

The British Ministers to Yugoslavia and Greece were expected to join Rendel and Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, the British Ambassador to Turkey, in the next few days.

Axis diplomatic activity, meanwhile, was reported from Athens by the official Turkish radio, which said Premier-Dictator Metaxas of Greece had received the German and Italian Ministers yesterday. There was no hint of the subject of their talk.

Bolivia to Supply U. S. With Tin Ore

To Import 18,000 Tons Each Year Agreement Reached

An important move toward ending this country's dependence upon oversea sources for strategic raw materials was made yesterday when negotiations were concluded for the acquisition of tin ore from Bolivia to be smelted in the United States.

In a meeting in the office of Jesse Jones, Reconstruction Finance Corporation chairman, an agreement was reached with Bolivian producers and the Bolivian government to supply this Government with ore equivalent to 18,000 tons of refined tin a year. The price will average about 43 cents a pound in terms of the refined tin.

World's Largest Consumer

Government officials regarded the move as highly significant and reassuring, taken together with the earlier action of the National Defense Commission to buy 75,000 tons of refined tin as a reserve supply. The fact that this country, which is the world's largest consumer of tin, had neither tin ore resources nor a tin smelting industry, was a source of grave concern.

The United States has depended largely upon ore mined in the East Indies, and smelted in England, thus crossing two oceans before being delivered to this market.

Under the new arrangement the ore will derive from a source within the hemisphere and be smelted in plants about to be established in the United States.

The Bolivian producers who participated in yesterday's meeting were Mauricio Hochschild, Carlos Aramayo, Ricardo Martinez Vargas, and the Bolivian Minister, Dr. Luis Fernando Guachalla. Also included in the agreement will be an association of lesser producers known as the Asociacion Industriales Medianos.

Triumph for Envoy

The 18,000 tons will be purchased by the Metals Reserve Corporation, an RFC subsidiary, in monthly amounts of 1,500 tons, of which Hochschild will provide 850 tons, Aramayo, 300 tons; and the Banco Minero, a Bolivan government agency represented here by Vargas, and the Asociacion will together supply the balance. The amount may be increased later.

It is significant that the principal Bolivian producer, the man who has earned the title of "Tin King" of Bolivia, namely Simon Patino, does not participate in the agreement. Explanation of this was that his entire production of 14,000 tons a year had been previously committed to the British government through Williams, Harvey & Co.

Conclusion of this agreement represents a triumph for Bolivian Minister Guachalla, who has endeavored more than four years to supply Bolivian ore direct to the United States.

Wilson, Attorney, Will Take Pine's Place on Draft Board

Spencer Gordon Promoted to Chairmanship Of Registrants' Advisory Unit; Late Comers Are Signed Up, Wait Decision on Excuses

Charles F. Wilson, prominent Washington attorney, yesterday was appointed to the Registrants' Advisory Board to fill the vacancy created by the withdrawal of District Court Justice David A. Pine.

GORDON

Spencer Gordon, also a well-known local lawyer, previously named a member, was elevated to chairman.

A native of Washington, Wilson is a partner in the firm of Sherley, Faust & Wilson, with offices in the American Security Building.

He was educated at Virginia Military Institute and Columbian (now George Washington University) Law School. During the World War he served overseas as a major in the Quartermaster Corps. Wilson is director of the Union Trust Co., and of the Fidelity Storage Co., an executive committee member of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital, and a member of the Metropolitan and Chevy Chase Clubs.

Forty-four District men who had failed to register for the draft Wednesday were signed up yesterday at the National Guard Armory.

Ranging from a Navy Department engineer who was away on a "secret duty" at sea on Wednesday to a motorist whose car broke down on an automobile trip, the late comers were registered by Staff Sergt. Thomas McCall and Corp. Harvey Berse. They were then referred to their local boards which will decide on the validity of their excuses. Only in cases of flagrant negligence will disciplinary action be taken, it is expected.

While several boards had completed numbering their registration cards last night, they were requested to withhold posting of the numbers by the Commissioners. The District heads desire that all local boards publish their numbers simultaneously.

Meanwhile, Acting Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West reassured Federal employes who gave District adddresses for registration purposes that by doing so they did not "increase their liability to the District of Columbia Income Tax Act."

through gaps in heavy clouds, the Japanese bombers were reported to have rained explosives on Chinese munitions factories in the suburbs of Kunming and military establishments within the city itself.

Japanese headquarters said the raiders met no oppositoin from the air.

However, the Chinese were reported ready for the promised Japanese attacks on the vital road between British Burma and China. Antiaircraft guns were said to be planted at many vantage points along the way.

Supplies started moving toward China in the early darkness today after a three-months suspension of traffic in a vain effort by the British to appease Japan.

[From Rangoon, Burma, came word that fleets of munitions trucks, long ready at the barrier to carry arms and munitions to the Chinese troops of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, sped northward from the railhead at Lashio toward the border. A British army officer said he never had seen a larger assemblage of trucks—and he served in the World War.]

While the road was closed, the Japanese gained close-at-hand air bases in French Indo-China. They also made it plain their bombers would attempt to close it with explosives if their diplomats could not keep it closed by negotiations.

Meanwhile, the British announced indefinite postponement of the reopening of the Hongkong crown colony to the shipment of petroleum products and railway material to China.

The Japanese, who are blockading the South China coast, protested against the opening of the Hongkong route to materials for China.

Colonial Secretary N. L. Smith at first said that Hongkong road would be opened simultaneously with the Burma route, but a later communique said it would remain closed indefinitely. It was said that Smith made his announcement on his interpretation of a telegram from London but that he "now understands consideration is being given to the suggestion "that the Hongkong ruling was not limited by the three-month limit of the Burma road agreement with Japan."

Lands End, the southwestern tip of Britain.

At dusk, the admiralty said, the Germans fled into Brest, chased and attacked by British bombers. One bomb, it was stated, fell "close" to the bow of one of the German vessels.

German bombers twice attacked the British ships during the chase, but none was hit, the admiralty insisted.

This, the British said, was the true version of an engagement which the German high command placed inside the Bristol Channel, far to the north, and during which, the Germans said, one British warship was torpedoed.

The first real fog of the year lay today over the English Channel and its approaches.

It grounded the main units of both German and British bombers, but it did not hush the great guns which speak now, almost every day, from the shores of England and German-occupied France.

Overnight, British warcraft slipped close to the French shore and pounded the German gun emplacements and ports with shells. At daybreak, the British guns on the Kentish coast opened up. Just before noon, the Nazi guns at Cap Griz Nez spoke back and it became a duel, with a salvo every 20 minutes or so.

Today's story of the broken invasion attempt was preceded, throughout several weeks, by unconfirmed rumors from many points that the Germans had lost thousands of men—perhaps as many as 60,000—in such a disaster.

The British Press Association, a conservative and authoritative news agency, pointed out tonight that the night of September 15-16 saw the brightest harvest moon of the year; that the tides were high; that the previous day the Germans had made a vast aerial attack in which 185 of their planes were declared destroyed and that these factors "seem to indicate beyond a doubt that September 16 was the chosen der tag of Hitler."

Travelers Have Reported Heavy Nazi Losses

Several persons arriving in New York from Europe recently have told of seeing bodies of German soldiers washed ashore at French Channel ports.

There have been repeated reports that invasion had been attempted.

A highly placed Government official of a conquered nation, who asked that his identity be withheld, said when he arrived September 20 that German officers had told him practice maneuvers for invasion had cost the Germans 10,000 men.

On September 24 informed British military spokesmen in London refused to comment on dispatches from the French-Spanish border, published in the London Daily Mail, that Germany lost "between 50,000 and 60,000 picked troops" in a disaster of September 16, when a Channel gale scattered Adolf Hitler's "invasion fleet."

Neutral military sources in London were inclined to discount the report.

The assertions were made by Harold Cardozo, a special correspondent on the French-Spanish border.

Gen. R. L. Eichelberger Named New West Point Commandant

Brig. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of hte Thirtieth Infantry at the Presidio of San Francisco, was assigned yesterday to be commandant of West Point.

The announcement was made by the War Department after previous orders assigning him to command of the Fifth Corps Area at Fort Hayes, Ohio, were revoked.

At the same time, the War Department announced the forthcoming retirement of Lieut. Gen. Stanley D. Embick, senior service member of the Permanent Joint American-Canadian Defense Board and until recently commander of the Third Army at Atlanta.

At the Military Academy Gen. Eichelberger will succeed Maj. Gen. Jay L. Benedict, who will become commander of one of the Army's new tactical corps.

Brig. Gen. Harvey D. Higley originally was assigned to West Point last month. Officials indicated his assignment would be changed because of illness.

Decorated for Valor

A native of Urbana, Ohio, Gen. Eichelberger is a 1909 graduate of the academy and possesses the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism while serving with the American Expeditionary Force to Siberia in 1919 and the Distinguished Service Medal for his work as military intelligence chief for the expedition.

Brig. Gen. Clement A. Trott, commander of the Sixth Division at Fort Snelling, Minn., was assigned to command of the Fifth Corps Area.

Embick, former deputy chief of staff and chief of Army war plans, will reach the retirement age of 64 January 22, and will retire from active service January 31.

BRIG. GEN. EICHELBERGER

His retirement will conclude a 45-year military career which started with his appointment to the Military Academy at West Point in 1895.

He won the Distinguished Service Medal for World War services as a member of the American Section of the Supreme Allied War Council.

Earlier he had served in Cuba, the Philippines and at various continental posts.

Embick, an artilleryman, was born near Greencastle, Franklin County, Pa., January 22, 1877.

He has been awarded the French Legion of Honor as well as the British Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Willkie Attacks 'Socialistic' Trend

ments of this country will have to be socialized."

"If the American people have become so apathetic to their freedom that they look with complacency on machines like the Kelly-Nash machine in Chicago, then they have lost the courage and the vigor to withstand the process I have described."

Willkie declared that for America to become sufficiently effective it "must have a peaceful revolution."

"And that revolution must," he said, "consist in again releasing the energies and the initiative of its millions, so that these millions may again make us vital and vibrant.

"But in order to maintain that society . . . we must in our revolution to save this free way of life expand not alone the national income but we must bring well-being to a larger and larger number of our people.

"It is my belief that under such a system, America can remain completely democratic, completely republican in its government and in its economics . . . and become so effective that in the totalitarian world it will establish the beacon light of liberty from which the torch of liberty will again be relit in the shambles of present-day Europe."

The 6,500 seats in the arsenal were filled and several hundred persons stood.

Earlier today Willkie, describing himself as "a political amateur," told an applauding audience in Jefferson City, Mo.:

"I do not know how to sit down in dark rooms with Frank Hague and the Kelly-Nashes of Chicago and plot and plan political smears, and the stealing of votes, and the defrauding of the public, and at the same time make speeches over the radio in lofty periods about tolerance, love and affection."

He spoke before a statue of Thomas Jefferson on the State capitol steps, saying:

"Wendell Willkie will never trade bread for votes from those who can least afford to demand independence . . . I do not have the capacity . . . to engage in the duplicity and the pose and the false dramatics and the creation of imaginary emergencies.

"I know nothing about how to seek to control men's votes as Representatives or Senators in Congress by throwing the full force of the patronage and power of the Presidency against them in order to defeat them if they do not become mice instead of men . . .

"I know nothing about the process of destroying the other two branches (legislative and judicial) by stealth, by indirection, by false poses."

He told a street crowd at Clayton, Mo., it was "a rather interesting phenomenon that those who were elected on the basis of representing the liberal cause should stretch out with the slimy hand of big government and seek to poison and pollute the stream of justice."

At St. Louis, Willkie spoke briefly at Washington and St. Louis Universities. He said he was "delighted" to see that President Roosevelt "at long last . . . has decided to discuss the issues of the campaign."

Willkie told a trainside audience at Hannibal, Mo., Mark Twain's birthplace:

"How immortal Mark Twain would have made the procedure of campaigning under the guise of military inspection trips at the expense of the taxpayers. Men would have been laughing at it for centuries instead of just for the day.

"And then this pose of nobility, this talk of how we are the liberals while we sit in conclave with Boss Hague of Jersey City, who never sees a voter without thinking of how to steal his vote.

"And then that bunch of buccaneers such as never heretofore scuttled a ship of state sitting down together and planning that Chicago draft through the voice of the sewers."

Berlin Will Pay, British Threaten

the United Kingdom.

Eighteen high explosive bombs were dropped on one area of a West Midlands industrial town; antiaircraft guns drove off a plane attacking a northeast England town, and raiders were reported over towns in Wales, and southwest and northwest England.

A stick of oil bombs fell in one London area shortly after the night's raid started, but residents of the neighborhood said they did nothing but cover the section with thick black grease.

A heavy bomb scored a direct hit on houses in one section and blew an adjacent house into the roadway, burying an unknown number of persons under the debris.

Four wardens were wounded seriously when their post was hit.

Weather Saves London

London thanked the dirty weather for a day of comparative surcease from attack. Only one daylight alarm was sounded instead of the customary half-dozen or so. Dense clouds hid the raiders from the man in the street, but the drone of Nazi motors could be heard distinctly.

One southeast Scottish town said German planes made their first daylight appearance there in many months. Their bombs trapped two women in their home, damaged other houses and a church. The planes were chased out to sea.

Rescue workers dug among the rubble and wreckage of the Capital despite the almost-constant threat of bombs and late today brought out 170 persons alive from two shelters which had a capacity of 200 persons. Five bodies were recovered and several wounded were taken to safety.

In this connection, September's terrific toll of dead was announced by the ministry of home security, which said 6,954 civilians were killed and 10,615 seriously wounded in the air raids on the United Kingdom last month.

Prime Minister Churchill announced in Commons on October 8 that British civilian casualties from the beginning of the war up to October 5 were 8,500 killed and 13,000 wounded.

Dog Brings Help

Several out-of-the-ordinary incidents were recorded by rescue workers during the day.

A wildly barking dog brought rescue to one family. Worming out of the debris of a damaged Anderson shelter, the dog barked until rescuers responded and released a woman and two children, all unharmed.

In another case, a woman and her son who took shelter under the kitchen table were rescued alive from their bombed home. The woman—trapped eight hours—was given coffee through a bicycle innertube.

Responding to cries for better shelters against the raids, the minister of home security announced that 12,000 tons of steel have been released for construction of 600,000 air raid shelter bunks.

To meet an immediate need, it was announced the delivery of 1,000,000 wooden berths would start tomorrow, with a large proportion assigned to London's East End shelters.

The East End has taken a large proportion of the bombing.

200 Are Killed In Spanish Floods

Barcelona, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Authorities reported 200 persons were killed in widespread floods throughout Gerona Province today.

Torrential rains in the Pyrenees sent rivers over their banks and a higher death toll was expected.

Vichy Imposes Anti-Jewish Restrictions

By Lansing Warren.

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, Oct. 18.—Jews are excluded, without recourse, from the press, the radio, and movies, in France, and with only rare exceptions from high public offices, educational, and judiciary positions, and from becoming officers in the army, the navy or the air force, according to a new law establishing the status of Jews, promulgated under Marshal Petain's signature today.

This stringent measure is less drastic than the Nuremburg laws in many respects, and is somewhat more moderate than the restrictions applied by the Germans in the occupied zone.

Under the French regime, Jews will regain their civil rights as French citizens, and there is no ruling against marriages between Jews and Gentiles. Jews will be allowed to continue in various specific liberal professions. Barring restrictions upon the press, the cinema and the radio, for which there is no exception, certain Jews who have achieved military honors or who have rendered scientific, artistic, or literary services to the nation will be exempted from the restrictions.

Many notable officers and functionaries in the French governmental and judicial services will be obliged, under the law, to retire within two months from today. But they will be eligible for government pensions if their service has been long enough.

The moving pictures, the press and the radio will have to be practically reorganized when prominent Jews employed in these fields withdraw and wholesale retirements also will be forced in French schools, colleges and universities.

The law applies to French Jews in Algeria, where recent decrees placed native Jews under a special regime and to the colonies, protectorates and mandates.

The whole law applies to Jews of French nationality and not to the several hundred thousand foreign Jews who have taken refuge in France in recent years.

of ordering priority for defense orders in American industry was coming to a head. It was his intention, he said, to see to it that no bottlenecks of delivery of defense equipment delayed the program, though he added there were no specific instances requiring immediate action.

It was made known that the President has signed legislation requiring registration with the Attorney General of organizations subject to foreign control or advocating overthrow of the United States Government.

Also given executive approval was the "Soldiers and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940," intended to protect property, contracts and insurance of men called into military service.

The broad legislation, patterned after a 1918 act, restricts mortgage foreclosures, rent evictions and court judgments while men are serving with the Army, Navy, Marines, Coast Guard and Public Health Service. It will apply to all selective service men.

Exceeds Census Estimates

On the basis of official reports from 17 States and the District of Columbia, draft headquarters said Wednesday's registration of men in those areas exceeded Census Bureau estimates by more than 1 1/3 per cent which, if maintained throughout the Nation, would add approximately 215,000 more men to the group between the ages of 21 and 36 than was originally expected. The original estimate was 16,400,000.

The District of Columbia reported 114,341 registered, as against an advance estimate of 95,000.

The Navy announced it has purchased 35 merchant ships, costing more than $15,000,000, since September 25, ranging from 7,000 tons down to small yachts and tugs, and has converted them into such auxiliary vessels as submarine tenders, miner sweepers and ammunition ships.

It was reported that the War Department has negotiated a contract for the construction of additional T.N.T. production facilities at the Kankakee Ordnance Works, Wilmington, Ill.

The plant will be operated by E. I. Dupont de Nemours & Co., it was said, and about $30,000,000 would be spent on the new facilities.

W. A. Harriman, chairman of the board of the Union Pacific Railroad, was appointed by Secretary of Commerce Jones to help develop Commerce Department activities in relation to the defense program. Harriman, for seven years a member of the department's business advisory council, also is on Defense Commissioner Stettinius' staff.

Hiram Johnson Backs Willkie, Hits 3d Term

against Willkie, but Democrats declared Johnson would be unable to transfer to Willkie any of his own personal popularity in the State.

The text follows:

When first like a vagrant comet the ruthless ruler of Germany burst upon the horizon, the American people were concerned, but unafraid! And then, when his bloody aggressions became manifest and one nation after another fell, they began to look to their defenses, and to attempt the repair of them. Then was the opportunity for a few men in this country to frighten our people, and to cause a hysteria presented to us as a crisis such as we had never before seen. Over-emphasized and asserted most cleverly it was that the awful crisis was upon us. It was painted in lurid colors by those who knew so well how to arouse the people. And then, too, came another crisis very different—the crisis of a third consecutive Presidential term which would enable the incumbent again to be a candidate, and perhaps again to be elected. One crisis was, from without, war-like and nebulous in character; the other, from within, very, very close to us all, more subtle but more important.

Various astute and clever politicians who knew just what they wanted soon prepared the means by which one crisis could minister to the other. The game was played then and every endeavor was made to whip up a war scare and a war hysteria. This proved fairly easy because of the rapidity and ruthlessness with which the aggressor nations were acting. The people were made to believe that St. Louis and Omaha were about to be bombed, and every species of propaganda was called into use to increase their fears. And then mysterious whisperings were heard about changing horses in the middle of the stream, and then the indispensable man was born. I may add, parenthetically, that Americans have very little use for the indispensable man, and when it was found how little use he was to those who had created him, he gradually retired from the picture and the crisis.

The President maintained a discreet silence until the meeting of the Democratic Convention, and although those of us who had been suspiciously viewing the trend of events were neither shocked, nor surprised at his assumed unwillingness to become a candidate, he apparently knew full well that his months of preparation and his ambiguous declarations could mean but one thing, and that the assumed unwillingness would ripen into a graceful offer to bear the burden of the great office and be a candidate again. For the first time in the history of the Nation we have a third-term Presidential candidate. And this presents in greater degree than a flaming war, with its cruel destruction of peaceful nations, a crisis purely American. This is the greater crisis, and perhaps is more far-reaching than any other, for it may mean the preservation of the last fortress of democracy on this earth. I emphasize this is an American crisis alone, and for that reason, we must solve it ourselves as Americans, in order that our coveted and boasted American liberty shall not perish from the earth.

It is because I deem so important this issue of a third term, paling into insignificance every other issue, that I come before you tonight as an American, who loves his country above all else, who believes in its traditions, and its customs, and in its treasured institutions, to argue for a few minutes upon this most important subject.

One who has reached his allotted span, who has no animosities toward any man, and no partisanship of any sort, I speak neither as Democrat, nor Republican, nor Progressive. I speak from a full heart just as an American, and I choose in this campaign the man opposed to the third term. It makes no difference to me whether his chance of election be of one sort or another. It makes a vast difference that I shall preserve that which has been most dear to me in my life,—my independence and my country's weal.

Reviews the Record

Let us look at the historical record for a moment. I choose principally the record of the Democratic Party, for I wish to speak mainly to my Democratic friends.

George Washington set the precedent of a two-term limit for Chief Executives. Thomas Jefferson established it. Jefferson is the patron saint of the Democratic Party. Until the recent Democratic Convention you have heard him quoted and praised by all Democrats. It remained for this last convention to boo him when Carter Glass was nominating Jim Farley, and quoting Jefferson as opposed to a third term. What a long way we have traveled! Until at last we find after Jefferson has been venerated for more than a century, his words praised as pearls of wisdom; whose advice has been so clear and persuasive that it has always been followed, this popular hero, this Democratic saint is booed in a Democratic convention! And nothing more distinguished that convention, or extinguished it, in the opinion of thinking people, than those boos heard in 1940 at one whose name had ever been received with veneration, and one who had measured up in his life to the loftiest heights of patriotism.

But Jefferson established the principle of a two-term limit for Presidents. Washington set the precedent. Madison and Monroe acquiesced in it, and Andrew Jackson, who, until the Democratic Convention of 1940, was the second greatest Democrat of all times, favored it.

Feared Excesses

All the great Democrats from that day to this have been in accord. None has dissented. The reasons were plain. It was the fear of personal power in one man, the fear of personal power which would lead that one man to excesses. Power is a heady wine. Few human beings can resist it, and certainly there has been no evidence, or even desire of resistance in the gentleman who seeks it now. He has gathered unto himself more power than any ruler on earth has, save in the totalitarian governments. And there has been no instance when any part of it has been returned. In his course at the Democratic Convention at Chicago, his direction of its proceedings, and his subsequent actions as its third-term candidate, he has contributed a perfect illustration of every danger and evil which Jefferson foresaw so clearly, and against which he warned his countrymen so earnestly.

And after this so-called Democratic convention what have we seen, seen with regret and sorrow! Without notice, we witness the recipient of a third-term nomination, brushing aside with a sweep of the hand the precedent of Washington and the tradition established by Jefferson, and he has done this in total disregard of what the American people have thought. No chance to debate the matter, no opportunity for Congress to ratify it, nor for the people to pass upon it. Perhaps the unanimity with which the people and their representatives have determined the question is the very reason for not submitting it.

It does not answer the requirement to say that the people now have a chance to pass upon it, because, first, the principle is hidden in a mass of irrelevant matters, and in the hot enthusiasms of present politics the question is beclouded by a Democratic nomination however obtained. The very abuse that custom and tradition sought to avoid is presented to the people practically as a fact accomplished.

Instead of submitting the matter to the people for determination, he handed it over to his State and county chairmen to do with as they saw fit. He handed it over, indeed, to men whom he knew would do his will without thought of the perpetuity of American tradition.

Power of Patronage

Grover Cleveland warned us against the power of patronage at a President's disposal in forcing his renomination, and that this warning was real is demonstrated by the number of employes of the Federal Government which in the last seven years has doubled, and is now more than a million.

Cleveland spoke of the pitfalls in the pathway of an ambitious President, "the allurements of power, the temptation to retain public place once gained, and more than all, the availability which his party finds in an incumbent, whom a horde of office-holders support with a zeal born of benefits received and the hope of favors yet to come."

All of the forebodings of Washington, Jefferson and Jackson are fulfilled and justified. No longer need we consider what may happen—what is certain to happen is obvious if a President sees fit to destroy this great tradition and custom.

If he sees fit to increase his term four years, he can increase it eight, or sixteen, and finally, as Jefferson once remarked, the whole Presidential office becomes but an inheritance.

I speak to you tonight with no ill-will toward any man. The law has ever made it a sin for a trustee to profit from his beneficiaries' inheritances. Jealously the law guards this. The rights of beneficiaries are so carefully protected that a trustee must not deal with the property intrusted to him. This was to remove temptation, and is as old as the old Mosaic law that no man may serve two masters. The temptation applied to the highest and the lowest, the highest in dealing with his country, and the lowest in dealing with matters intrusted to him.

In 1875 the House passed its resolution by a vote of 233 to 18. In the Senate this resolution was passed in 1928, and it reads as follows:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the Senate that the precedent established by Washington and other Presidents of the United States in retiring from the Presidential office after their second term, has become by universal concurrence, a part of our republican system of government, and that every departure from this time-honored custom would be unwise, unpatriotic, and fraught with peril to our free institutions."

The vote on this resolution was: Yea 56. No, 26.

Violation of Custom

There never has been an occasion when the matter has been brought to attention officially that it has not been decided that the third term violates tradition and custom and is "fraught with peril to our free institutions."

If your imagination will permit you, go back to the first beginnings of this country. Can you see Washington and Jefferson, Madison and Monroe, and Jackson, and all the remaining galaxy of the great, safeguarding our precious liberties? We're the last country on earth to possess these.

Shall one of our own jeopardize them, or shall one of our own be permitted to violate the sacred tradition built up by these great men of the past for the preservation of the perpetuity of our institutions?

It must not be done.

Upon you and upon me rest the solemn obligation of protecting those who come after us, as our great founding fathers sought to preserve for us our liberties unsullied and untouched, to permit the ambition of no man, however great he may be, or however appealing he may be to the people, to violate the custom or tradition.

We are asked to permit him to make the first break in the protecting dike. This country belongs to you and to me, and to every other inarticulate citizen. Theirs is the right, theirs alone, to alter our fundamental law and abandon this custom and tradition. We are asked now to submit it to one man alone with the warnings of 150 years ringing in our ears. We are asked to gamble now with the most precious of human possessions—liberty. We must not do it.

Both Washington and Jefferson refused even to contemplate any American so far forgetful as to want a third election. Washington said:

"There cannot in my judgment be the least danger that the President will by any practicable intrigue ever be able to continue himself one moment in office, much less perpetuate himself in it, but in the last stage of corrupted morals and political depravity."

Quotes Jefferson

And Jefferson in like fashion was unable to conceive a President actually consenting to a continuous term in office, and remarked: "Should he consent to be a candidate for a third election, I trust he would be rejected on this demonstration of ambitious views."

Consider for the moment the power that the President now has. He has arrogated to himself the right to the purse of the Nation. A celebrated Englishman once said: "Give me the purse and I will govern." By his innumerable boards and commissions he deals with nearly all of the problems of life, and enforces his will alone concerning them. To the minds of the great and pure men who have governed this Nation, it is unthinkable that any man would seek to violate the sacred agreement and tradition that all had rigorously obeyed.

But, they overlook one trait of human nature, one dominant factor, the love of place and prominence, of adulation and power. I say this in no invidious sense, but as the common fault of human nature. Some love it so much that power is never gladly or voluntarily surrendered. The appetite growing by what it feeds on becomes the master passion of their lives. Such men find while they realize that some day their power must be laid down, can always find a reason why the fatal day may be postponed. In their inds there is always a crisis in which their services are indispensable; always some great work in hand which they, and they alone, can do. Outwardly, they pretend that they groan under the burden and would be glad to lay it down, but in their secret souls they cling to their places.

History is full of just such instances. The friends and sycophants of the incumbent, whose lives are linked with his, constantly assure their chief that the public good demands that he should not desert the ship. It is this sort of sweet music that is the curse of kings.

Jefferson once wrote, long after he thought he had definitely fixed the tenure of the office of President:

"In questions of power, let no more be said of confidence in man, but bind him down from mischief by the chains of the Constitution."

Can Perpetuate Office

Neither Jefferson nor his contemporaries could foresee the immense power that a President avid for it could acquire. In recent years we have seen billions of dollars that he could disburse at will, with places by the hundreds of thousands for him to fill, with scores of discretionary statutes ready at his word, with the Army and Navy under his control as Commander in Chief, and the conduct of foreign relations in his hands. Who could ask for more? I but state the fact when I say any President with these great powers can cause himself to be renominated, not once, or twice, but as long as he chooses. With the two-term tradition broken down, we have every reason to dread a future occupancy of the White House, limited only by the ambition or the life of the tenant.

One hundred and fifty years have elapsed since the foundation of our republic. Thirty Presidents have followed one another in succession, some ruling well, some not so well. In all the time we have been a Nation, with all the men who have ben our Presidents, never have the custom and tradition been broken, no man has had the temerity to challenge it. Now, in 1940, if we permit this sacred tradition to be broken and the labor of a century and a half set at naught, it requires no prescience or vision to see what will happen thereafter.

Think of it. In a century and a half of an acquiesced custom and tradition, none in whose custody it has been, however sorely tempted, has dared to violate it. Now in secrecy and stealth, with the aid of all the boss-ridden cities of America, is it broken! Wake up, Americans, rush to protect what protects your liberties. Wake up, Americans, ere it is too late.

Dr. Raymond Moley so aptly phrases his description of the instances involving personal power and the effect upon delegates to the late Democratic Convention that I dare quote him here: I quote:

"Consider, how, the instances in which this issue of personal power has currently been involved. The first has been the attempt to lay down to Congress a list of specifications for its action. We all remember those 'must' bills. So we call it by the name 'must.' The second we call 'pack'—the attempt of the Executive to get the immediate power to create in the Supreme Court a majority of his own choosing. The third we call 'purge.' It involved the power of the Executive to destroy the political careers of those legislators who would not conform to the Executive's will. The fourth, we shall call 'perpetuate'—the effort of the Executive, through a subservient party and a distracted people, to override the principle that has kept any other President from serving more than two terms.

"There they are. Four words describe them—'must,' 'pack,' 'purge,' and 'perpetuate' . . .

". . . They are four signs that the danger of individual power never passes. They are the four horsemen of autocracy . . .

Follow Logical Course

"These efforts follow on an appallingly logical course—the course that begins with an aspiration and ends with a person. It begins with an ideal and ends with a single will. Certain ideas are indispensable. Then compliance is indispensable. And finally the leader is indispensable. . . .

". . . Recall . . . the conclave of . . . (the Democratic) Party in Chicago last July. Nominally, it was a convention of that Democratic Party which pledged itself, 1912, to a single term for the President. But the Democratic Party which made that pledge is dead. The thing that met in Chicago this summer was . . . (composed of) men and women who . . . did not think; they nodded. They did not vote their convictions. . . . They did not select a candidate. The candidate selected himself.

". . . Democracy holds that executive authority shall neither be hereditary nor perpetual. If America rejects that tenet, it rejects democracy. And it rejects it at its deadly peril. . . .

And now I leave this question with you. I leave it believing that I have a sacred duty to perform, and you must judge whether I have succeeded. I'm loath to cease this discussion. There are many other things in this campaign that I would discuss, but I'll have to defer a presentation of them until some future time. I realize how inept I ave been, perhaps, in parts of it, but I have tried to discuss a great principle rather than any personality. If I have succeeded in arousing some slight spark in our electorate I shall consider my task sufficiently performed. I cannot think of our great ancestors, all of whom with singular unanimity favored the tradition which Jefferson established, I cannot think of our past Presidents who with unanimity followed, without feeling a great reverence for the noble men who charted their course in the dark, until the blessed sunlight came for the struggling Republic and for those who followed them.

Lauds Willkie, McNary

I would be wanting in expression upon the current contest if I did not say to you that the fight that is being made by Willkie and McNary, practically single-handed and alone, arouses my enthusiasm and my admiration. They have opposed to them almost insuperable odds. First, about 125 members of the Electoral College are already selected by the exigencies of politics. More than one million employes of the existing power stand like a phalanx in this campaign, and then, more important than all, nine millions of people who are recipients of the bounty of the Government. Yet, they fight on. If these adventitious aids which the present President has should be taken from him, the contest would no longer be in doubt. Upon all matters I do not agree with Willkie and McNary in this campaign, but they are eternally right upon the great issue, and the all-important one of a third term. Thrice armed is he whose cause is just. Fear not, fight on. Truth is mighty and it will prevail.

We have been in such a fog of hysteria that it has been difficult to think soberly or well. One event has pyramided another so quickly that it is difficult to think at all. We have become soft and soggy with temporary abundance. Even the enormous debt stirs only the few. We are satisfied with a promised security, unearned and easy. Our thoughts teem with greed and every man for himself. May I say—that is not the American way. Our country was not founded upon those ideas, but by striving and toiling and saving and building—a unity among men with a definite goal—America. They gave their all to give us this heritage we so enjoy.

Let us transport ourselves to the early days. Imagine yourselves with Washington. Go with him through all his trials and difficulties. Think of him in his crisis, with his regiment naked and sick and hungry—you remember "the old Continentals in their ragged regimentals"—and his cause seemingly lost. And then, in his loneliness, on the bleak hill of Valley Forge, he knelt to ask his God to help him and be with him to the end, all to give us peace, security and freedom. How can we forget?

Think of Jefferson, the philosopher and thinker, who, at the beginning was a resident of another continent and how he wrote continuously and pleadingly, and then established this principle. Think of his trials and disappointments and indomitable courage that succeeded in implanting in every American heart his ideals. Are we to froget him also? And how about Old Hickory, with matchless courage, and his heart filled with patriotic fervor, who for seven long years preached the faith that was in him, until Buchanan wrote in 1829:

"The example of Washington, which has been followed by Jefferson, Madison, and Monroe, has forever determined that no President shall be more than once re-elected. This principle has now become as sacred as if it were written in the Constitution."

We can not be false to all these and other patriots, living or dead, who with a singleness of purpose to preserve intact our liberties, fought for this principle.

We cannot be and we will not be.

And so when we come to the judgment seat how shall we answer for our precious country, for the preservation of its pristine glory, for the protection of the liberties of our citizens? Shall we answer, trembling—"We had not the courage because the power was great and overwhelming, millions upon millions, on the other side, and we fell before them." Or shall we answer thus and say—"We stood up like brave men and fought the good fight, and with the aid of God we won it!"

God bless and save America!

Lehman Calls Legislature to Extend N. Y. Voting Hours After Record Registration

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 18 (AP).—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman tonight ordered New York's Legislature into extraordinary session Tuesday to consider extension of voting hours throughout the State on election day, November 5.

LEHMAN

The Governor acted at the request of the New York City Board of Elections which cited a city registration of 3,391,238 prospective voters, exceeding the previous high by 492,270, and said under such conditions the number of voting machines was insufficient.

Lehman asked, in addition to extending the 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. voting time, for amendments to authorize the voting of 950 ballots on each election machine instead of the present 800, and permit use of two voting machines in districts where voters number more than 950.

Al Smith to Stump 4 States for Willkie

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, who "took a walk" from the Democratic Party in 1936, will oppose the New Deal again by speaking in four States for Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate.

Alan Valentine, executive director of the National Committee of Democrats for Willkie, announced this schedule for Smith, Democratic Presidential nominee in 1928:

October 23, Brooklyn; October 26, Chicago; October 29, Philadelphia; October 31, Boston.

Former Democratic Gov. Joseph Ely, of Massachusetts, will appear with Smith in the latter talk. A fifth speech is to be arranged.

Democrats Form 30,000 Speakers

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—The Democratic National Committee today announced that its speakers' bureau had organized 30,000 speakers as "Roosevelt minute men" to make a national campaign.

Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, was named national chairman of the organization. Jack Dempsey, chairman of the national committee's sports division, named four regional chairmen to assist.

They are Max Baer, of California; Arthur Duffy, Boston newspaper columnist and former track star; Marty Burke, of New Orleans, Dempsey's former sparring partner, and Joe Triner, of Chicago, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission.

Among the "minute men" will be Senators Clark, of Missouri; Bilbo, of Mississippi; Hatch, of New Mexico; Green, of Rhode Island; Sheppard, of Texas; Governors Johnson, of Kentucky; Olson, of California; Jones, of Louisiana, and O'Conor, of Maryland.

The Gallup Poll

Why Do Voters Shift in Mid-Campaign? Reasons on Both Sides Are Analyzed

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 19.—When the political experts conduct their postmortems on the Presidential election—some three weeks from now—the big question will be: "What were the decisive factors in the election of Mr. Roosevelt, or of Mr. Willkie?"

It is still too early to say who the next President will be, but it is not too early to discover the reasons and arguments which—thus far—have caused voters to change from one candidate to the other.

Reasons Behind Shift

To find out what inter-party shifts have taken place since the beginning of the campaign, the American Institute of Public Opinion has made a special investigation in which voters in all parts of the country were asked—first—which candidate they would vote for. Persons supporting Roosevelt were then asked:

"Have you, at any time since Willkie was nominated, planned to vote for him?"

Those supporting Willkie were asked:

"Have you, at any time since Roosevelt was nominated, planned to vote for him?"

The results contribute some striking new information as to American political behavior during a Presidential campaign:

1. The overwhelmingly majority of voters on both sides said they had not changed their minds on the candidates at any time during the campaign. Neither speeches, events abroad, nor the normal efforts of a three-month Presidential campaign had budged their choice.

2. On both sides, however, a small but highly important bloc of voters said they had changed their minds. These are the voters, by-and-large, who will decide the election. Approximately 8 per cent of those who now favor Willkie conceded that, sometime during the campaign, they had planned to vote for Roosevelt.

3. Similarly, over 10 per cent of those now favoring Roosevelt said they had once planned to vote for Wendell Willkie. In the net exchange of voters, of course, President Roosevelt has gained more than Willkie has—one fact which helps to explain Mr. Roosevelt's lead in the Institute's State-by-State Presidential studies since September.

Tradition Still Factor

To political observers, of course, the most fascinating question is why these shifts have taken place. Why did a substantial bloc of voters, once committed in their own minds to Wendell Willkie, decide to swing to Roosevelt? Why has a somewhat smaller bloc of voters decided to switch from the President to the G. O. P. candidate?

"What was the main reason you changed your mind?" the Institute asked such voters.

In the case of voters switching from Roosevelt to Willkie the two chief reasons advanced were:

First and foremost, an increasing anxiety in the individual's mind about the effect of a third term. Often such voters said they liked "much of what Roosevelt has done, but don't think the third-term tradition should be broken."

The second most frequent reason was a belief Administration foreign policies might involve America in war. "Willkie makes me think he would do a better job of keeping America out of the war," these voters say.

A final group of reasons were based on general impressions of the G. O. P. candidate on speaking platforms, in newspapers, radio and newsreel.

Backers "Disappointed"

The chief reasons given by those switching from Willkie to Roosevelt were:

1. Disappointment with the speeches and campaign of Mr. Willkie—a feeling that the Republican candidate had "talked too much" without presenting a clear alternative to some of the Administration's measures.

2. Belief that a deepening world crisis abroad had made Mr. Roosevelt's reelection necessary: "Roosevelt's experience is needed in this crisis; we shouldn't change now."

Together with those who have still to make up their minds about the candidates (9 per cent in the latest Institute survey), these "shifters" may decide the result on November 5.

WPA Union Chief Charges Coercion

liver the WPA vote to the Democratic Party through an unparalleled campaign of intimidation, espionage and persecution."

McKibben and Levner produced two witnesses from New York, who testified that they had been suspended as WPA teachers after they were questioned as to their political affiliations.

"We charge that every form of vicious intimidation is being employed, from threats of loss of WPA jobs to the formation of an Administration-supported 'company union' to force WPA workers to vote for Roosevelt in the coming elections," said McKibben.

Communist Tie Charged

He declared that a letter from President Roosevelt to the American Security Union (an organization headed by Lasser since his resignation from the Workers Alliance) was being used "for political purposes in violation of the Hatch Act." The new group is a "company union" to influence the votes of WPA workers, McKibben asserted.

Denouncing McKibben for making "irresponsible charges" regarding President Roosevelt and the American Security Union, Lasser said the allegations were "a result of a political alliance between the Communist-dominated part of the American Labor Party and the Republicans—and that these Communists are under instructions to see that President Roosevelt is defeated."

"Democratic ward-heelers in New York City," said Levner, "have boasted that WPA workers (more than 100,000 of them) will vote as a block for Roosevelt relief. . . . To insures against any defection . . . they have resorted to a campaign of terrorism and political intimidation."

Levner added that "under the guise" of administering that provision of the Relief Act that bars Communists from the WPA, "an extra-legal WPA police force, known as the Guard Division," has been established in New York City," he said, to investigate workers' political affiliations. Levner charged this section with "star-chamber proceedings," and said workers are told they will be labelled as Communists unless they answer personal questions and "inform" on fellow workers.

"Under pretext of investigating possible radical affiliations," workers are asked how they voted "from 1936 on" and how they intend to vote this year, Levner testified.

In denying recent charges that the WPA was padding its rolls prior to the Presidential election, Acting Commissioner Hunter declared that this month "shows the lowest October employment in any of the five years of WPA's existence, with the single exception of 1937."

53 Per Cent of Increase in South

WPA employment is now lower in relation to the total number of unemployed than at any comparable period since the beginning of the program," he declared.

To disprove any political aim in the increase of perhaps 100,000 in WPA rolls this month, Hunter pointed out that "53 per cent of the total October increase has been authorized in 12 Southern States, which have only 26 per cent of the national population." No increase is scheduled for New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana, he declared.

Hunter later revealed that a letter was being sent to each WPA worker, saying, "Voting is your own business."

Hatch Act Letter Of Flynn Assailed

could obtain support, financial and otherwise, and still be within the confines of the Hatch Act.

The Democratic chairman said "The letter speaks for itself," and declined further comment, except to say that "undoubtedly" similar letters were sent to Democratic workers in other States.

Flynn's letter said: "You will find attached two legal opinions to guide you in what you are permitted to do with respect to soliciting and giving contributions under the Hacht Act during the election campaign.

Relatives Not Inhibited

"Even where the type of Government or State employe cannot engage in political activity, or even make contributinos (and there are very few, as you will see from the annexed legal opinions), their friends and relatives are in no way prohibited from such activities."

Attached was a legal opinion by Sol A. Rosenblatt, general counsel for the Democratic National Committee, and an interpretation from Oliver A. Quayle, jr., national treasurer.

Quayle, referring to Rosenblatt's legal opinion, said, "in a few words, anybody who is not on relief is permitted, and can be urged, to contribute within their means and desires, toward the reelection of President Roosevelt."

"Ransom for Their Jobs"

Martin, at a press conference, said "there is nothing delicate about the demand that the relatives and friends of officeholders pay a ransom for their jobs."

"It's a cold-blooded, ruthless bluff which reveals an astounding and desperate weakness when you consider how much of the cost of the third-term campaign is being paid by the United States Treasury," Martin said.

Martin said the one purpose of the Hatch Act was to "rescue job holders from political intimidation," and added that if the Flynn letter is not intimidation, it is a very strong hint."

Republican State Chairman Edwin F. Jaeckle said Flynn's letter was "a disgraceful piece of business," and asserted that "the shakedown of Government employes has begun."

Roosevelt Charges GOP 'Falsification'

gram of falsification of fact by the opposition. The President does not believe that it has been an unwitting falsification of fact. He believes it is a deliberate falsification of fact.

"He has, therefore, decided to tell the American people what these misrepresentations have been and in what respect they are false.

"With that purpose in mind, the President will make five speeches between now and election day."

Asked if he cared to state the misrepresentations at this time, he said reporters will have to wait until they are presented in his speeches.

On the trip to Philadelphia for his October 23 speech, the President will inspect Frankford Arsenal and shipbuilding yards in Camden, N. J. The trip to New York for the October 28 Madison Square Garden speech will also bring inspection of the Kearny, N. J., shipyards, the Brooklyn Navy Yard and possibly dedication of the Battery Tunnel. En route to Cleveland for his November 2 speech, he will visit the aircraft factories in Buffalo, N. Y., and an aerial camera plant in Rochester, N. Y. The Philadelphia speech, in the same hall where Willkie was nominated, will be in connection with National Youth Day and the subject will be "America Faces the Future."

The President later left Washington for a nonpolitical week-end at Hyde Park, where he will have the Earl of Athlone, Governor General of Canada, as his guest.

Regarding Thursday's White House visit by John L. Lewis, C. I. O. head, who has not yet chosen between the two candidates, the President said they discussed two strikes in which the C. I. O. was involved.

White House visitors yesterday included Representative Christopher Sullivan, of New York, head of Tammany Hall, some of whose members are cool to a third term.

James P. Warburg, New York banker and supporter of the President, also called at the White House.

Pleased that the President and Willkie might appear in Baltimore on the same day, W. David Tighlman, jr., Republican State chairman, said he "hopes it will be possible to get both on the same platform.

Work to Resume At Fort Meade

relied on this clause in the statement of policy of the National Defense Commission, which was quoted by President Roosevelt in his message to Congress September 13:

"In order that surplus and unemployed labor may be absorbed in the defense program, all reasonable efforts should be made to avoid hours in excess of 40 per week. However, in emergencies or where the needs of the national defense cannot otherwise be met, exceptions to this standard should be permitted. When the requirements of the defense program make it necessary to work in excess of these hours, or where work is required on Saturdays, Sundays or holidays, overtime should be paid in accordance with the local recognized practices."

Patterson's letter to Hillman said copies of the President's message had been distributed to chiefs of supply branches in the War Department and "instructions have been given that the statement of principles and of labor policy adopted by the advisory commission and approved by the President . . . will be the guide in the award of contracts."

The Consolidated Engineering Co. is building the $8,000,000 project under a contract providing for payment by the Government of actual costs plus a fixed fee. Under this contract, the company would not be affected by an increase in labor costs for the overtime pay demanded.

Carpenters and joiners on the Fort Meade job are paid $1.25 an hour in compliance with an order issued September 28 by the Secretary of Labor fixing wage scales under the Davis-Bacon Act.

United States.

Information in the hands of investigators for the House Committee on Un-American Activities reportedly identifies him simply as a district director of the foreign division of the German National Socialist Party, in which capacity he is reported to have been acting. In the latter capacity, according to the data turned over to the State Department, Dr. Draeger has abandoned oratory for more direct means of organizing an American branch of the Nazi Party.

Formerly attached to the German consulate in Mexico City, Dr. Draeger came to New York in 1934. One of his close associates here, according to the file submitted to the State Department, was Dr. Friendrich E. Auhagen.

Associate Under Arrest

Auhagen was formerly president of the American Fellowship Forum, which has been described by the House committee as a German propaganda agency. Dr. Auhagen was arrested in Los Angeles on September 28 as he was about to sail for Japan and Germany. He is now in Washington, supposedly telling all he knows of Nazi activities here.

From other sources than the committee it was learned that the Dies group is anxiously awaiting a go ahead signal from the State Department. When that signal comes, it was learned, the committee expects to divulge information through a number of witnesses, including Dr. Auhagen, which may strain greatly German-American diplomatic relations.

Dies Prdicts Sabotage Wave

New Orleans, Oct. 18 (AP).—Outbreak shortly of a series of "sabotage incidents" like "the recent Hercules Powder explosion in New Jersey" unless the Federal Government takes active steps at once was predicted today by Representative Dies (Democrat), of Texas.

"Foreign governments have placed agents and saboteurs in every key industry and unless the Government acts within 30 days I predict a series of actual sabotage that will cripple the whole National Defense program," the chairman of the House Committee Investigating Un-American Activities asserted in an interview.

"Everyone laughed when a man named Van Hess, former bund official, testified before our committee more than a year ago about plans to blow up the Hercules Company. When the plant blew up last month, it happened in the way Van Hess said it would."

The husky Texan said his committee had collected a vast amount of "evidence of improper activities" on the part of German, Italian and Russian consuls and agents in the United States, much of which has been referred to the State Department.

Sigrid Undset Says Norse Ideals Hold

Authoress Sees Eventual Return Of Nation's Liberty

"I wish I could sob until my own death but I do not wish he had not fought."

Sigrid Undset said last night she hated sentimentality equally with war. But she quoted a Norse girl whose fiance had been killed in the Nazi invasion in a lecture last night at the Mayflower Hotel and said she felt the same.

MME. UNDSET

She told, too, of the farewell of her eldest son, Anders: "I'm going for a little skiing trip in the mountains"—pointing to the skis he was to speed to join his regiment, and his death three weeks later.

"There was nothing the matter with the fighting spirit of our boys," the Nobel Prize winner declared in matter-of-fact tones.

Then she told how Norwegian soldiers had "fought and retired . . . retired to advance and fight again" sleepless for three weeks, until the last round of ammunition had been fired.

She told of "white-hot rage and sickening revolt at German methods." In thick Scandinavian accent she declared "I do not think we would want to change places with Denmark."

The necessity of accepting a "hateful" philosophy by the tiny state that did not resist the Nazi invaders would make theirs the harder lot, the authoress asserted.

Then to the audience of 700 who packed the hall for the lecture under the auspices of America, Catholic weekly, and the Affiliated Catholic Societies, she declared that the darkness of "Nazidom would subside."

"It will not be possible for gangsters ruling millions of slaves" to enforce their sovereignty indefinitely.

Determinedly she said there "is not enough room in the world for totalitarian powers and the democratic ones" whose existence was the challenge that started the Nazi march.

"Certainly we are on the brink of a new Dark Age. There may be half a century of unrest and trouble. And if Germany wins it is impossible to estimate the length" of the dark years.

"But some day the darkness will have to subside . . ." she concluded.

Others to address the audience, which included Crown Princess Martha, who recently fled to Washington, and a score of diplomats, were the Norwegian Minister, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, and Walter Lippmann, Washington Post columnist.

Pointing proudly to the fact that Norway had held out two months against the German juggernaut—longer than any other occupied country — Mr. Morgenstierne declared the "spirit of Norway cannot and will not die." The Germans are only "temporary masters," he said.

Lippmann said in part: "The attack on Finland and the invasion of Norway will, I believe, be recognized by historians as the events which most profoundly altered the judgment of the American people about the issues of the present war . . . for the destruction of the neutrality of Finland and Norway destroyed the moral foundation of neutrality in the United States."

"The suffering of Norway, as it is represented in this lady . . . is an experience which in its ultimate significance is our own experience, and when she speaks she will put into words the travail of conscience of the American people."

Earlier in an interview the Norwegian authoress dressed in sheer black and smiling only occasionally behind liquid, sad eyes, said that her country's will to regain freedom will keep for years, "even if it has to be put in cold storage."

That, essentially, was Mme. Undset's only comment on her invaded country which she hasn't seen since last May and was, apparently, all she wanted to say about it.

Entering a lovely room, on the second floor of the Norwegian Legation, Mme. Undset, darkly dressed and seeming deeply inside her own thoughts, sat down, without a word beyond the first quick greetings, and waited for questions.

The first one concerning Russia, through which she recently passed, she answered frankly and emphatically. The Norwegian Minister ruled it off the record. And then she said that nothing was known to her of conditions now in Norway and that she could not speak of her relatives there. She said she had no plans "because this is no time for making plans."

The interview turned again to the subject of the war and again Mme. Undset was reticent.

Her voice found a trace of liveliness but once—when someone asked her what she thought of "Gone With the Wind." There, she smiled rather broadly and said "Scarlet was a real woman; the men were more or less fiction."

500 Community Chest Workers Gather at Keynote Luncheon

"Once a year your neighbors look to you for help." This is the keynote of the 1941 Community Chest drive.

To 500 Community Chest workers, gathered for their keynote luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel, the Rev. Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette Square, cast a challenge.

"We who are strong," he said in his first public address since coming to Washington, "should bear the burdens of the weak, and not only please ourselves."

Stressing the need of Washington and other cities for a "community of humane spirit," Dr. Glenn declared: "Each person is a living part of an integrated world. We cannot live alone. We are responsible for one another."

He pointed to the year-'round need of less-fortunate residents and denounced the cyclical attitude" which results each year "in the writing of a check either grudgingly or gladly."

"We should break ourselves of this attitude," he said, "before we die inside."

Besides its efficiency in raising approximately $2,000,000, Dr. Glenn remarked "the Chest is important to us, because it brings all kinds and conditions of people together in a common undertaking."

Holding "this quality of belonging to one another" to be an essential of life, he added that cooperative action and common aims will become increasingly important when "we begin to rebuild after the present war and the world is at peace again."

Coleman Jennings, Chest president, joined Dr. Glenn in his plea for generous giving this year and a vigorous fund-raising campaign.

A successful drive, Jennings said, is assured, because "in these days of human agony no one could remain untouched by the suffering in the world today.

"We couldn't let our sympathy express itself only in words and still keep an ounce of self-respect."

In a varied display of exhibits, approximately half the 80 chest agencies portrayed their 12-month role.

St. Ann's Infant Asylum sent a group of prekindergarten children, under the care of a sister, to demonstrate its work. Enlarged photographs showed the work of Friendship House, Prince Georges Social Service League exhibited a series of oil paintings picturing its work. Hyattsville, Md., High School artists responsibile for the paintings were Mary Ronchi, Esther Harrington, Jacqueline Boggs, Phyllis Robey and Keith Wells.

H.M.S. Ajax Again Ready to Fight

Alexandria, Oct. 18 (AP).—Her dead buried and her scars patched, the British cruiser Ajax stood ready tonight to take up where she left off in last Saturday's victorious encounter with the Italian navy in the Mediterranean.

While the fleet made ready, R. A. F. headquarters at Cairo announced an Italian motor column had been scattered by bombs dropped on Hellfire Pass, near Sallum on the Egyptian coast. Returning from this attack, the British pilots raided Bengasi, Italy's main Libyan naval base, where direct hits were reported scored on two ships.

Terrorizing Voters

So long as the secrecy of the ballot is maintained, only the ignorant can be coerced into voting for any candidate for office. There is no assurance that even those whose votes can be bought will fulfill the terms of their contract. But corrupt political machines have many devices at their disposal to assure victory for candidates of their choice. Testimony before the Senate subcommittee sitting in Chicago to investigate election frauds strongly indicates that terrorism has been freely employed by henchmen of the Kelly organization in that city.

One housewife summoned before the committee refused to testify on the ground that she was afraid of what would happen if she disobeyed the precinct captain's injunction to keep silent. Another witness asserted that he knew of cases in which police officers assigned to polling places had been ordered out by influential ward politicians.

These are much more serious charges than complaints that votes have been bought for 25 cents or traded for drinks of liquor. Danger from this petty kind of traffic in votes arises chiefly when a corrupt organization takes possession of polling places and is able to intimidate adherents of opposing candidates. If watchers can be thrown out, police protection withdrawn and election laws violated with impunity, then it becomes an easy matter to stuff ballot boxes, buy votes, and send repeaters from one polling place to another.

The technique of corrupt municipal machines has been developed by decades of experimentation. A continuous struggle is needed to free our large cities from domination by such machines. Victory for the forces of political decency, even when won, brings no permanent gains if vigilance is relaxed. That is why it is salutary to have an investigative body such as the Senate Committee on Campaign Expenditures delve into conditions in Chicago and other cities where charges of corruption are numerous.

Responsibility for reform of machine-ridden municipal governments rests upon the voters themselves. But the decent law-abiding majority must periodically be stirred out of their lethargy if free elections are to be preserved.

Conscientious Objectors

The open refusal of various eligible persons—mostly clergymen and theological students—to register under the selective service act places a most difficult and delicate problem in the lap of the Department of Justice.

The refusal to register is, in most of these cases, based squarely on a point of conscience or of Christian ethics. A typical example is that of a young clergyman in rural Minnesota. He appeared before his draft board only to declare his belief that registration would be tantamount to participation in "preparation for war" and, therefore, contrary to the teaching of the Gospels.

The conscription act does, of course, make provision for qualified or complete exemption from service on grounds of scruples against war. However, the validity of such scruples is apparently not determined until after the registrant has been classified in other respects and has demanded and filled out a special form for conscientious objectors. Judging from the returns from Wednesday's registration, this provision is acceptable to the great majority of those who intend to claim exemption on this ground.

By refusing even to be registered the handful of intransigents have made themselves liable to severe penalties. These include imprisonment up to five years and fines up to $10,000. The Federal attorneys in whose jurisdictions violations have already occurred have no other recourse than to present such cases to the grand jury as soon as the complaints are received. It appears that the intransigents are fully aware of these penalties and are prepared to accept them.

Legally, it is very difficult to justify the position of these recalcitrants. It must be remembered, however, that these men believe themselves to be acting in accordance with a divine law which supersedes any possible Act of Congress. The Government, therefore, would be well advised to use the utmost tact in dealing with them.

Most Americans would probably agree that provisions for conscientious objection in the law as it now stands are eminently comprehensive and reasonable. Still, it is well to bear in mind that the Romans, who prided themselves on religious toleration, thought it reasonable to insist that Christians, like other folk, offer homage to the effigies of the emperors.

Our First Obligation

Regardless of what the outcome of the election may be, the role which the United States expects to play in the present world crisis is now reasonably clear. President Roosevelt outlined his policy a week ago in an address broadcast to all the American republics. Wendell Willkie further clarified his position in his speech at St. Louis.

There are some differences of approach and technique between the policies sponsored by the two Presidential candidates. Yet both favor strenuous efforts to strengthen our defenses. Both have pledged all practicable aid to Great Britain in her fight against German aggression. And there seems to be little variation in their respective aims to avoid actual involvement of the United States in the war.

This similarity of views, so far as it extends, has a vital bearing upon the Presidential campaign. Unquestionably it means that the objective sought by the United States in this critical period would be changed but little by the election of the Republican candidate. Many followers of the President recognize that fact and use it to support their appeal for a third term.

Since there is so much agreement on questions of foreign policy, they say, the issue narrows down to the respective ability of the candidates in carrying out this policy. It is taken for granted by the President's followers that his experience over the last 7½ years automatically points this argument in his favor. But Mr. Willkie's address at St. Louis makes a vigorous attack upon that assumption.

What must the United States do, Mr. Willkie asked, to insure our national security and extend urgently needed help to countries fighting for their existence out on "the rim of freedom"? The problem is basically one of industrial production. Our ability to defend the Western Hemisphere will be determined in large measure by our ability to turn out airplanes, fighting ships, guns and ammunition. Certainly the productivity of our industry will determine the amount of assistance this country can give to the hard-pressed British Empire.

So, whether the United States is drawn into the war or not, the key to our national safety is production and more production. Our actual relations to foreign powers must necessarily be adjusted to the internal strength or weakness of the Nation. The most skillful diplomacy at the State Department or the White House—even if we should make the doubtful assumption that the President and Secretary Hull are unmatched masters of that art—will need the support of an economic system functioning in high gear.

There seems to be no controversy on this point. In his Pan-American speech the President stressed the necessity of piling up our armaments and producing more weapons for friendly powers that are resisting aggression. The contribution which Mr. Willkie has made is to relate this problem directly to the revival of industry. He is unquestionably right in saying that we are handicapped by having to start this enormous task from "a depression level." And the failure of the New Deal to achieve recovery justifies skepticism as to its ability to step up production for adequate defense.

The most devastating criticism of the Roosevelt Administration for failure to play its part in the drama of world affairs has come from Winston Churchill. "A prosperous United States," as the British prime minister noted in 1937, would have exerted "an immense beneficent force upon world affairs." But no such influence was forthcoming. Instead, Mr. Churchill complained that the Administration's "ruthless war on private enterprise" was actually "leading the world back into the trough of depression."

Instead of devoting his energy to this primary task of economic rehabilitation, the President indulged in an assault upon the Supreme Court and an attempted "purge" of legislators who thwarted that dangerous scheme. Those mistakes may be overlooked in confronting the task now at hand. But one vital factor should not be forgotten. In the field where our national efforts must now be concentrated, Mr. Willkie's experience has been much more extensive than that of Mr. Roosevelt.

There is no guarantee, of course, that Mr. Willkie would be able to set all the wheels of industry in motion once more. But he would probably have a better chance for success than would a third-term President whose first two terms failed to produce impressive results. In any event, every additional plant that is put to work will mean not only new jobs but also greater strength for the United States, and for Great Britain, in facing the ordeal of world revolution.

Mr. Stimson Replies

One could debate endlessly the question of where to place responsibility for our delay in arming for defense. President Roosevelt's admirers believe that Congress frustrated his early efforts at preparedness. Mr. Willkie and his followers regard the President himself as primarily responsible for our lagging defense program.

Considering that domestic problems until recently held the attention of the public, to the virtual exclusion of foreign issues, our lack of preparedness is probably due chiefly to a very general failure to realize the need for action.

Secretary Stimson directs attention to this unprepared state of the public mind in replying to Wendell Willkie's criticism of the delays in providing housing for drafted men. The War Department could not build cantonments for a conscript army, he further points out, before the Selective Service Act was passed. Nor could it contract for such quarters until the necessary funds had been voted.

Mr. Stimson rightly attributes the delay in passing this enabling legislation to the "simple fact that the people of the United States were not yet ready, through their Congress, to take the steps necessary to give this authority or to provide this money."

Now that the authorization has been given, the Secretary of War offers welcome assurance that the work of speeding the housing projects to completion is under way. Months ago the Army laid plans for housing new recruits in anticipation of such an emergency as we now face. Buildings had been designed, sites had been selected for camps, and building materials had been located, so that the actual work of construction is now proceeding without time-consuming preliminary planning.

"Barring unexpected and unanticipated difficulties," Mr. Stimson says, the great majority of projects under way will be completed by mid-December. Unfortunately, difficulties have already been encountered at Fort Meade, Md., where construction of cantonments to house 25,000 men has been suspended by a strike of carpenters for overtime pay. If delays of this kind multiply, the time saved by the Army's careful work of preparation will be quickly dissipated.

Debate At Last?

President Roosevelt's decision to make an active campaign during the last two weeks before election day may result in a debate somewhat comparable to that suggested by Wendell Willkie in his acceptance speech. Both candidates are scheduled to speak in Baltimore on October 30. Aside from that fact, Mr. Roosevelt has indicated that he will challenge the accuracy of some statements made by his opponent. It may be taken for granted that Mr. Willkie will hasten to reply.

Active campaigning on the part of the candidates for that great political office, the Presidency, is always a healthy sign of democracy in action. It has been readily understood that Mr. Roosevelt could not spend as much time as his opponent in appealing for votes. Yet every candidate who seeks a new mandate from the people is under obligation to outline the policies he intends to pursue.

Since Mr. Willkie has been calling upon the President to debate the campaign issues with him, this more active role on the part of the latter should be mutually satisfactory. Certainly the voters will be better prepared to cast their ballots on November 5 if the case both for and against a third term for the President is fully presented.

Always The Same

From the Hartford Courant

The very name of Africa, where the war is now spreading, is enough to bring back a hundred romantic memories. In history, the story of Stanley and Livingstone, the building of the Suez Canal, the Boer War and the reports of explorations among native tribes kept another generation enthralled. Out of the World War came the record of Lawrence of Arabia, which, although actually taking place in Asia, has been associated by many a fireside adventurer with the same region. And the writers of fiction have done nothing to belittle this reputation which Africa has gained.

Yet although the bombing of a desert outpost may not sound as deadly as an attack over the Strand in London, in both cases men are struggling for their lives. Distance and unfamiliarity can never lessen the pain of those involved, and a soldier wounded in Sidi Barrani suffers as much as a shrapnel victim closer to home. The career of Lawrence himself indicates this truth. They have constructed a monument to him in St. Paul's Cathedral, but when he died he was a bitter recluse. That he fought among strange names and places, that he has since been regarded as the epitome of the romantic hero, that he could have had most of the honors a man can win, these were of little account. For wherever it takes place, in the town of Dover or at the oasis of Siwa, war is the same. Gen. Sherman knew that.

Long And Merry, Too

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having enjoyed and commended your editorial page many a time, I do not hesitate to insist that this time, in your editorial, "Strength Through Joy?", commenting upon the President's appointment of John B. Kelly, of Philadelphia, to head a program to increase physical fitness among Americans, this time you certainly missed the boat. You somehow overlooked the opportunity to commend a plan which, if pursued and developed in Mr. Kelly's usually competent and thorough manner—using the same qualities that twice won him the Olympic sculling championship—will prove to be one of the most far-reaching and all-important programs of the present Administration. Mr. Kelly reports that recently certain militiamen were worn out after a hike of only 5 miles—only one illustration of what our men need.

But, away beyond the demands for immediately strengthening of our boys for possible military needs is the need for a great popular program to counteract the steadily debilitating effect of our civilized habits. These words are neither fanciful nor exaggerating.

Great scientists, like Alexis Carrel, have warned in careful phrases of the danger to the white race through dropping the habits for which our bodies are fitted and by which they thrive. Men like Prof. Irving Fisher, Dr. Robert Jackson, and others from the time corners—way back in the seventeenth century — right up to today — have proved that the vital processes can be renewed and strengthened by correct living even after illness has been well developed.

Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, of Boston University, has shown that the almost universal tendency of our high school students to lose physical endurance reserve during their four-year course can be reversed—and the same in college years. As to men in business—think of them!

The program under Mr. Kelly ties up in the extension of the activities of our Public Health Department—the extension of hospital facilities, etc. But is it not more important to work to keep men well, fit and strong, than to try to cure them after they have failed?

I say it is something to shout about—to applaud wholeheartedly, this great program for the betterment of our bodies, for the very preservation of our race itself.

Oh, I know all about "a short life and a merry one," but I'd rather give the American people a merry life and a long life and prove that the two are not at all incompatible.

Date Of Riley's Birth

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I frequently, but not always, read the "Post Impressionist." I was particularly interested in the column in The Post of October 17, regarding the James Whitcomb Riley-Edgar Allan Poe hoax or forgery. Of course, it was not news; but it was, nevertheless, worth reading again.

The most interesting point in the article was contained in the last paragraph, where Mr. Barrett makes quite a striking point out of the date, October 7, 1849, the day that Poe died. Mr. Barrett thinks it worthy of comment that Riley was also born on that day.

Mr. Barrett should be a little more careful in checking up his dates. James Whitcomb Riley was born in 1853. ALBERT D. RUST.

"Counter-Irritant"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Anent Pegler's widow and her mite of income tax with whom he commiserated so movingly in several hundred words a few days ago, I suggest that he comfort the dolorous lady with the inspiring thought that her enforced contribution to the United States Treasury may have gone toward the upkeep of Hamilton Fish, or Rush Holt, or Gerald P. Nye, or Marcantonio, or Bruce Barton — mother's-darling-mustn't-die-for-dear-old-Dong Dang Barton.

What a counter-irritant such contemplation ought to prove to all who can't see the Roosevelt family except through bilious green spectacles! JUDY O'GRADY.
Washington, Oct. 16.

Tch! Tch!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Regarding Mr. Mark Sullivan's column in The Post of October 15 in which he takes Fellow Columnist Dorothy Thompson severely to task for supporting the third-term candidate after formerly criticizing his policies, I beg to report surprise and astonishment at Mr. Sullivan's action.

Can Mr. Sullivan be a gentleman of the old school and not realize that it is ever the prerogative of the ladies to change their minds at any time, any place and in any manner without being required to assign reasons therefor? And if reasons are given, that they must be accepted as stated? And here we find him carrying on an argument with Miss Thompson. Tch! Tch! Political campaigns these days get more rough and tumble every day.

I shall scan your paper eagerly during the next few days in search of Mr. Sullivan's apology to Miss Thompson. Never argue with a lady. H. W. ZEIGLER.
Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 15.

Significant Response

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The early and huge response of young men to the country's call for selective service is of historical significance. It should prove once and for all that, despite evidences of disagreements over national and international policies, the young people are united and ready to defend their country on land, on the sea, or in the air, when and if the National Government calls for service.

It should serve as a warning to all nations who may have designs on participation in the affairs and through the resources of America, without first securing the permission of the American people and its elective authority, that the United States, through its young people, will not countenance such interference with its internal affairs, and will draw the sword and unshield the massive guns only in case the North American Continent is confronted with attack.

America does not want war, neither does she wish to become involved in the age-old quarrels of Europe, nor will she be high-pressured into a war of aggression by any one country. Yet, if she is, God pity the power that makes this step possible. There will be a day of reckoning. God bless American young men who have shown that service is still one of the ideals of this great American democracy.

FREDERIC GERHARDT FROST.
Washington, Oct. 18.

Not Unconcerned

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am one of the collegiate class of Americans—a male citizen 20 years old who, along with over a million others, went to college this fall. There has been a lot of talk about us and our youth organizations and how we are to fit into the Selective Service Act. Many say we are unconcerned, but are we?

In contrast to the lackadaisical few, I state herewith the place I and other true American students will share in making America and the Americas fortified countries against the self-centered, conceited, egotistical maniacs spreading their filth over the remnants of democracy in Europe.

If at any period during my college career I am called into the defense program under the banner of true democracy I shall not hesitate in answering that call, for no sacrifice is too great when one is fighting for the preservation of human lives and liberties that are destroyed yesterday, today, and tomorrow.

In the event the call does not affect me I shall continue my studies in geology, a study that will, in cooperation with these studies of other students, liberate the United States from depending on foreign countries for minerals like tin and manganese.

For mental recreation I and other students will not attend different bull sessions every night, but panel discussions on current topics.

I state these small examples of my part in a fortified America as a small individual among millions. However, these things are uniting us today as the colonists united in 1776. They are the key to an unlimited greater America, resulting in an everlasting peace made by the individual. A peace unlike Versailles, but a peace that I as an individual along with others shall dedicate my life to in my part in national defense. C. L. BUTTS.
Washington, Oct. 16.

German Expressions

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a recent morning broadcast by one of our nationally known commentators mention was made of the Nazi threat to substitute, not only in the British Empire, but in this country, the German language for English.

This threat would appear laughable were it not that the ever increasing habit of the press and radio, commentator and columnist, to inject German terms into their utterances, especially those of the most recent coinage, which adds fuel to the fire. Where the use of these expressions was originally prompted by the intention of holding them up to ridicule, the constant repetition, has on the contrary, produced quite the opposite effect and may easily lead to the thought that this country is ripe for the substitution.

First it was "Zeit Geist," which long ago seems to have become strongly intrenched in the writings of our foremost scribes. Now we get "Blitzkrieg," "Strafe" (not always correctly pronounced), "Luft Waffe," "Drang nach Osten," etc., any one of which have English equivalents fully capable of equal force, aside from being intelligible to all. It is hardly possible that our writers are so lacking in their knowledge of our beloved language that they are willing to aid and abet a threat by a practice which leads strongly to the suspicion of Fifth Column activities.

Let The Post set an example by avoiding the use of alien terms, which only arouse one's ire and threaten the purity of the English language. MAY G. SPAHR.

The Post Impressionist

Autumn Elegy

Now that the summer boarders have returned to the city and their offspring are, one supposes, wrestling with long division instead of acting as crop-destroyers, Cliff would like to forget it all and lay the summer people quietly away for the winter, while he goes about his business of cutting cord wood. I tried to shake him out of his indifference to the subject and to draw out something nice in the way of a tribute to the departed, but the results were poor. To him, the city folks are like certain ephemerae which have a brief summer season and disappear as mysteriously as they come. Cliff cannot imagine any life for summer people between the moment when the train switches them out of his way and a remote summer when they, or others like them, will suddenly reappear.

Cliff finds the summer people quite as quaint as they find him. His attitude toward them is like that of another native toward his rather stupid small daughter. The father remarks tolerantly, "She'll prob'ly brighten up by and by." Cliff's similar attitude of patient hopefulness toward the summer people is interesting to me. However puzzled by their behavior patterns he may be, he notes with pride any signs of "brightening up."

Among their habits, a propensity for strolling in the fields is amazing to Cliff. Seeing groups of people dotting the landscape and picking bouquets of "weeds," Cliff concludes that they are summer folks. With the exception of children going berrying or a farmer hunting for a lost heifer, few country folks have time to stroll in the fields.

Worst of all, summer people like to walk in the mowing when it is, so to speak, "dew-pearled," with damaging results to the hay. Cliff tries patiently to teach them that bars and gates should remain in the status quo. But the summer folks, who at home are Harvard or Princeton professors, catch on with difficulty.

Cliff is amazed at the enthusiasm of the summer people for "eating out." To him, eating is a pleasure best savored in the bosom of the family. Cliff says that though a farmer's wife may have washed tons of milk pails and canned bushels of fruit, it never occurs to the family to drive down to the village hotel for dinner and give mother a rest. It probably occurs to mother least of all. The only time she eats out is at church suppers or the county fair.

To her, a faint sense of impropriety hangs around the idea of dining at the local hostlery. This is a doubtful pleasure reserved for "traveling men" and for the summer people who are, I fear, changing these taverns into something less robust than the old country hotel.

At these hotels, eating is the nearest approach to total democracy which we shall experience this side of heaven. The long tables know no distinctions of rank and it requires something akin to repealing the laws of nature to secure a private table. I doubt if the influx of city boarders has changed the custom of arranging the celery upright in vases or of serving pickles in a dish the cover of which is a blue hen engaged in her biological function of sitting on the nest. These dishes were once given, I think, as premiums with soap, but today they are considered authentic antiques and are much desired by collectors.

Upon sufficient provocation, Cliff's friendly tolerance of summer folk turns to justified rage. The incident of Grandma Pike's chair is an example of what I mean. For years, Grandma sat by the window of her farm-kitchen, looking out over the hills and taking what comfort she could in her crippled condition from the few passers and the rhythm of the changing seasons. She had not been dead very long when a collector, who had long coveted her chair, flashed a bill before her son and brightly tried to persuade him to sell his mother's chair. The son is not very talkative and he just said that he guessed he wouldn't sell it for awhile. But Cliff remembers the expression on his face and the way he stood looking out of the kitchen window a long time after the city fellow had disappeared around a turn in the road.

Cliff thinks that the writer folks, in the summer colony are the queerest of all. There is one novelist who looks as innocent as a lamb, but his books are different, Cliff read one of them. It was about people who use odd language and cut such capers that Cliff says they would be in jail if they lived around these parts. He can't think where the moral little author gets such advanced ideas.

There is an island which looks from the mainland like a scrap of turquoise set in silver. Wreckers have carried on their trade there. The fishing colony, with its little boats bearing names of sweethearts and wives, is better material than ever Pierre Loti had to work on. There are feuds and knifings among the fishermen, and outlanders are given to understand they are not wanted. The Coast Guard keeps up its ceaseless patrol night and day around the island. The lighthouse beam flashes and dies, and rare birds beat against its bright glass. On moonlight nights lovers dot the sands and the hard-shell roads and the island is warm with laughter and music.

One day a writer fellow was leaving for the city. He took his pipe out of his mouth and with one last look at the island he delivered himself in a strong Brooklyn accent of the following gem which Cliff, though he is not gifted with much imagination, still finds very funny:

"There must be a lot of material around here for fictional purposes if one could only find it!"

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Direction Of The National Defense

IT HAS BEEN EVIDENT since last spring that the present organization could at best work satisfactorily only in the first phase of the national defense program. We may define the first phase as that of placing Government contracts with private firms for the manufacture of the weapons and other supplies called for by the Navy and the Army. We are within sight of the end of this first phase. Contracts have been let for about three-quarters of the funds appropriated by Congress and it is said that the remainder will be under contract within a month. Whether $12,000,000,000 worth of contracts could have been negotiated in less time is debatable. What is reasonably clear is that such delay as there has been would not have been avoided if Mr. Knudsen had, in addition to being the pivotal member of the Advisory Commission, been its titular chairman.

Be that as it may, the important fact now is that the contracts are almost completed, and we are therefore at the second and much more difficult phase of the whole undertaking to arm and defend the Nation. In this new phase there are three great elements: first, to produce at maximum speed the goods contracted for under the current program; second, to develop plans for a second program of still greater scope, though probably more specialized, to prepare for future eventualities; third, to organize the supreme command of the planning, the training, and the disposition of the armed forces.

IT IS REPORTED by Messrs. Alsop and Kintner that a plan is now under consideration to ask Congress to establish a council of five members, including the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of War and three others, which with a chairman appointed by the President, would direct the national defense. If this is the plan, it does not, it seems to me, quite meet the situation. For what is needed, I submit, is not another agency alongside the existing cabinet and the existing independent offices but a small, compact cabinet which exercises all the powers granted by Congress and has full responsibility over all questions—diplomatic, strategic, military, economic and social—which are involved in the total problem of national defense.

Whether it should be called the National Defense Cabinet or the Supreme Council of National Defense is immaterial. What matters is that it should not be merely advisory, that its authority over all branches of the Administration should be clear and not dependent upon delegation from the President, and that it should be responsible not for one aspect of the national defense, such as the production of materials, but for the national defense as one indivisible task. The "chairman" of such a defense cabinet would in the nature of things be the Chief Executive and the Commander-in-Chief, that is to say the President. In this cabinet all great questions of policy should be determined, and the decisions of this cabinet should be binding upon all departments of the Administration. This cabinet would with the President be accountable to Congress and to the people for the whole conduct of the national defense. The responsibility would be concentrated in them and all the other department heads would take their orders from the cabinet of national defense.

THE REASONS why some such super-cabinet or inner cabinet is needed can be made plain, I think, when we consider what it will mean (1) to accelerate production under existing contracts, (2) to plan an enlarged and more specialized program over and above the existing contracts and (3) to organize the supreme command of the armed forces.

Thus, the problem of accelerating production under existing contracts involves among other things the following elements: It is important to simplify and standardize the specifications of the Army and Navy, and also in some cases to diversify the specifications where plants exist that can produce an article which, though not exactly what is demanded, is nevertheless a practical substitute. The necessary decisions must be taken by a council superior to the departments themselves if there is not to be bureaucratic delay.

To accelerate production it is necessary to relax restrictions which interfere with the maximum output of the existing plants. It is necessary to impose discipline on contractors or sub-contractors who do not cooperate wholeheartedly. It is necessary to determine priorities in materials, credits, labor, transportation among the defense contractors and also as between the defense contractors and ordinary business. Only an organ of Government recognized as charged with supreme responsibility for the national defense can have the authority and the prestige to do these things; they will not be done by the separate heads of the existing departments.

THE TASKS of planning an enlargement of the existing program and of conducting the high command of the armed forces are inseparable. Only the highest organ of the Government, the President and his highest aids and advisers, can decide what will be required in the future and what dispositions should be made currently, in order to deal with the diplomatic and strategic position of the country. Diplomacy, armaments, and the regulation of shipping, of exports and imports are so organically interrelated that there can be no sound policy in one field unless it is the policy in all these fields. It is evident, for example, that in the Far East the problem of embargoes against Japan, the problem of help to China, the problem of where to station the fleet, the problem of the bases for the fleet in the Pacific, the problem of sending help to the British Isles, the problem of our stake in the British fleet, are such interrelated and interacting problems that they must always be treated as one great problem of national defense.

That is what is meant by saying that it is necessary to organize the high command. The only place where the high command can be located is in the President and a cabinet which direct, though obviously they cannot and should not themselves personally administer, the diplomacy, the armed forces, and the economic power of the nation.

IT IS INDICATED, I suppose, that such a cabinet of national defense should include the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Navy, and the Secretary of War. It should also include a chief of economic mobilization—that is to say someone who exercises all the powers over priorities. It would be well if at least one and preferably two members were, as they say abroad, cabinet members without portfolio. One of them might well be the defeated candidate for President. The other should be the wisest available officer from the Navy, the Army, or the Air Corps who is learned and gifted in strategy and tactics.

Including the President, such a cabinet would consist of six or seven men—a sufficiently large number to be representative and not too large to consult intimately and to decide promptly. It would differ from the existing cabinet in that it would not be cluttered up with departmental problems of no real importance to the main task of national defense. It would differ from the existing organization in Washington not only in that authority would be concentrated and responsibility fixed but also in that the highest questions of policy would regularly be determined by responsible official consultation. It would thus reduce the apprehension of those who feel that the President today bears too much responsibility too personally, and it would mitigate the apprehension of those who wonder how Mr. Willkie with his obvious inexperience could under the circumstances take over the complicated burdens of the Presidency. For though such an organization would concentrate the defense authority of the government, the concentration would be in a small cabinet council and not in one man.

Fair Enough

Documentary Proof

A DOCUMENT comes to hand which supports my contention that the American Newspaper Guild is dominated by the Communist Party. This C. I. O. Union, of which Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt determined to remain a member, although she never has been eligible for membership, has angrily resented the public disclosure of Communist domination. Even some of the anti-Communists have tried to smother the truth, because they felt that the truth would give their organization a bad name.

However, since the national convention in Memphis, in which two Muscovite groups put on a mock fight and then ganged up on the Americans to keep control within the party and silence a proposed condemnation of communism, the situation has become so bad that the Americans in the guild have abandoned their pretense of solidarity.

AN APPEAL nas now been circulated in New York by the Americans in the guild admitting that the Communists have seriously harmed the union.

"A crisis faces the American Newspaper Guild throughout the country," says the opening sentence of this circular, to which George Britt, of the World-Telegram, and Lewis Gannett, the book reviewer of the Herald Tribune, among others, have subscribed their names. Mr. Gannett, incidentally, was one of those who not long ago decried the raising of the issue of communism, insisting that "red-baiting" made for disunion and provided material for hostile, if factual, critics outside the organization. Now, however, he admits that the Communists have created a crisis in the life of the guild.

"Despite the year-long strike in Chicago," says the appeal, "the employes of the Chicago Herald-American, by a 4-to-1 vote, chose to be represented by company-sponsored unions."

This refers to the new A. F. of L. Editorial Union of Americans who want collective bargaining power without Communist control.

THE COMMUNISTS took the Chicago Hearst people through a terrible experience — which resulted in the premature destruction of hundreds of jobs and a hearty denunciation of the guild by the men of the A. F. of L. crafts, who also lost their jobs when the old Herald-Examiner went out of business.

As to the guild's responsibility for the paper's demise the guild has taken two positions. The Herald-Examiner was shaky anyway, but during the long strike and boycott on the paper's advertisers the guild jubilantly boasted of the decline of its advertising lineage and revenue. But when the paper blew up, the guild sensed the wrath of those whose field of employment had been finally and totally closed. The guild then disclaimed responsibility for this personal calamity to so many men and their families.

"In New York," says the document, "the situation may become equally serious. Signs of disaffection are already making themselves felt in such units as the Times and Mirror, where a small minority of employes are attempting to organize A. F. of L. editorial unions."

THAT IS CORRECT, except that on these two papers the A. F. of L. movement is much stronger than the phrase "a small minority" would suggest. The Americans are mad over the harassment, spying, conniving and arrogance of the Moscow group and are quitting in such numbers as to discredit the guild's claim that it is the bargaining agent of the editorial workers.

The circular from which I am quoting, beyond admitting that the Communists have brought about a crisis, appeals to the American members to attend meetings regularly — which, of course, they will not do—and to compel American delegates to the representative assembly to attend meetings of that body. It is in the representative assembly that the Muscovites get in their dirty work.

"As a result (the failure of American delegates to attend the R. A.) actions have sometimes been taken which we believe are unrepresentative of the sentiment of the membership and prejudicial to the guild," the appeal says.

THE DOCUMENT then reveals that the notices of the R. A. meeting at which conscription was to be considered did not announce that this question was on the agenda. Consequently the Communists were able to put over a condemnation of conscription by a majority of a meeting attended by only one-third of the delegates. The Communist Party line, of course, opposes conscription and all preparations for national defense.

Although the appeal does not mention communism and Communists, one of the men who signed it frankly says that they are the enemy within the guild, against whom this cry of alarm has been sounded. The guild suffered its worst blow in Memphis, when, in a parliamentary and political test, the Communists outsmarted the Americans to reelect the Communist control centered in New York and defeat a resolution against communism. However, the Muscovites have grown too big for their britches, because the Americans who haven't quit now realize that if they don't recapture control they, too, will have to get out.

Sitzkrieg To Blitzkrieg

CAPT. RENE DE CHAMBRUN, a descendant of Lafayette and the son-in-law of Pierre Laval, leader of the Vichy government in surrendered France, gives his eyewitness story of war on the French front and adds his own Rightist political interpretation and a plea for the "devoted patriots" of Vichy, in "I Saw France Fall: Will She Rise Again?" (Morrow, $2.50).

Heinz Pol—a German journalist, close friend of the Nobel Prize winner Ossietzky, who was arrested by the Nazis on the night of the Reichstag fire, escaped first to Czecho-Slovakia, then to France, where he was for a time interned, then to the United States—gives his Leftist political interpretation of the same events in "Suicide of a Democracy" (Reynal & Hitchcock, $2.50).

And Mollie Panter-Downes' "Letter From England" (Little, Brown, $2), made up of those portraits of the British spirit which appeared in "The New Yorker" September 3, 1939, to September 14, 1940, gives a heartbreakingly gay picture of London awakening, in the midst of war, to war. Here are the moods of England, from week to week through the first year of the war, as dead forever and as accurate as a series of pressed flowers in an herbarium.

IN SEPTEMBER, 1939, Londoners are playing with gas masks and chuckling at the ads in the Times about air-raid shelters for dogs. In October Mollie Panter-Downes can write: "In London one never hears an airplane." As late as April London is cheerful about Norway; Hitler, Neville Chamberlain was saying, had "missed the bus." In June, London is still shocked at the havoc wrought to the lobelias by careless shelter-diggers; but before the end of the month Mollie Panter-Downes is wondering whether the British are "the bravest or merely the most stupid people in the world" —or both. In July, London is "one of the most exhilarating cities in the world;" in August people are surprised that the Germans raid so little; in September commuters argue in the trains as to whose neighborhood has the biggest bomb-craters, and they are all a little too cheerful about the coming American aid, as the French were about British aid.

For in a sense this British diary stretches out a little longer the story of changing French moods told by Capt. de Chambrun. He was mobilized on August 22, 1939, and sent to a fort in the Maginot Line, where life was a little uncomfortable but lazy and gay. The Frenchman tells gayly of the curly-haired dressmakers' model which the poilus stole from a shop window and tucked into the captain's bed; but he resents the British gayety about "patrol parties." Capt. de Chambrun was sent to the British sector as liaison officer, but his story is full of casual revelations of the difficulty of one nation's understanding another's nation's war moods.

Those were the days when men still puzzled over the quiet front, and talked of a "phony war." Capt. de Chambrun is very bitter about such talk and hotly suggests that it was all Communist-Nazi propaganda.

On May 5 De Chambrun was promoted from lieutenant to captain; on May 10 the blitzkrieg burst out, and De Chambrun was in the midst of it, near Lille. The next 50 pages of his book are as vivid an eyewitness story of the confusion of disaster as I have seen. De Chambrun forgets his political grudges and writes as a soldier.

HE CAPTURED a parachutist four hours after the bombing began, and got valuable information from him. He was ordered into Belgium, and was blocked on roads swarming with frightened refugees. "Often, since those days," he says, "I have wondered whether the art of blocking the roads of a country was not the secret weapon of which Hitler used to boast. During the whole campaign in France I saw no other." He slept an hour in Alost, while a British military policeman stood watch; he took refuge in a ditch when the Heinkels came swooping murderously low; he heard tales of carelessness that amounted to treason; he met German agents rousing the refugees to more confusion and panic; he slipped into Arras just before its capture with a haughty British colonel, who irritated him by remarking, "Looks as though we were in for a real show at last . . . I move that we go down there just for the fun of it;" he came close enough to German tanks to hide behind trees; was given documents to carry to Paris, riding to Dover in a speedboat while the German bombers soared overhead, and back to Paris in a little grasshopper plane, flown by its pilot-owner who was not quite sure that he had gas enough for the journey.

Then on a mission to America, and back to Vichy and to politics.

Rene de Chambrun worships his father-in-law, Laval, and Petain, and Gen. Weygand; they are villains to Heinz Pol, who tells angrily of the prewar relations of these Vichy men with the Croix de Feu and other near-Fascist organizations, of Laval's intrigues against England and with Italy, of Weygand's opposition to motorization of the army and dumb faith that tanks were purely defensive weapons. Heinz Pol's writing lacks the charm of the Capt. Count de Chambrun; it carries more conviction.

Twitchell Registers

"Well, I go down and register. I am now on the waiting list and every time my phone rings I think maybe it is a call to see if I am healthy, single and of no special help to relatives," said Luke Twitchell, Elmer's young brother, resignedly. "Okay, and no complaints by me, but I don't feel no glow.

"I think I am going to feel noble and all that but after I have registered I feel the same as before. It was the same as if I was lining up to vote, get a free turkey or see a Chaplin movie. What I mean, I ain't hot. At no time do I feel like Paul Revere, Sergt. York, the Drummer Boy of Shiloh or Dorothy Thompson.

"Now I ain't no dope and I know this is a patriotic duty, a fine symbol of democracy and all strictly on the up and up, and when war comes I will get in there and do my bit for the old Red, White and Blue, but why don't I get no glow? Why do I feel more like Gus P. Doakes than Nathan Hale? Why do I feel more like a four-minute egg than a minute man? Why do I feel more like the headache of 1940 than the Spirit of '76, what I mean?"

Luke was bothered. "Well," he resumed, "I guess it is just because this war is such a mess and the whole world is in such a cockeyed condition. A paperhanger makes a crazy quilt of Europe, a bald-headed fat guy with a newsreel complex jumps in as an accomplice, the Japs, with a war on their hands already, decide to look for more trouble, Russia acts like she was getting an audition for 'Hellzapoppin,' and armies everywhere lay off fighting armies and concentrate on fighting the civilians! What I mean, is it any wonder a guy registering for a possible part in this mess don't get no kick out of it at this time, what I mean?

"And maybe why I don't get no glow is on account of the bungling by the democratic countries, which goes for Yankee Doodle, too. He makes the first airplane, he shows the world how to make the best ones, and in an emergency he ain't got enough planes to protect himself! He spends himself blue in the face saving democracy and when trouble comes he finds he ain't got the things he ought to have to save democracy.

"Uncle Sam comes face to face with a situation where he needs a burglar alarm, a steel helmet and a gun, and all he has is a sedan, an electric ice-box, a de luxe radio, a map showing the best picnic parks, six booklets on ideal week-end motor tours and a new economic order! What I mean, it makes me kind of sick.

"And on top of it all I register for conscription in the middle of a political campaign in which both sides say the other will make the country a pushover for a low puncher, and a lot of people demonstrate their democracy by throwing tomatoes! It has me a little muddled. As I said before, I am no squawker against conscription and I think it strictly okay. But with things like they are, am I subnormal if I don't feel like no Green Mountain boy, what I mean?"

Political Speeches

By Mark Sullivan

'The President' Or 'Mr. Roosevelt'

AT THE PRECEDING press conference, three days before, Mr. Roosevelt had told the correspondents that during the remainder of the campaign he would make two political speeches—that is, speeches made in the role of candidate for a third term, as distinguished from speeches made as President of the United States.

The distinction between these two roles, and the respective speeches made in each, has been a slight headache for Mr. Roosevelt, and at least a humorously pretended headache for his political opponents, as well as perhaps a puzzlement to the public. To save hearers and readers from the inconvenience of determining which of Mr. Roosevelt's utterances is political and which Presidential, a method of labeling has been thoughtfully arranged. When the Democratic National Committee pays the cost of the radio time and the expense of the trip, it is a political speech. When the Government pays the expense of the trip, and the radio time is donated to the President as a public official, that is a Presidential speech. Thus, the public is benevolently enabled to know when Mr. Roosevelt is appealing impartially and officially to all the people, in the interest of national defense, and when he is seeking votes for himself.

ANYHOW, Mr. Roosevelt had said, earlier, that he was going to make two political speeches. (Though his statement did not preclude his making more.) Then, two days later, announcement had been made by the Democratic National chairman, Mr. Flynn, that five political speeches would be made by the President. (When does one say "the President," and when "Mr. Roosevelt?" To one who tries to practice precision, this duality of Franklin Roosevelt is very awkward.)

This enlargement of the program of political speeches had caused comment, some of it excited and not free from invidiousness. Republican Presidential Candidate Willkie had mentioned it with a manner of taking credit, as if he had put Mr. Roosevelt on the defensive. Republicans, who of course would say nothing disrespectful about the President of the United States, were so colloquial about the candidate for a third term as to say they had "got Mr. Roosevelt's goat."

SO, AT THE NEXT press conference, the correspondents trooped in expecting to learn, from the most authoritative source, just why the political speeches had been increased by 150 per cent. That the question would be asked was of course anticipated by Mr. Roosevelt. Considerately, he had prepared the answer. He read it to us, and directed his secretary to supply us with copies. It read:

"In the speech of acceptance to the Democratic Convention on July 19, 1940, the President said:

"'I shall not have the time or the inclination to engage in any purely political debate. But I shall never be loathe to call the attention of the Nation to deliberate or unwitting falsifications of fact.'

"There has been in this campaign, however, a systematic program of falsification of fact by the opposition. The President does not believe that it has been an unwitting falsification of fact. He believes it is a deliberate falsification of fact. He has, therefore, decided to tell the American people what these misrepresentations have been and in what respect they are false. With that purpose in mind, the President will make five speeches between now and election day."

TO THIS announcement from the President, there was, from the correspondents, only one question designed to bring about amplification. Someone asked, "What were the misrepresentations, Mr. President?" Mr. Roosevelt, with a slight touch of confident belligerency, becoming to a champion whose supremacy has been impiously challenged, told the questioner to wait for the speeches.

Examination of the President's words, as distributed to the correspondents in mimeographed form by a gracious lady stenographer, revealed only slight basis for speculation. One observed that Mr. Roosevelt said that "The President will make five speeches." Since these speeches are announced to be political, is it precise for Mr. Roosevelt to refer to himself here as "the President?" Must it not be the other personality, the candidate for a third term, who is going to make these speeches? Apparently Mr. Roosevelt has the same difficulty as the rest of us about knowing, in varying circumstances, which Mr. Roosevelt is which.

And one observed that only a special category of falsifications are to be answered, those which are "deliberate," "systematic," and not "unwitting." Falsifications which are spontaneous and sporadic are apparently to be ignored.

THE REASON for the enlargement of the program of political speeches remained a speculation. The writer of this column makes a guess. If the guessing is wrong, understand it is carefully labeled as a guess. If the guessing is wrong as it may be, it does not fall into the category of "deliberate falsification of fact."

This writer guesses that Mr. Roosevelt may have heard what this writer has heard. From various sources of political judgment, including newspaper correspondents who have been out through the country assaying sentiment, one heard a judgment so often repeated as to be practically universal. It is that the election is going to be close. Another frequent report is that the registration is extremely heavy. Another is that an extraordinary number of people are, as the Gallup poll confirms, declining to say how they will vote.

If those three reports be added up, and interpreted as they would be interpreted by so astute a politician as Mr. Roosevelt, they would lead to a deduction which might cause Mr. Roosevelt to deem it prudent to enlarge his political activity.

Bygone Elections

By Paul N. Furman

An Editor Is Beaten

DURING his first Administration Gen. Grant assumed that politics could be run by general orders as an army could be commanded. That mistake alienated a large portion of the Republicans.

HORACE GREELEY

Since the days of Jackson there had been wholesale removals from office as power alternated from party to party. Lincoln drove Democrats out of every department. Johnson was restrained from substituting Democrats by Congress under the Tenure of Office Act, so Grant had a few Democrats to expel.

Gen. Grant was renominated unanimously by the Republican Convention which met in Philadelphia, June 5, 1872. Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts, was named as his running mate.

OPPOSITION to Grant's reelection took concrete form at a convention of Liberal Republicans in Cincinnati on May 1. On the sixth ballot it nominated Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, then the most influential paper in this country. B. Gratz Brown was offered for Vice President. The Democrats met in Baltimore on July 9 and indorsed these nominations.

The Prohibition Party made its first nomination. They were James Black, of Pennsylvania, for President, and John Russell, of Michigan, for second place. Labor also entered the field for the first time, naming as candidates of the Labor Reformers Judge David Davis, of Illinois, executor of Abraham Lincoln, for President, and Joel Parker, of New Jersey, for Vice President. Charles O'Conor, of New York, Democratic candidate.

Grant and Wilson won the popular vote. Greeley died before the Electoral College met. His vote went to Grant and others.

Court Action Filed By Veteran in Row Over Appointment

Baltimore, Oct. 18 (AP).—An injunction petition was filed against the State roads commission in Baltimore City Court late today to force the appointment of Elwood Schafer of Cumberland as superintendent of the new Susquehanna toll bridge at Havre de Grace.

The petition, drawn by G. C. A. Anderson, of Baltimore, Schafer's attorney, asserted the roads commission violated the veteran's preference law by "passing over" Schafer on the eligible list and appointing Elmer White, of Salisbury. Schafer is a veteran, White is not.

Schafer further charged the roads commission was paying White illegally from toll bridge revenues and had "willfully, deliberately and unlawfully" violated the State civil service law by "withholding" White's name from pay rolls submitted to the State employment commissioner.

U. S. Women's Hip Tonnage Seen Increased

Designers Blame Excessive Sitting For Figure Fault

By Ida Jean Kain

THE DESIGNERS are coming right out and saying that the feminine hipline is fuller than it used to be, and that sitting is to blame! Women never walk when they can ride and it appears they can practically always ride!

To get the "full effect" in measuring, circle the tape around the largest part to include the derriere. That is the area most affected by sitting. According to specifications, hips that measure 1 to 2 inches larger than the bust are streamlined; hips that measure 3 inches larger are the average; hips that measure 4 inches larger are full. Anything beyond that means the old rocking chair has got you!

Value Walking

Walking is excellent for keeping the hips trimmed down, but to reduce this measurement specific exercise is in order. If your weight is more than 10 per cent above normal, you will have to make some concession to the calories, too. Trim the fat off the meat, never use more than one slice of bread and one pat of butter per meal, and always take fruit for dessert. That small amount of dieting will be enough to take care of a minor weight problem.

There are all kinds of exercises to slim the hips and the ones that are best for you depend on your particular hip problem. The best possible means of reducing the back portion of the hipline is by leg-swinging, bringing the legs high up in back. Here is the exact way to swing it:

For the Hips

POSITION: Standing with one hand against a door jamb or on a heavy chair for support.

MOVEMENT: Swing the leg up in front, then high up in back, keeping the knee straight and bending forward at the waist to increase the backward swing. Start with 12 counts of each leg and gradually increase to 25 counts each, later to 50. If you mean business, you can eventually do 100 swings with each leg. Rest between each 25 counts, and at the finish shake each leg loosely to rid the muscles of tension. Otherwise, it will hold over and you'll ache!

A short side back kick is very effective in reaching the bulges on the sides of the hips. Make sure that the angle is right.

POSITION: Standing, hand on chairback for support.

MOVEMENT: Kick to the side back with the leg in short, quick thrusts from the hips, with knees straight. Always shake the tension out of eac leg when you finish these exercises.

Rolling is the best means of smoothing the hipline—straight rolling for a general hip problem; rolling in a semi-sitting position for that easy-chair spread, and rolling over on the thighline for thigh bulges.

INTERNATIONAL trade relations are not nearly as isolated from the styles we wear as might be supposed. Fashion-conscious women are discussing "conditions with South America" as intimately as if they were personal envoys of Secretary Hull.

In truth there are many unsung Hulls in the world of fashion, not the least of whom is a young woman who has recently taken over the duties of running the oldest jewelry firm in America—located in the heart of Washington. Smitten with the fascination of South America's jewelled treasures, unknown to the average North American, this expert has obtained a fabulous collection of rare Andes Mountain emeralds which will be on public display all of next week.

Famous Display

One of the world's most rounded displays of the fiery emerald, this collection is worth approximately $250,000 and is of educational as well as artistic interest. The gems were sent here from Colombia, the main source of emeralds today, where 1,000 years ago the same rock foundations supplied the wealthy Inca Indians. (The history of the emerald dates as far back as Cleopatra, who adored them, and Nero, who used them to protect his eyes from the sun.)

Today this May birthstone gem is the most coveted jewel of stage, screen and society celebrities, who respond to its vivid green fire and often wear one single glittering stone as the solitary adornment of a plain black outfit. Another reason for its popularity may be its costliness. The emerald is worth three and one-half times the value of the diamond although there are said to be few "perfect" emeralds in the world.

Emerald Types

Gray, amber, deep brown, navy, vintage, flesh and, above all, white, are best color foil for the emerald's gleam. It imparts more fire to the redhead and Latin-skinned brunette than almost any stone, but is also glamorous on gray-haired women with fine pink-white skin. Cosmetics should never be used with a heavy hand in "competition" with emeralds since the effect is apt to be too much dazzling color if lips and nails or of equal intensity.

Care of Furs

Lupe Velez offers the following ideas about caring for your furs: If you aren't going to be wearing your furs for about two weeks, wrap newspapers around it while it hangs in the closet; Always hang your furs on long-neck hangers so the collar doesn't rub on the rack above; never brush your furs with your hands—friction causes wear—shake them out instead!

Gems From the Andes

Mrs. Mrs. Bazil Cooper, the former Dorothy Gould Fowler, popular young socialite, poses in several thousand dollars worth of precious emeralds brought up from the Andes to round out a display of these gems to be shown next week at a local store. The matched carved set of necklace, crab-shaped pin, bracelet and ring are set in diamonds and pearls, the better to exhibit the emeralds' gleam

Solving Heart Problems, Finding Jobs, All Routine for Travelers Aid Workers

If you've ever asked a question of Travelers Aid Society workers in a strange city, you are familiar with their courtesy and patience. You may not know, however, that they not only answer questions but often help new arrivals find jobs, persuade inexperienced job-hunters to return home and talk youngsters out of the idea of running away. Mary Henderson Graham, of the Union Station branch, tells of a pitifully deformed young woman who came to her attention recently. "We learned she had left home because she felt inferior about her appearance," she says. "She's now having plastic surgery treatments here and is training for domestic service. Soon she will go back to her family improved in looks and ready for a job."

MRS. GRAHAM

In many such cases, Travelers Aid receives cooperation from other social agencies. There was the unmarried mother-to-be, for instance, who asked Mrs. Graham for help in findings lodgings. "I soon learned the girl's predicament," she explains, "and arranged for her to go to the Florence Crittenton Home and later find work. We looked out for her for more than two years.

One thing that pleases us is the gratitude of our clients. Frequently they repay us, once they've gotten back on their feet, by sending a contribution to the Community Chest."

Mrs. Donald F. Roberts, of Edgemoor, Md., whose home is for sale, was surprised the other day when a strange milkman approached her with a genial smile and a free quart of milk. "Just my way of acquainting newcomers with our product," he explained. "But I haven't bought this house," Mrs. Roberts interrupted; "I'm the one that's trying to sell it—and I get my milk from another company anyway." His smile of welcome faded, and, after retrieving the milk, he went on his way.

SAID-TO-BE-TRUE STORIES—Delegates to a convention here wore badges on which the name of their State was printed. One woman went up to another, introduced herself, then read off the letters arranged vertically on the other's badge. "I-O-W-A," she spelled. "What's that—something like the PWA?" . . . A Washington cop stopped an out-of-town speeder and asked the man where he lived. "Cincinnati," was the reply. "Then what're you doing with Ohio tags?" the officer demanded.

SHOPPING AROUND—Few salesgirls would envy the lot of their sisters assigned these days to the popular turban counters. For hours at a time the clerks must wind strips of cloth around their heads for the benefit of customers who claim they never can get the things to look right. If you're patient, you occasionally can catch a whole row of turban-winders in action at one time—a dizzying vista of feminine elbows frendziedly churning the air.

Girl's Spanish Fiance Has Jealous Rages In Which He Strikes and Reviles Her; Yet She Loves Him To Distraction; Ill From Conflict, She Asks Help

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Four years ago, I met a Spaniard. He has been in America ten years. Two years later, we became engaged. No woman could have been happier than I. About six months after our engagement (no definite date has been set for the marriage, because of finances), we went to a dance and had our first quarrel.

It was a jealous quarrel. I danced with a boy I had known in high school. My fiance became enraged. The vile things he said can't be repeated. But when I condemned him for his actions, he slapped me; then aired a Spaniard's views of how an engaged woman should conduct herself. This quarrel left me weak for days, and although he tried to reach me the next day by telephone, I refused to talk with him.

I returned to work a week later and that first day, he met me coming from work. He fell to his knees on the sidewalk, in front of my coworkers, begging forgiveness, sobbing like a baby. Naturally I was embarrassed, but above all else, my heart went out to him. I threw my arms around him, forgetting everyone else, and was happy again. This new happiness was short-lived. Only a few weeks passed when he had another violent jealous outburst, without the slightest foundation. (I had never loved before, and I wonder if I ever will again).

I am an American of the middle-class. My father and brothers have the highest regard for womanhood. I believe my dad would die before he would strike my mother. But this man I love has bruised me many times. Always he comes back, swearing it never will happen again. But if I stand up for my rights and insist he is childish, usually it ends in a fist fight. My family knows nothing of this, but they realize something is wrong, for these emotional upsets are shattering my nerves and causing me to lose weight.

Miss Haworth, I have tried in every way to reason things out, but the minute I get the upper hand in a discussion, he walks off, calling me a fool, saying he would like to have me in Spain where the men are absolute masters. He has said he wants me to be like his mother; never to ask where he has been if he comes home late; to realize that a man can do anything, but a woman must always be sweet and pure, and a man's slave. These things make me shiver. They are so far removed from what I have known of marriage that I refuse to accept them.

My fiance is well educated but sometimes he displays the mind of a child, in giving so much consideration to petty incidents. I never know when he will fly up in the air. He will shout in a crowd until people stare. Frankly, I don't believe I can ever be happy with him; but the very thought of living without him makes me ill. He can be the kindest person I have ever known; and, again, the most brutal.

What can I do? I'm leaving soon for a vacation and I have thought I might make it permanent, as I feel I can't go on much longer. Is this a case of "East meets West?" How can I find happiness again, and peace of mind? I want so much to live without shouting and quarreling; I'm so weary of it all. I feel you are capable of advising me, and I will respect your opinions. Please answer at once. BETH.

Girl's Not in Love; She's Mesmerized

DEAR BETH: Your feeling for this man is no longer love. It is a form of psychic illness that you must throw off, if ever you are to know peace of mind again. While you shiver at the thought and reject the idea of becoming passion's slave to this vaudeville-type Latin Lover, the fact stands out, crystal clear, that you are already half-embracing that ignominious and wretched role.

Already you are falling victim of insidious enslavement of spirit and the senses. The longer you struggle to adapt him to your ways and philosophy, the more do you expose yourself helplessly to the malignant mesmeric influence of his brute magnetism and Dark Ages philosophy. For every hour's tolerance you give to his address (be it angelic or demoniac, depending upon his mood), you unreel just that much more length of rope with which to hang all your hopes of happiness—in love, in youth and in marriage.

This is not exactly an illustration of "East meeting West." Rather, it is a case of Darkness meeting Light; of Reason warring with Passion; of Civilization contesting Barbarism. Or, perhaps, of the sparrow frantically sparring with the python. In any event, your common sense, your instinct for self preservation, were surging mightily to your rescue in those days immediately following that first jealous quarrel, when you refused—in shuddering distaste—even to speak with the man by telephone. And you have been playing that instinct false ever since, with every blow, every insult, every argument, every impassioned appeal for forgiveness, that you have tolerated from him.

You would be regressing to uncivilized—if not, indeed, subhuman—levels of action and reaction, if you were to try to become his wife on his terms. The undertaking would demoralize you utterly. The sick nervous tension, the spiritual degradation, would prove insupportable. You have found his performance nightmarish during these months of engagement—and undoubtedly he has shown you more consideration during this period than he would again. Therefore, "What to do" is painfully obvious.

Put as much distance between yourself and him as circumstances will permit. Renounce him, coldly and finally. Turn a deaf ear, a heart of flint, to his most poetic and fervent persuasions. Absolutely refuse to even think of him, ever again, as Might-Have-Been or Would-Be sweetheart or husband. Just now, he has all the appeal for you that the poisoned pool has for the thirst-crazed man in the desert. And to carry the metaphor further, your very life (in the sense of life worth living), depends upon resisting that appeal.

Providing you make a clean getaway from his influence now, you will be able to laugh, in years to come, at the stormy experience of having been violently courted by a spectacular Spaniard who nearly drove you crazy. Almost every attractive woman has one such mad suitor in her list of admirers; but no smart woman ever takes them seriously. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Shower 'Symphony'

For a quick pick-up after a hard day at the studio, Carole Lombard plays a tune on her spine with a shower. To be more specific, her method is this: Turn the shower on very hot and very strong; then allow it to spray on the nape of the neck (where a group of nerves that tie up in knots very easily are to be found); then bend over gradually until the spray has hit every vertebra down the length of the spine. Repeat with ice-cold water and you'll feel ready to face anything with the utmost energy!

Dry Cleaning Preserves Sizing In Carpets

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

Ideally, it's a good idea to have rugs dry cleaned occasionally. Dry cleaning preserves the sizing, keeps rugs from getting limp. When rugs are limp from having been washed they can be resized but that's an expensive job. If you can't manage to send your rugs out for a periodic dry cleaning do them yourself with a standard noninflammable rug cleaner. Have tears or burns repaired before they begin to fray.

Beware of oily mops swishing the edges of your rugs and guard against ink spills with your life.

There's no doubt that under-cushions will add years to the life of your rugs and contribute a luxurious softness underfoot. In addition, under-cushions for small rugs save many bad bumps and spills.

Introducing the Statesmen

A member of the United States Congress can be either a Senator or Representative. A member of the House of Representatives is socially introduced as Mr. Blank—not Congressman or Mr. Congressman. Now if you're introducing him officially, you might say, Mr. Blank, and add Representative from such and such a place.

When speaking to the Representative, you address him as Mr. Blank. Never say Congressman Blank or Mr. Congressman. And when you write to him formally or businesslike start your letter, "Dear Sir:" or "Sir:". Informally, you write, "Dear Mr. Blank." The formal close of the letter to him should be, "Believe Me, Yours Truly" or just "Yours Truly." Close it formally with "Faithfully yours" or "Sincerely" depending upon how well you know him.

Address the envelope thusly:
The Hon. T. C. Blank,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

The above is only the business or official way to address the envelope. Socially, he is simply, Mr. Blank.

Cheese, Ripe Olives Are Put to Work In Fall Recipe

A chance to put the flavorful good fellowship of cheese and ripe olives to work for you in autumn menus is found in the recipe for Ripe Olive Cheese Rolls. Chopped or sliced ripe olives in a savory seasoned rice, wrapped in thin pliable slices of American cheese, are broiled on toast strips to form the unusual sort of supper dish that autumn entertaining thrives upon.

For stuffings of various sorts, and for many entrees, the texture of ready-to-use chopped or sliced ripe olives is just right, and their convenience one of the reasons why entertaining is no longer the effort it once was considered.

Ripe Olive Cheese Rolls

Combine 2-3 cup chopped or sliced ripe olives, 2 cups cooked rice, salt and pepper to taste and ¼ cup chili sauce or tomato catsup and blend thoroughly. Place a portion of each on a thin slice of American cheese. Bring edges of cheese together over filling, forming a roll, and pin together with picks. Trim crust from 4 slices of toast and cut each slice into 2 strips. Place a cheese roll on each strip. Toast under broiler until cheese is slightly brown and partially melted. Cheese should be of the type that melts readily and rolls easily. Serve hot as an entree or with a vegetabl plate. Serves 4.

Chest Women Open Season at Luncheon

First Big Affair Becomes Informal Reunion With Much Waving Back And Forth After Summer Separations

BELIEVERS IN the Good Neighbor policy right here at home—members of the Community Chest—started off the season in bang-up style yesterday with a luncheon at the Mayflower.

Although many men were present, to the ladies went the credit for the success. Hostesses were members of the Community Chest League, the women's group, which is headed by Mrs. Stanley Reed.

The first big luncheon of the season found the guests holding something of an informal reunion. Many of them are just opening their homes after summers away, and there was much waving back and forth and stopping by tables to greet friends.

Mrs. Reed, who presided, had chosen for the occasion a black tailored suit with a white frill and a small black hat topped off by a jaunty green quill. Also at the head table was Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, an active welfare worker who is president of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society and vice president of the Travelers Aid Society. Mrs. J. L. Houghteling stood up to take a bow (she was in charge of arrangements for the luncheon) and looked smart in a black frock with gold embroidery edging the short sleeves and a little green turban.

Glovers There; Just Returned

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover, just back from Nonquitt, Mass., came in together and stopped to say hello to Mrs. Phillip Coffin. Mrs. Glover topped off her gray wool frock with a fur jacket and a tiny plaid turban.

The ladies present offered something of an impromptu fashion show, with furs and velvets everywhere. One of the smartest ensembles was worn by Mrs. James Clement Dunn, vice chairman of the league. With her suit of gray and mauve checked material she wore a gray pillbox hat and a fur scarf. Mrs. George A. Garrett had chosen a bright red suit with which she wore a small black hat.

The debutante set was much in evidence, handing out programs and ushering guests to their tables. Miss Peggy Lansdowne, in a checked tailleur, directed Mrs. Emory S. Land to her place. Three pretty debs wearing almost identical shades of red were the Misses Zeva Fish, Elaine Darling ton and Louise Stillwell. As they all stood together at the door, it was a bit difficult to tell them apart.

Many Notables Seen in Throng

A pretty post deb present was Miss Rose Chatfield Taylor. She was in an all gray ensemble with a hat circled with a brown velvet band.

Maj. Chauncey Parker, serving his second term as general chairman of the Chest drive; Coleman Jennings, Richard Willmer, Morris Cafritz, Newbold Noyes and Thomas Morgan were some of the men seated at the head table. Among the ladies there was Mrs. Clarence Aspinwall, who was all in black. The head table was decorated with small bowls of russet chrysanthemums and clusters of autumn leaves.

A spot of color in a group where black predominated was Mrs. G. Howland Chase's red outfit. A brown felt hat with a feather topped off her ensemble. Mrs. Lee Warren chose a black velvet suit with matching beret.

Among hundreds of others present were Mrs. Samuel Beach, Mrs. George Thorpe, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. Edward Finkenstaedt, Mrs. R. M. Kauffman, Mrs. Edward Page, Mrs. William L. Breese, who wore a cunning jockey cap with her big fur jacket; Mrs. Ernest Draper, Mrs. Clarence Grosner, Mrs. Wilbur Carr, Mrs. David Gaillard and Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith.

Shouses Move Back to Home In Georgetown

Mme. Loudon Subscribes for Candlelight Concerts

Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse have left their Virginia place, Wolf Trap Farm, where they spent the summer and early fall, and have opened their home in O street in Georgetown.

Mrs. Shouse announces that Mme. Loudon, wife of the Netherlands Minister, is among the additional subscribers to the season's Candlelight Concerts, which are to be held on Monday afternoons at the Phillips Gallery. Others who have made reservations include Mrs. Ray Atherton, Mrs. Joseph Davies, Mrs. Dean Acheson, Mrs. David Barry, Mrs. Hamilton Bryan, Mrs. Wilbur Carr, Mrs. Eugene Carusi, Mrs. William C. Crane, Mrs. John W. Davidge, Mrs. Ernest Draper, Mrs. Arthur Woods, Mrs. Richard Southgate and Mrs. Warren Pierson.

Mrs. John W. Garrett, wife of the former Ambassador to Italy, will motor over from her home in Baltimore to attend the concerts. These are not to be confused with the series inaugurated this year by the Washington Chamber Music Guild, which are to be held in the evening at the Carlton Hotel.

Junior Leaguers To Study Trend Of World Affairs

In order to keep up with the constantly changing map of the world, members of the Junior League plan to meet fortnightly on Thursday mornings, beginning October 24, for a current events class. Although thoroughly conversant with the map of social agencies in the District, many of the Junior Leaguers feel they need a bit of training in other fields.

Mrs. L. Metcalfe Walling, chairman of education, will lead the group with the aid of news outlines, discussion questions and quizzes. A prize will be awarded at the end of the year to the best informed member.

Miss Lansdowne To Bow Nov. 1

Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell have issued invitations to the debut of their daughter, Miss Margaret Lansdowne, on Friday afternoon, November 1, at the Sulgrave Club from 5 to 7.

That evening, Mrs. John R. Williams will give a dinner in honor of Miss Lansdowne, who is one of the most attractive debs of the season. Later the party will go on to the Sulgrave Club for the first of the winter's Friday supper club dances.

MISS SALLY BRADFORD SUMNER, whose engagement to Lieut. (j. g.) Lawrence V. Julihn, U. S. N., will be announced at a party to be given this afternoon by her parents, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Edward Miles Sumner . The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Edward Julihn, of 2820 Thirty-ninth Street. A graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, he is now on submarine duty at New London, Conn. Miss Sumner attended the Stuart School of Costume Design. She is a member of Tau Omicron Phi. Plans are being made for the wedding to take place at the Fort Myer Chapel in December

Mary Patricia Bartley Married To Lieut. Rawlins in Texas

Of interest to Washington was the wedding yesterday at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., of a former Capital resident, Miss Mary Patricia Bartley, daughter of Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Wannie Lee Bartley, to Lieut. Phillip C. Rawlins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip A. Rawlins, of Ardmore, Okla.

The couple were married at the post chapel, Chaplain S. J. Miller officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Chanel model of white velvet with a sweetheart neckline and full train. Her fingertip veil fell from a tiara of pearls and she carried white roses and valley lilies.

Miss Alice Bartley was maid of honor for her sister, wearing fuchsia taffeta, a halo of flowers and velvet, and carrying talisman roses. The bridesmaids were the Misses Helen Rawlins, sister of Lieut. Rawlins; Sue Thompson, Elizabeth H. Burnett, Anita Everetts and Beatrice Mosely. They wore wistaria taffeta with hats and bouquets like those of the maid of honor.

Lieut. Benjamin R. Cecan was best man, and the ushers were Lieuts. Dale T. Elliott, Edwin Holbach, Earl D. Massey and James Weibel.

A reception at the Bartley home followed the ceremony. Later the couple left for a trip by motor to north Texas and Oklahoma, after which they will live at Fort Sam Houston. Out of town guests included the bride's grandmother, Mrs. S. H. Burniside, of Washington.

Mrs. Rawlins attended school here and is a graduate of Texas State College for Women. Lieut. Rawlins attended Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College.

Mrs. Bromwell To Winter Here

Mrs. Charles Bromwell has arrived from Lake Forest, Ill., and will spend the winter here. She has taken an apartment at the Anchorage.

She will be joined shortly by her daughter, Lady Bailey, now in Montreal, Canada, where she has gone to enroll her son, David Bailey, in school. Her daughter, Miss Patricia Bailey, attends Foxcroft in Middleburg.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

MR. AND MRS. Rixey Smith will entertain at a dinner party for 40 guests this evening at their home, Gracelands, near Great Falls. The party will precede the dance given by members of the Fairfax Roosevelt Club which will not only climax the local Democratic campaign in Fairfax County but inaugurate the social season as well. The dance will be held at Willard Hall at the Fairfax Court House.

Among the guests at the Smiths party will be the Comptroller of the Currency and Mrs. Preston Delano, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Seal, Professor and Mrs. Edward Acheson, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Boothe, Mr. and Mrs. J. Douglas Rollow, Assistant Attorney General and Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Arnold and Mr. and Mrs. Pendleton Talfaferro.

Also giving dinner parties before the dance are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham, Dr. and Mrs. Lenig Sweet, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Dabney, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick D. Richardson and Mrs. Herman Gasch.

Of wide interest in Virginia is the announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Olivia Mackay Johnsen, of New York, and George Cochran, of The Plains, Va. The ceremony took place quietly in New York on Sunday, October 13. Mr. and Mrs. Cochran are now visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Cochran at their home in The Plains. After their wedding trip the couple will live in Weston, Conn. Mr. Cochran was graduated from Episcopal High School and the University of Virginia.

MISS PHYLLIS RICHARDSON, of Fairfax, and her cousin, Miss Quincy Marshall Martin, and Miss Virginia Galt, of Fredericksburg, are spending the week-end in Charlottesville where they will attend the University of Virginia and V. M. I. football game.

Miss Richardson, a debutante of the season, will be presented to society by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Richardson, at a large dance during the Christmas Holidays at Willard Hall in Fairfax. She recently purchased a new horse, Southland King, and is preparing for the fox hunting season by going out cub-hunting each week. She is a member of the Fairfax hunt.

Mrs. John Whiteley, of Los Angeles, Calif., has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Blaine Lipscomb here who is convalescing from an illness. Mrs. Whitely has been in the hunting country to visit several times and was the guest of her cousin, William H. Lipscomb at Raspberry Plain near Leesburg. Mrs. Edward Everett Gann was a visitor there also.

Mrs. Desmond Roberts, of Baltimore, is spending the week at the Red Fox Tavern in Middleburg where she came to put her daughter, Miss Peggy McCormack, in Foxcroft School. Her husband, Capt. Desmond Roberts, of London, England, is in the Royal Air Force.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Duffey entertained at a small dinner party in honor of Mrs. Roberts on Tuesday evening at their home, The Bungalo. Mrs. Roberts was formerly Miss Ritchie Harrison, of Brandon on the James River.

Epergne Adds Spice to Tea

For their tea yesterday afternoon at the headquarters of the American Association of University Women, the Misses Ruth Van Deman and Helen Atwater wanted to center the table with an epergne filled with fruit. But chasing down an epergne proved to be quite a job. Every caterer whom they asked said, "Do you mean a fern?" or "Do you mean an urn?" or simply just "What do you mean?"

Finally, however, one was run to earth, and graced the tea table yesterday, topped with a pineapple "for hospitality." Miss Van Deman wore a long black frock and Miss Atwater was in dark red. Among those who called during the afternoon were Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Mrs. M. L. Wilson, Mrs. John Summerscale and many others.

Assisting at the party were Dr. Louise Stanley, Miss Edna Amadon, Miss Malvina Lindsay, Miss Harlean James, Mrs. Glenn Swiggett, Mrs. Clayton Haskell, Mrs. Edgar Turlington, Mrs. W. P. Rainer, Miss Day Monroe, Miss Mary Rokahr, Miss Josephine Hemphill, Miss Lucy Alexander and Miss Dorothy Shank.

Daughter Born To Royce Powells; Their Second

Mr. and Mrs. Royce Powell are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, their second, last Sunday at George Washington University Hospital. They haven't yet decided on a name for the baby.

Mrs. Powell has been hard at work all summer and up until she went to the hospital on the studies she is pursuing at George Washington University. A year ago she suddenly decided that her education wasn't sufficient, so she enrolled in several courses. She won a scholarship in history and this year is majoring in physics. She and Mr. Powell live in a charming remodeled house in Georgetown.

The Washington Figure Skating Club has issued invitations to its new season of meetings at the Riverside Stadium. C. L. Parker is president, and the other officers of the club are Dana Parkinson, Mrs. M. B. Grosvenor and Miss Helen Selvig.

Adult sessions will be held on Sunday mornings, alternating weeks beginning December 2, and every Tuesday and Thursday with the exception of several dates when the rink had already been reserved. There will also be sessions for children.

The board of directors of the club includes Mrs. Walter H. Bainbridge, Mrs. James L. Dougall, Dr. F. W. Farrar, Pierre Gaillard, Mrs. Grosvenor, Mrs. John H. Hollands, Mrs. William T. Jarvis, Thomas J. Mangan, Dr. Christopher Meyer, Mr. Parkinson, Mr. Parker, Brig. Gen. H. K. Rutherford, Miss Selvig and George Snell.

Dumbarton Oaks Garden Tour Today

A group of young girls will assist at the tea in connection with the third annual tour of the gardens of Dumbarton Oaks, estate of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, 3101 R Street from 2 to 5:30 p. m. today for the benefit of the Washington Self-Help Exchange.

Miss Marilyn Himes, chairman, has a group of friends who will serve guests on the terrace throughout the afternoon and generally assist Mrs. Emil Hurja and members of her committee. Among these are Miss Edith Wright, Miss Edith Pearson, Miss Margaret Lansdowne, Miss Nancy Glover, Miss Nancy Weller, Miss Eleanor Meem, Miss Sita Finkenstaedt, Mrs. George Wheeler, Miss Billie Byrd West and Miss Morna McLain, of Montreal, who is the house guest of Miss Himes.

The famous gardens are glorious with chrysanthemums and other autumn flowers.

Salem D. Rankins, Newlyweds, Will Live in Arlington

Mr. and Mrs. Salem Dickson Rankin, who were married October 9, will make their home at Fifteenth Street North, Arlington, Va. The bride is the former Miss Margaret Elizabeth Aldridge, daughter of Mrs. Lee B. Aldridge and the late Mr. Aldridge, of Southport, N. C., and Mr. Rankin is the son of Mrs. Anna M. Crowe, of New Castle, Pa.

The couple were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Edwards, Silver Spring, Md., the Rev. C. F. Phillips officiating in a setting of palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums. The bride was given in marriage by Mr. Edwards. She wore soft blue crepe with metallic embroidery and carried talisman roses. Miss Martha Susan Tate, her only attendant, wore gray crepe and carried an arm bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums. James Wallace Rankin was best man for his brother.

Maj., Mrs. Kane Give Benefit Tea

Maj. and Mrs. Norman Kane entertained at tea yesterday afternoonat their home, 1725 H Street, as a benefit for the Polish Unit of the American Red Cross. Mrs. Kane donated one of her paintings, the drawing for which was supervised by James R. Horton.

Mrs. Horton poured, and generally assisting were Mrs. William J. Barnhard and Mrs. Earl C. Calhoun. They wore red and white carnation corsages. Mrs. Kane chose for the occasion a black velvet frock with a collar of handmade lace.

Bridal Date Chosen By Miss Minnich

Miss Frances Minnich, daughter of E. M. Minnich, jr., of Daleville, Ind., has selected November 3 for the date of her wedding to Mark A. Keefe, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Keefe, of this city.

This ceremony will take place at the Pleasant View Church of the Brethren near Mount Jackson, Va., at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. S. W. Berry, of Rader Lutheran Church, Timberville, Va., will officiate.

Notes of Society

Wars Cut Film Income 25%, Necomb Club Told

Nathan D. Golden, Department of Commerce Expert, Addresses Bethesda Women's Group At Opening Fall Luncheon in the Highlands

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor

The war has cut the American motion picture industry's revenue from foreign markets from about 35 per cent of its gross income to approximately 10 per cent, Nathan D. Golden, chief of the motion picture division of the Department of Commerce, told members of the Necomb Club, of Bethesda, at its opening fall luncheon at the Highlands yesterday.

Mr. Golden traced the growth of the industry from the time of the invention of the motion picture by Edison to the present when $165,000,000 is spent on the production of pictures on the West Coast. This does not include the $406,000,000 paid in salaries to the 282,000 persons employed in the industry, he said.

He explained the high salaries paid to stars by the fact that the period of stardom is only about seven years.

There are 241,000 persons employed in the exhibition field of the industry and $100,000 a year is spent in advertising, he said, indicating the importance of the industry in the economic life of this country.

The American pictures that go to foreign countries have a surprising effect on the styles in dress and the habits of life, he said. Recognizing this, the Axis powers, for the past three years, have banned virtually all American films on the basis that the freedom of life here would arouse discontent among people living under the dictatorships.

A movie showing a sewing machine was responsible for an order for a large number from Sumatra and the business in bathtubs boomed in remote sections following a film showing a modern tub, he said.

Mrs. William Ross Dellett, president of the club, presided at the luncheon.

D. A. R. Movie Committee Meets

"Ain't, ain't got, and they was" will be taboo in the movies, if some of the members of the motion picture committees of the District D. A. R. have their way.

At a meeting of the committee yesterday at the Chapter House, addressed by A. Julian Brylawski, president of the D. C. Theater Owners' Association, one of the members asked if something could not be done to improve the grammar of the movies. Convinced that children always picked out the bad things to imitate rather than the good, she suggested that attention be given to the use of good English.

Citing the current picture "Knute Rockne," which he praised as an inspiration to American youth, Mr. Brylawski pointed out that many of the characters in that did not use classroom English and if they had it would have been incongruous. He also took exception to the idea that children pick up the worst in pictures rather than the best.

He defended Westerns and other thrillers so long as virtue triumphed in the end and said if there was not action youngsters would not attend the movies.

Miss Ethel Martin, chairman of the committee, presided.

Rush Party Tonight

The Beta Xi chapter of Alpha Phi International Sorority at American University will entertain 11 rushees at a formal dinner tonight from 7 to 10 o'clock. The rush party, which is the last of this season, will be held at the home of Miss Shirley Karns, 5960 Wilson Boulevard (Powhatan Springs), Arlington, Va. Miss Karns is the daughter of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Karns.

Hostesses Talk Lecture Plans

A large group of representative women comprising the hostess committee for the series of Latin-American lectures beginning October 29, met yesterday at the apartment of Mrs. Paul V. McNutt in the Shoreham. Mrs. Curtis Shears is hostess chairman and Mrs. McNutt vice chairman.

Reservations must be made in advance for the luncheons following the lectures, it has been announced.

A few among those who attended the meeting yesterday were Mrs. Henry Wallace, Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mrs. George C. Marshall, Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mrs. Hugo Black, Miss Mary Bourke, president of the Soroptimist Club; Miss Elizabeth P. Sullivan, Miss Mary E. Winslow, of the Inter-American Commission of Women; Miss Minerva Bernardino, of the Inter-American Commission; Mrs. D. Tucker Brown, of the Women's National Democratic Club; Mrs. Montgomery Blair, jr., president of the Junior League; Mrs. Edward B. Sonneborn, president of the Council of Jewish Women; Mrs. George C. Thorpe, of the Women's Safety Committee; Mrs. Lawrence Manley, of the Chevy Chase Women's Club; Mrs. Frank A. Linzel, of the Washington Council of Women; Mrs. Mordecai Ezekiel, of the League of Women Shoppers, and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, of the League of American Pen Women.

Mrs. Shenefield Flies to Preside At Alumnae Fete

Mrs. Hale T. Shenefield, president of the Ohio Wesleyan Alumnae of Washington, will preside at their opening fall luncheon today at the Y. W. C. A. despite the fact that she filled a speaking engagement last night in Springfield, Mass. The luncheon will be at 1 p. m.

Mrs. Shenefield (Dr. Norma Bird to students of American University where she is a member of the faculty), is an active member of the Woman's National Democratic Club and has been doing a considerable amount of speech-making in the campaign. Yesterday she responded to a last-minute request to "save the day" at a Democratic rally in Springfield and flew there and back to fill the double order of making the speech there and presiding at the alumnae luncheon here in less than 24 hours.

Mrs. Shenefield invaded the Republican stronghold of Maine on a recent speaking tour and has been requested to return there.

110 Girls in Business and Professional Unit of Y.W.C.A. Are Looking for Husbands

LEAP YEAR NOTE—110 girls and women in the business and professional department of the Y.W.C.A. are looking for husbands!

This fact is revealed in an amusing and informative cart prepared by Miss Edith Rieger and other members of the staff of that department, based on questionnaires answered by the approximately 200 women and girls enrolled there.

"The Man Hunt" is the title of this line on the chart, showing that about 40 of the girls had "found their man;" that the 110 were still looking, while the rest had "given up the chase."

The final line, "At the Wishing Well," indicates that the girls would choose, if they could have their wish: First, more money; second, more friends; third, more education; fourth, a better job; fifth, a husband (which doesn't seem to tally exactly with the proportion still on the lookout for one); sixth, a home; seventh, more fun; eighth, a family, and ninth, "more men in my life."

Most of the girls come from the age group from 21 to 30. In symbols, representing ten persons each, their story is told. Little Capitol domes labeled "Uncle Sam's Harem," indicate that 120 are Government workers; tall buildings labeled "Big and Little Business," classify 60 as office workers, and little houses take care of the other 20 as homemakers.

Their wages range from less than $60 a month to over $200, with the largest proportion receiving from $100 to $135.

Of this amount they pay from $10 to $80 for room and board, the largest number coming within the range of $40 to $60. The small amount in some cases may be accounted for by the fact that 70 live with their families. About 55 live in apartments or hotels and the rest in boarding or rooming houses, and 80 share their rooms.

More than 70 of the girls help support someone; 140 of them lay by for a rainy day, and approximately the same number have hospitalization and get paid for sick leave, while the rest do not.

Only 40 of the girls are native Washingtonians. This is recorded also by little Capitol domes labeled "The Voteless Capitol." About 140 of the girls attend church; 55 of them improve themselves by attending school.

OHIO GIRLS TO DANCE—The first major event of the season for the Ohio Girls' Club will be the dance which is being planned tonight by a committee under the chairmanship of Frances Hart.

Bowling always has been a popular activity, and this year the group, with Miss Mary Spear as chairman, has engaged additional alleys for the regular Thursday night rolling in order to take care of the increasing membership. The bridge group, under the chairmanship of Miss Dorothy Swisshelm, is planning some innovations for its second-and-fourth-Monday bridge parties. Riding was inaugurated last year, and with Miss Edna Miller in charge has rapidly increased in popularity.

Programs for the get-togethers, the monthly meetings of the club as a whole, are directed by Miss Phyllis Carpenter. October 21 is the date set for the first meeting.

This club, which is the only State women's organization in Washington, is beginning the year under the leadership of a third-termer. This is the third year Miss Gladys Prince has served as president of the club, but there is no trend toward dictatorship, as Miss Prince is distributing more and more responsibilities to her efficient group chairmen.

Nearly every year sees the introduction of some new activity for the enjoyment of club members. Foremost on the list this year is the newly organized chorus, which holds rehearsals every Tuesday under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Radde Emery, whom the club is proud to have as a member. The group has Miss Alice Wolfe as its chairman.

In addition to the activities engaged in for the winter, a group of beach enthusiasts maintain a cottage on Chesapeake Bay.

Capital News In Brief

Wayfarer Is First Draft Delinquent

He stood at Twelfth Street and New York Avenue Northwest when Sergt. Joe Harrington of the traffic division stepped up.

"Where you going?" asked the sergeant.

"Washington, D. C.," he replied.

"That's where you are," said the sergeant.

"I'm in Raleigh, N. C.," insisted the wayfarer, who said his name was Clarence R. Stancill, 32, of Annapolis.

He had no selective service card, so after appearing in police court and receiving a probation officer as escort, signed in the National Guard armory—as the first eligible man who had failed to register to be arrested by District police.

Dental Society to Hear Talk on Jaw Swellings

Dr. John A. Turner, Harvard University professor of oral surgery, will discuss differential diagnosis of jaw swellings at a scientific meeting today at 9 p. m. of the Robert T. Freeman Dental Society, at the Twelfth Street Y. M. C. A.

He will present slides of cases treated at Columbia Medical Center, where he studied last year.

Mack's Grill Loses Appeal for License

The Commissioners yesterday upheld the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board revocation of the on-sale liquor license of William J. Trollinger, trading as Mack's Grill, 913 Eighth Street Southeast.

The board, following several hearings, found the licensee guilty of selling liquor to a minor and of failing to carry out in good faith provisions of the beverage act.

L. S. Penland Wins Camera Club's Contest

L. S. Penland last night won top honors in the Internal Revenue Bureau Camera Club's contest on architectural subjects.

Second place went to C. D. Gorman, and third to W. E. Rabenhorst in the judging at the Mount Pleasant Public Library. Walter J. Reck was judge.

'Willkie Saturday Afternoon' Planned

"Willkie Saturday Afternoon" will be celebrated by the District's Young Republican League today from 3 to 5 p. m. at Fourteenth and U Streets Northwest, "with young ladies and energetic young men" distributing campaign literature.

Purpose of the demonstration, according to League President Henry L. Johnson, jr., is "to make this disfranchised city more aware of the political campaign raging outside of our borders."

The league conducts an Absentee Voters Bureau in its office, 1924 Thirteenth Street Northwest.

Plans Approved For D. C. Underpass

Scott Circle Tunnel Program Is Passed By Park Commission

The National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday approved final construction plans for the Scott Circle traffic underpass.

Despite numerous protests registered with the Commissioners against the tunnel's being built on the line of Sixteenth Street, this route is provided in the plans indorsed yesterday. Complainants, principally lower Sixteenth Street residents, had urged that the underpass follow the line of Massachusetts Avenue.

Engineer Commissioner David McCoach and Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director, submitted the drawings to the planners Thursday. They already have been approved by the District Commissioners and now go to the Public Road Administration for approval, said T. S. Settle, secretary of the planning body.

Also receiving the commission's indorsement yesterday were a number of proposed contracts for acquisition of George Washington Memorial Parkway lands on either side of the Potomac. They included a 6-acre tract near Spout Run, in Arlington County, Va., and four parcels across the river in Montgomery County, Md.

The commission reaffirmed that it was in favor of a site east of the Supreme Court for the four Federal appellate courts and moving the United States District Court into a building to be erected on the present site of the General Accounting Office.

Congress recently appropriated $2,000,000 to acquire land for a new GAO building.

Settle and T. C. Jeffers, staff landscape architect, reported on a recreation study which they made recently in Cleveland. L. R. Barrett, District recreation coordinator, also went on the trip, but he was not present yesterday.

The planners took no action on the Settle-Jeffers report. They conferred at length with Frank Hanrahan, Arlington County manager, and Frank Dieter, county planner, on needs for a new bridge across the Potomac, but no action was taken.

Members of the commission inspected the Navy Building on Constitution Avenue, in connection with a recent appropriation providing for an extra wing on this structure, but Settle said they reached no decision as to the wing's exact location.

. . . AND THE RED CROSS SMILES—Charles Laughton, British film star, who made a personal appearance yesterday at Keith's Theater, was signed up as a member of the Red Cross Roll Call by Marguerite Reese

With only one day remaining in the 1940 roll call of the Red Cross, workers today are faced with the task of enrolling 20,000 members to reach the goal of 130,000 by midnight tonight. At the close of business yesterday, 10,813 memberships had been received at roll-call headquarters, leaving the quota short by 20,487.

In a statement to all citizens of Washington, General Chairman Edgar Morris declared:

"We cannot let the Red Cross roll call fail in Washington, for we feel that we must be ready with the Red Cross. In the eventful year that lies ahead, our own Red Cross in Washington needs the support of at least 130,000 members. I personally urge everyone in Washington to join and join at once. There are 10,000 volunteers ready to receive your membership."

As the membership campaign entered the final day, no division of the roll call had reached its goal, although three groups were ahead of comparative returns of 1939.

Charles Laughton, film star, added his name to the honor roll of those who have enrolled in the Red Cross when he gave his membership dollar to Miss Marguerite Reese following a personal appearance at the Keith's Theater.

Among the other enrollments received yesterday the following institutions joined 100 per cent: Eastern High School, National Bank of Washington, Security Savings & Commercial Bank, Waverly Taylor, Inc.; Guardian Life Insurance Co. of America, National Education Association, Allied Youth Association for Childhood Education, World Federation of Education Associations, Otis Elevator Co., Call Carl, M. Phillipsborn & Co., Inc., and National Engraving Co.

Yesterday certificates of merit were given to the four winners in the annual Red Cross window display contest. The following awards were presented after being announced by a board of judges composed of E. P. Schreier, Irwin S. Porter, Frank B. Steele: Blackistone, Inc., the most beautiful; Palais Royal, the most novel; John S. Jacobson, the most dramatic; Gordon Hittenmark, the most original.

German Embassy, Riggs Bank Deny Fund Withdrawal

Officials of the German Embassy and Riggs National Bank last night denied published reports that the embassy has withdrawn most of its funds from the local bank in anticipation of a grave crisis in relations between the United States and the Reich.

Herr Wilhelm Tannenberg, first secretary of the embassy said, "The story is absolutely without foundation." The embassy is constantly drawing on its account with the Riggs Bank to pay salaries, rentals for consulates throughout the country and other "normal expenses," he stated, "but there have been no unusual withdrawals of any sort."

George O. Vass, vice president and cashier of the bank, also stated, "So far as I know, the story is without foundation."

Japan Not U.S.Foe, Sir Wilmott Says

At a luncheon of the Alumni Club of Georgetown University Law School yesterday, Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the Times of London, told members that Japan had no desire to fight the United States, but was seeking British possessions in the Far East.

"Japan's aggressions," said Sir Willmott, "depend upon the situation in Europe. If there is confusion in Europe, then Japan is aggressive. Japan is now unbounded in aggressions because there is conflict in Europe."

Arlington Rites To Be Held Today For Gen. Faison

Funeral services for Brig. Gen. Samson L. Faison, U. S. Army, retired, who died Thursday in Baltimore, will be at 2 p. m. today in Arlington Cemetery. The Rev. Philip Jensen and the Rev. Samson Colgate Hodges, both of Baltimore, will officiate.

Gen. Faison received the Distinguished Service Medal for his World War services. He also was awarded the French Croix de Guerre and Legion of Honor.

Stanton Is Named Civil Air Official

Charles I. Stanton, veteran aviation official, yesterday was named assistant administrator of civil aeronautics.

The new assistant, who is 47, has been associated with Government agencies dealing with civil aviation since the day he was discharged from the Army on December 17, 1918. Most of this time he served as an executive in the Federal Airways System.

Also announced yesterday was the appointment of Arlin E. Stockburger, former deputy mayor of Los Angeles, as administrative consultant

Dunn Denied Job Pending Shortage Probe

The Commissioners yesterday refused the reinstatement at this time of Merk C. Dunn, suspended assistant cashier at the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, following such a demand from Leo A. Rover, the cashier's attorney.

Rover, former United States Attorney for the District, wrote the Commissioners he had "gone over the entire matter very thoroughly" with his client and that he was convinced Dunn is "in no wise" responsible for the shortage. Reporting of a shortage of $2,000 in the cash balances of the Vehicles Department led to the suspension of Dunn and the head cashier, Miss Julia Vass.

The Commissioners informed Rover they would not act for reinstatement until a special board of inquiry to investigate the shortages has completed its work.

Meanwhile, Tax Collector Chatham M. Towers yesterday answered critics of his administration by giving his department and workers a clean bill of health.

"With reference to shortage in the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, I would like to state that there has been only one shortage, that of recent date," he said. "The other shortage referred to was money stolen by an employe of that department before it had ever reached the cashier."

Towers blamed the shortage on lack of personnel. A Commissioners' order, dated June 27, 1931, assigned two employes of the tax collector's office to the vehicles department. He said he has requested additional help, but had been refused.

Byers M. Bachman, deputy tax assessor, chairman of the board of inquiry, said the investigation would require about one month.

Woman Found Dead in Canal Is Identified

The body of a woman found floating in the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal yesterday was identified last night as that of Laura Van Dell, 35, of 5519 Carolina Place Northwest.

The body was discovered by Hans Jesperson, 50, near his home at 4914 Canal Road Northwest.

Friends, who identified the body at the District Morgue, said Miss Van Dell had been missing since yesterday morning. They said she had been living at her present residence for the last six weeks.

$500 Posted As Reward For Sniper

Afro-American Puts Up $200 for Slayer Of Four; Letters To Reporter a Clew

Total reward for apprehension of the sniper who has shot six colored persons, killing four, rose to $500 yesterday. Police raised their $200 reward to $300, and the Afro-American, a newspaper of colored circulation, announced a reward of $200 for information disclosing the killer.

Police investigated two suspects but termed them "improbabilities."

They also had under survey a clew submitted to them by a Post reporter who has received mysterious notes from a writer who identified himself as the killer.

The reporter, Alfred E. Lewis, received the first note six weeks ago, two days after he had written a story connecting two shootings as those of a single sniper, perhaps the one who had shot several people here two years ago.

The writer, who used large block letters, apparently from a toy printing set, for his message, invited a reply through the personal want ad columns of The Post.

While suspecting that the communication was a joke played on him by fellow reporters, Lewis showed it at once to the police. Believing the criminal might reveal his motive for the shootings in further correspondence, police urged Lewis to insert a personal notice in The Post as directed by the writer.

Personal Notice

They noted in this first letter a reference to a .38-caliber gun which the writer said he was using. This disclosure was remembered a month later when on October 5 the sniper struck again, killing two men who were sitting on a bench in front of 2600 I Street Northwest. Studying one of the bullets used in this attack, police found it to be from a .38-caliber revolver.

Lewis relayed the police officers' request to his superiors in The Post news room. Hoping to help police snare the sniper, The Post ran this personal notice:

"I was slow but I could not find a reason. WHY? Why did you pick Jack? A. E. Lewis."

In reply Lewis received three days later a letter, longer than the first, written with the same large printed block letters. In it the writer said he had been "inactive because of powder burns" but he indicated that he'd soon be out shooting again.

Two Shot on Bench

Three weeks later the sniper shot the two men on the bench and ten days after that, last Saturday night, shot and killed a colored youth on K street near Rock Creek Drive.

Meanwhile, police asked Lewis to continue inserting the personal notices. Two more notes from Lewis were published.

It was thought these notes might lure a criminal seeking publicity to disclose his motive.

However, there have been no replies since the second one.

One of the suspects brought before police yesterday, a 30-year-old man, was arrested at his home in the Northwest section at 3 a. m. Friday and held for investigation at the Seventh Precinct Station. No arms were found in his apartment, police reported.

Linked to Sex Case

Inspector Bernard Thompson said the man was wanted for investigation in connection with a sex-slaying in Pennsylvania more than a year ago.

Another suspect—a British subject who has been in this country four years—was arrested after he purchased revolver cartridges in a downtown store. He was sent to Gallinger Hospital after he told police he wanted to commit suicide.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown announced yesterday that he and other police officers would address a mass meeting at the Liberty Baptist Church, Twenty-third and H Streets Northwest, Tuesday at 8 p. m. He plans to discuss the steps police are taking to seize the killer.

Chestnut Farms Wins Contract For 5-Cent Milk

Five-cent milk for 10,000 needy families in Washington was assured for another three months yesterday, when the Department of Agriculture awarded a contract to the Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy.

The low-cost milk distribution program launched last August 1 is now definitely continued until March 1. While it has been approved for the fiscal year ending next June 30, continuance of the program during specific periods of the year depends upon acceptance of new bids for Federal payments.

In addition to the 5 cents to be paid for each quart by the families receiving the milk, a three-cent subsidy will be paid from Federal funds.

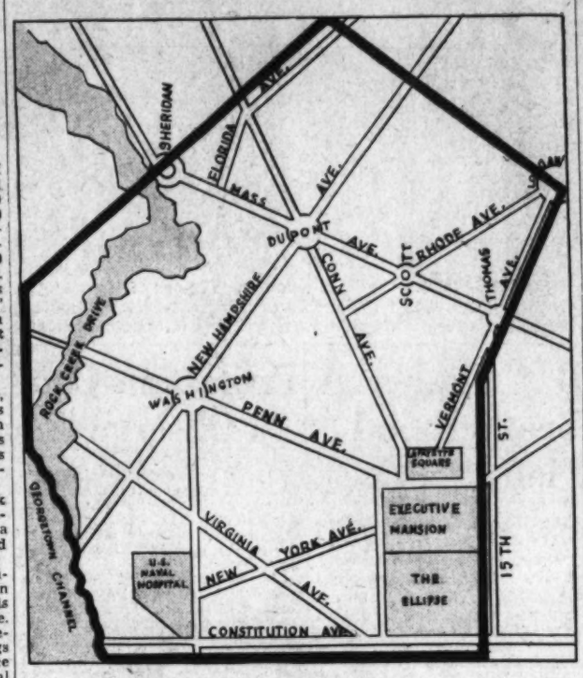
Working for Washington

First Ward Citizens' Group's First Concern Is for Children



YOUNGSTERS LIVING IN THIS AREA of Washington have benefited by the work of the First Ward Citizens Association.

This is the twentieth article in a series about citizens' associations in the District of Columbia and their efforts to make the community a better place in which to live.

The spectacle of more than 3,000 children in downtown Washington with only a quarter of an acre of supervised year-around playground facilities led to the organization seven years ago of the First Ward Citizens Association.

Since then, its primary purpose has been always to secure better schools and provide recreational facilities in the area bounded by Constitution Avenue, Connecticut Avenue, Florida Avenue and Rock Creek Drive, according to President Lloyd E. Rogers.

This summer, efforts of the association to secure a community center were realized. Cooperating with churches, Parent-Teacher Associations and other organizations, the unit opened Hampshire House, at 1105 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest.

When the Monument Swimming Pool was replaced by the East Potomac Park pool, the association gained a free period from 9 a. m. until noon for the children in its area and led the city-wide policy of opening all pools to the public during those hours, Rogers said.

Working for the youngsters in the sector, the organization has cooperated with the Boys Clubs of America and the Georgetown Boys Club. It helped purchase the Peck Memorial Church for a clubhouse, although it is not in the First ward area. From the Y. M. C. A. it has obtained free memberships, Friday night dances for young people and swimming for girls on Tuesday nights.

In cooperation with the Grant-Weightman Parent-Teacher Association, it induced the National Capital Parks Commission to allot land and money for a well-equipped playground near P Street Bridge, according to President Rogers. Construction has been halted temporarily because of the sewer being built in that vicinity now, he added.

Although not a member of the Federation of Citizens Associations, the organization belongs to the First Ward Neighborhood Council and was one of its organizers. The council has made various social studies in the fields of housing, health and recreation.

City-wide civic enterprises, in addition to projects in its own area, are discussed at meetings held the first Wednesday of each month in the Grant School on G Street Northwest, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second Streets.

Officials Laud 1941 Models At Preview

"Debutante" automobiles of 1941 were presented to the National Capital last night at a preview of the twenty-first Auto Show of Washington at Riverside Stadium, Twenty-sixth and D Streets Northwest.

The display of shiny, chromium-trimmed cars and National Guard automotive equipment was opened by Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, who paid tribute to the automotive industry and thanked the 17 Washington exhibitors for "putting on such a fine show."

Greatly interested in interior fittings on the new cars was Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, who is responsible for construction of traffic routes for the 1941 models.

Whitney Leary, chairman of the Auto Show Committee of the Automotive Trade Association, told the vanguard of thousands who will visit the exhibit that "here you have the opportunity to see and evaluate all the new cars."

He was joined in praise of the new cars by Lee D. Butler, president of the Washington Automotive Trade Association, who said "development of automobiles has made dealers proud of their products and glad to display them to the public in the auto show."

The show is open to the public beginning today from 11 a. m. until 11 p. m. each week-day and from 2 p. m. until 11 p. m., Sunday. Admission is 25 cents plus tax until 6 p. m., week-days and 40 cents plus tax evenings and on Sunday.

Library Asks Takoma Park Citizens' Aid

Librarian Urges Group to Assist In Obtaining District Funds

Takoma Park Citizens Association members were asked to aid in procuring library funds from the District by Miss Clara Herbert, District librarian, at their meeting last night.

Miss Herbert promised improvements in the Takoma Park Branch Library Building and books and stressed coordination between it and the new Calvin Coolidge High School library.

Thomas J. Holmes 2d, principal of the new school, was made an honorary member of the association by unanimous vote of the members present.

The association opposed use of District funds in maintaining the Gravelly Point Airport, pointing out that it is purely a Federal project.

Members voted to petition for opening of Eastern Avenue from Blair Road to Laurel Avenue and for extension of one-way traffic on Thirteenth Street extended from Spring Road to Colorado Avenue.

Burt W. Andrews reported that, acting for the association, he had asked the Commissioners for traffic lights on Blair Road at Aspen, Van Buren and Cedar Streets; for a stadium and additional teachers at Calvin Coolidge High School, and for paving of Whittier Street Northwest between Third and Fourth Streets.

Funds for improvement of North Takoma Bridge at Takoma Avenue and Blair Road have been asked from the Montgomery County Commissioners, L. R. Grabble reported.

Glover Park Citizens

"China is the first line of defense for the democratic nations," Secretary T. L. Tsui of the Chinese Embassy said last night in an appeal for United States aid in China's war with Japan.

Addressing members of the Glover Park Citizens Association, Tsui said "China needs the help of the United States. But regardless, we will go on fighting until liberty and independence are restored to our country."

As evidence of the effect of failure of the democracies to stop aggression, he pointed to Britain's present plight after she permitted the invasion of Ethiopia and later of Czecho-Slovakia.

"Appeasement we now know to be ineffective," he added. "China appeased Japan in 1931, again in 1933, and then in 1935. And in return she has been invaded and bombed."

Members of the citizens' organization elected as delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations A. N. Lerner, secretary, and Moses Wright, incumbent delegate.

They went on record as favoring traffic lights on Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, between Calvert and Garfield Streets for pedestrian crossings, and requested their traffic committee to designate suitable corners for such lights.

Tabernacle To Be Blessed At St. Agnes'

Visitor to Preach Evening Sermon At Epiphany Church

A new tabernacle for the high altar will be blessed at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow at St. Agnes' Episcopal Church, of which the Rev. A. J. Dubois is rector. It is a memorial to the late Canon Arthur Rudd.

St. Thomas'. Services for tomorrow will be Holy Communion at 8 a. m. and 10 a. m.; church school at 9:30 and 11 a. m., and morning prayer, with sermon by Dr. Howard S. Wilkinson, at 11 a. m. The 10 o'clock Communion is an experiment and will be continued if the demand warrants.

Epiphany. The services for tomorrow include Holy Communion at 8 a. m.; church school and junior Bible class at 9:30 a. m.; adult Bible class at 10 a. m., and morning prayer and sermon by the Rev. Duncan Frazer at 11 a. m. There will be evening prayer, with sermon by Francis Bayard Rhein, of the Virginia Theological Seminary, at 8 p. m.

St. John's. Dr. C. Leslie Glenn will preach tomorrow at the 11 o'clock service of morning prayer and at the 8 o'clock service. The Rev. William Curtis White will preach at 9:30 a. m. Communion rites.

The choir of men and boys, under the direction of Arthur Howes, organist and choirmaster, will sing "Let Thy Merciful Ears, O Lord," by Thomas Weelkes, at the morning services, and "King of Glory, King of Peace," by Eric H. Thiman, at the evening service.

Ascension. The services tomorrow will include Holy Communion at 8 a. m., morning prayer and sermon by Canon R. L. Wolven at 11 a. m., and Young People's Fellowship at 8 p. m. Church school meets at 9:30.

Missionary Will Speak At Central

Miss Katheryne Thompson, missionary who recently returned from China, where her station was bombed by Japanese, will be honored at a special service on Thursday at 8 p. m. at Central Presbyterian Church, which supports her work.

Dr. James H. Taylor, pastor, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Inadequate Substitutes."

New York Avenue. "The Forgiveness of Sins" will be the topic of the sermon by Dr. Peter Marshall, tomorrow at 11 o'clock.

Sherwood. "Good Sense" will be the subject of the sermon by the Rev. Richard Mussen at the 8:50 and 11 o'clock services tomorrow. At 8 p. m., his subject will be "Let's Quit." Dr. Marshall will preside at the installation service for Rev. Mr. Mussen on Wednesday at 8 p. m.

Chevy Chase. "An Old Testament Christian" will be the subject of Dr. J. Hillman Hollister's sermon at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow.

Dr. Gray to Preach At Mt. Vernon Place Tomorrow

Dr. Joseph M. M. Gray, former chancellor of American University, will preach tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

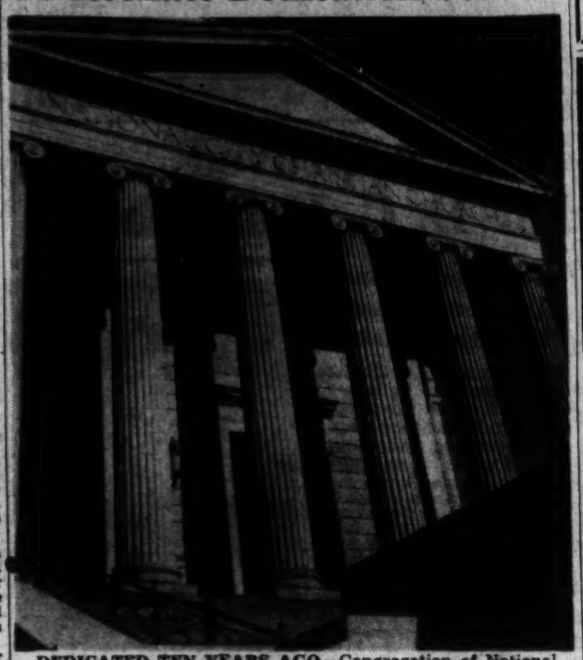
DR. GRAY

Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor, will preach at 8:30 and 11 a. m. on "Would I Have Believed?" The ladies' septet and Harry McMains will sing at the earlier service, and the choir of 60 voices, directed by Deane Shure, at both morning rites.

Justice Bolitha J. Laws will teach the Adult Bible classes at 9:30 a. m. on "The Message of John the Baptist." Young people will have a tea at 6 p. m.

Church of the Week

National City Christian Church To Reenact Dedication Service



DEDICATED TEN YEARS AGO—Congregation of National City Christian Church tomorrow will celebrate tenth anniversary of dedication of its $1,000,000 Thomas Circle edifice shown above

By Robert Tate Allan.

National City Christian Church, which President Garfield attended, tomorrow will mark the tenth anniversary of the dedication of its $1,000,000 Thomas Circle edifice.

Redramatizing, to a large extent, the original dedicatory service, the program will begin at 7 a. m. with a sunrise rite on the steps, the church chimes ringing out the call to worship, "Holy, Holy, Holy."

Dr. Oreon E. Scott, of St. Louis, who participated in the dedication, will give the sunrise address; the Rev. J. Lloyd Black, pastor of Park View Christian Church the prayer, and the Rev. Ivan H. Dugan, assistant pastor of National City, the invocation. With Mrs. J. Horace Smithey at the organ, Mrs. Helen H. Turley will sing "Open the Gates of the Temple."

Fellowship Breakfast

A fellowship breakfast at the Colonial Hotel will follow, with O. E. Read, chairman of the board, of church officers, presiding; Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, offering the invocation, and W. L. Braithwaite, choir director, leading group singing. Maxwell Galloway will render a vocal solo.

After Bible school services in the Vermont Avenue social hall, site of the former church, worshipers will gather for the services in the church building, and hear Dr. Frederick D. Kershner, dean of the college of religion, Butler University, Indianapolis, deliver the sermon.

A memorial testimonial to Dr. Earle Wilfley, pastor from 1910 to 1931; the Lord's Supper and special music also will feature the morning service.

The Woman's Council will sponsor a tea in the social hall at 4:30 p. m. and the young people will present a drama, "The Valiant," at their devotional service at 5:30 p. m.

Gift of more than 40,000 Disciples of Christ members throughout the United States and representative church of that denomination in the Nation's Capital, National City Christian Church was dedicated in the world convention of the disciples here, drawing thousands of worshipers.

Reduce Debt $200,000

Led by Dr. Raphael Harwood Miller, pastor since 1934, the congregation has worked untiringly to reduce the outstanding building debt by more than $200,000 since 1930.

Dr. Miller, leader of the denomination, has toured many States in the interest of the representative church and has been encouraged in that work by the splendid moral and financial support of such organizations as the Woman's Council, of which Mrs. Oren B. Atwood, of 5307 Third Street Northwest, is president.

Other officers are Mrs. E. M. Reese, first vice president; Mrs. E. L. Davis, second vice president; Mrs. T. T. Williford, recording secretary; Mrs. T. C. Copeland, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Roma L. Humberd, treasurer; Mrs. Ettie F. Andrews, assistant treasurer, and Mrs. R. H. Miller, the pastor's wife. Mrs. Earle Wilfley, Dr. Wilfley's widow, is a former president.

Woman's Council Aims

The Woman's Council, which has a 1940-41 budget of $3,750, aims toward enrichment of spiritual life, the enlightenment of the vision of brotherhood service and an enlarged stewardship of life.

The Young People's Department, which, like other organizations of the church, is composed of members from practically every State in the Union also has its own budget—$1,500.

A 20 to 35-year-old group, the department includes the president, Malcolm Coough, other officers and 11 committeemen, forming a cabinet which is the policy-forming body of the department.

"SUN OF MY SOUL"
JOHN KEBLE
Sun of my soul! Thou Saviour dear,
It is not night if Thou be near;
Oh, may no earth-born cloud arise
To hide Thee from Thy servant's eyes!
Be near to bless me when I wake,
Ere thro' the world my way I take;
Abide with me till in Thy love
I live myself in heav'n above.
Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS
This poem, describing a benighted traveler, pushing on after the sun has set, appeared in 1827, and ever since has won the hearts of all people for its simple sincerity and love of nature. Every line illustrates the life and character of its devout and pious author.

ONE HUNDRED AND THIRTEEN THOUSAND YOUNG MEN
Between the Ages of Twenty-one and Thirty-six
ALL IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBA
Perhaps thirteen thousand of them may be found in some church or other on a given Sunday. Where are the other one hundred thousand? Talk about National Defense—the real first line and last line of defense is to be found in the quality of men's souls. If Spiritual Integrity is wanting, we shall in the course of time have little worth defending.

FOR ENTERTAINMENT IT'S THE SUNDAY POST

Do you buy your Sunday paper for comics? Now The Post has the most—with 17 added last week to bring the Sunday Post total up to 39 comics!

Do you buy your Sunday paper for fiction? The complete novel, in a separate section of the Sunday Post, gives you brand-new fiction, not reprints, not condensations, but first-run, full-length stories of romance, mystery, adventure, illustrated in colors.

Do you buy your Sunday paper for pictures? Again, The Post has the most, especially now that the Rotogravure section has been enlarged to 8 pages. You'll appreciate the way The Post's rotogravure assembles the pictures to give complete picture-stories, not just miscellaneous photographs.

Do you buy your Sunday paper for sports? The big Peach sports section in the Sunday Post leads in news, results, pictures, columnists, including both Povich and Considine.

Do you buy your Sunday paper for news—editorials — Hollywood gossip — political columns — feature articles—society news? Whatever your special interests, you'll find them covered in one of the ten sections of the BIG Sunday Post! The value is up—the price remains only a dime. Ask for The Post this Sunday! Or phone NAtional 4200 to enjoy the convenience and economy of Post home delivery.

Romance—Adventure—in the wilds of Africa

She had come from America to look after the Morgan children. But Lou Jordan remained as Rex Audley's housekeeper, told him she was married. Drama of High Emotion Revealed In 'They Knew What They Wanted'

Laughton, Lombard And Gargan Form Impressive Triangle On Keith's Screen

"THEY KNEW WHAT THEY WANTED." RKO-Radio picturization of the stage play by Sidney Howard, adapted to the screen by Robert Ardrey, costarring Carole Lombard and Charles Laughton, with William Gargan, Harry Carey, Frank Fay, Joe Bernard, Janet Fox, Lee Tung-Foo, Karl Malden and Victor Kilian. Directed by Garson Kanin. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

BELL

Exceptional talents went into RKO-Radio's picturization of the late Sidney Howard's Pulitzer Prize play of "They Knew What They Wanted," currently on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater, where two personal appearances of Charles Laughton yesterday gave its inaugural added impetus.

Produced by Erich Pommer, long associated with Mr. Laughton in their joint Mayflower Productions, this vivid drama of passion among the California grape arbors is particularly fortunate in the deftness of its adaptation to the screen by Robert Ardrey, a young playwright who has fallen something this side of success on Broadway, but seems to have found himself in Hollywood. In translating the 1924 Howard play into terms of celluloid and sound track, Ardrey has achieved a closely woven and compact drama that omits all of the questionable qualities of the original and at the same time preserves intact the intent of the Howard work and all of its dramatic vigor. Garson Kanin has directed it with intelligence, spirit and power.

The casting of the three angles of the triangle is especially happy. As the jovial, sensitive, proud and great-hearted Tony, owner of a fine grape "ranch" and with $15,000 in the bank, Laughton does a commandingly fine piece of work in a role unlike any in which he has heretofore been seen. Carole Lombard, as the innocent victim of a strange combination of circumstances, is equally effective, and William Gargan contributes his finest performance to date in the role of the "devil among the women" caught in the same web of untoward events as Miss Lombard's unhappy Amy Peters.

It all comes about when Tony, on a vacation junket to the city, is smitten by the crude charms of a waitress in a side-street Italian restaurant and perceives in her a fulfillment of his secret longing for a wife and bambinos to complete his wholly masculine and lonely household. Never having met the girl, the matter must be arranged by mail and the submission of a photograph. In a moment of fearfulness lest he be spurned as an impossible yokel, Tony mails his inamorata the likeness of his foreman, Joe, who meets the prospective bride at the train and sets in motion a domestic cataclysm that thwarts Tony's rosiest dreams, but brings to the surface the great understanding, compassion and nobility of his character.

Laughton's interpretation of the role of Tony is a masterpiece of expressiveness that encompasses the full range of comedy, devotion, heartbreak and resignation. Miss Lombard's Amy is a comparably tortured study of the frailties of a young woman not quite equal to the temptations of the flesh that are thrust upon her, and William Gargan's portrayal of the earthy migratory worker, who precipitates the crisis in his best friend's life, is worthy of the superlative performances of the costars. Frank Fay, as the village padre, and Harry Carey, the knowing and straight-thinking doctor, are foremost in the support, with effective characterizations to their credit.

In his two personal appearances on the Keith stage at 4:45 and 9 p. m. Mr. Laughton left it to his audiences what brief excerpts from his most famous roles they would care to hear. The choice inevitably included his roles in "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Rembrandt," "The Beachcomber," "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "Jamaica Inn" and "Ruggles of Red Gap," the last-named, of course, meaning his incomparably fine reading of Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

Perhaps the most erudite and literate of all the Hollywood stars, Mr. Laughton is not one to take merely a bow and retire from the stage. He was on for a good quarter-hour and interlarded his brief characterizations with witty anecdotes and amusing stories. Capacity audiences greeted him, justly enough, with tremendous ovations.

The foremost auxiliary attraction at Keith's this week is the new issue of the March of Time, devoted to "Britain's R.A.F." Here is a comprehensive survey of the training of the personnel, the equipment and the valorous service of the Royal Air Force, with accent on England's constantly growing power in the air and the heroism of its fliers. Many scenes of actual combat are shown, with thrills in every one. The picture was enthusiastically applauded upon its final fadeout. The new release of the Pathe news completes a bill that should be of strong appeal to discriminating picturegoers.

Earle's "City for Conquest" Stars Cagney at His Finest

By Richard L. Coe

"CITY FOR CONQUEST." Warner Brothers' picturization of a novel by Aben Kandel, adapted to the screen by John Wexley, costarring James Cagney and Ann Sheridan, with Frank Craven, Donald Crisp, Frank McHugh, George Tobias, Jerome Cowan, Elia Kazan, Anthony Quinn, Lee Patrick, Blanche Yurka, George Lloyd, Joyce Compton, Thurston Hall, Ben Welden, John Arledge, Ed Keane, Selmer Jackson and Joseph Crehan. Music by Max Steiner. Directed by Anatole Litvak. Reviewed Friday afternoon. At the Earle Theater.

James Cagney's stunning understanding of the characters he portrays makes "City for Conquest" a credible, vital and frequently exciting film. The Earle's newcomer once again illustrates Warner Brothers' aptitude for catching slices of metropolitan life which no other film-makers can consistently equal.

Furthering the New York theme, the Earle stage revue is titled "Around Manhattan," introducing three exceptional variety turns in appropriate night club settings; songstress Corrina Mura, dancers Mario and Floria and comics Buck and Bubbles.

Cagney's forceful fighter, an unwilling puglist, is the central figure in a story of fabulous New York. Adapted from the novel by Aben Kandel, it views the city's life as that of a symphony, symbolized by the musical composition of a leading character. Briefly, it tells of four underprivileged Delancey Streeters; one is a scrappy cuss, not ambitious, simply hopeful; one aims at dancing fame; a third wishes to communicate his music to others; the fourth is headed up the alley of gangsterism.

Ann Sheridan Also Scores

"City for Conquest" is unlike many a similar film because it does not reward all its foursome with success. With the tragedy that follows them comes the understanding that makes for growth. While Cagney's fighter never wanted to box anyway, but did it to earn tuition for his musical brother, he is every inch a scrapper. Cruelly blinded in a foul fight, he sticks to his independence with a gripping zeal: In scenes which have been evolved a hundred times before, Cagney's stanch vitality keeps one alert by his convincing attention to detail.

Ann Sheridan further proves herself a competent player in her role of the ambitious dancer whose ambition ultimately means the gong for Cagney's hero. By intelligent sincerity she has overcome, though happily not overshadowed, her much vaunted "oomph" to achieve fine credibility in a character which also has its share of depth. Arthur Kennedy makes an excellent impression as the only one of the original quartet to secure a sure foothold on the city's tipply ladder.

There are further expert characterizations from able Donald Crisp, playing an understanding manager; convivial Frank McHugh, as the fighter's closest pal, and Elia Kazan as the lad who chose the wrong path. Lee Patrick has her amusing sequences as a friendly chorine and Anthony Quinn is successfully unpleasant in an unsympathetic role. Frank Craven appears as a sort of transplanted, cityfied stage manager from "Our Town," serving, over a period of years, as an unnecessary frame for the central story.

Tip-Top Stage Revue

Anatole Litvak's rhythmical direction and John Wexley's able screen play both contribute immensely to "City of Conquest," but after it is all over, it is the superb Cagney who makes it so vigorous and forthright a film.

As has been suggested, the Earle revue offers some outstanding turns. Least familiar of the personalities is Corrina Mura, an enchanting chanteuse in the Latin-American way. Her manner is distinctly refreshing. The familiar Buck and Bubbles indulge in the downright funny humors to audience delight as well as connoisseurs' enjoyment. Closing the bill are dancers Mario and Floria, the latter as exquisitely groomed a lady as has ever swirled before a four-a-day audience. Lucky partner he whose lady makes this one of the finest ballroom teams.

Just to be different Eileen Ritter's "Sing-a-Song-With-Mike" opener seeks four singers from the house to form a spontaneous quartet for "Good Night Sweetheart." The result is huge fun. The great Roxyettes offer an unbelievable "Conga on Stilts" and a dreamy routine, completing a definitely recommendable bill.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Oct. 18.

THE ARCHITECT who drew the plans for the recent improvements at the Belmont Race Track sent the blueprints to the track officials who, pursuant to law, submitted them to the State Racing Commission for approval . . . The blueprints indicated where new comfort stations would be located, one marked "W"—for "White"—and the other marked "C"—for "Colored" . . . Herbert Bayard Swope examined these blueprints, and immediately phoned the Belmont track office . . . "We can't permit this segregation," he informed. "Here in New York we believe in the Bill of Rights, and make no distinction between White and Colored" . . . "But Mr. Swope," he was told, "that 'W' and 'C' on the blueprints doesn't refer to people. It means that one will have white tile—and the other will have colored tile."

THE WORLD'S FAIR committee, pleased with the recent attendance at the Fairgrounds, hopes to postpone the closing date until November 11, but the mayor is against it . . . Edwin McArthur, Kirsten Flagstad's conductor who became director of Classical Music for the National Youth Administration in this city, has resigned from that NYA post. McArthur, who had won that post on his own merits and against much opposition, quit because he supported another young American musician who wanted a chance as a conductor . . . Rene de Chambrun and his wife, the daughter of Pierre Laval, have been dropped by the Elsa Maxwell set . . . Al Smith's first Willkie speech will be made in Brooklyn on the twenty-third, shortly after the President speaks.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN is telling his friends that from now on he wants only to write and direct movies—without appearing in them. . . . Dixie Walker, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, is coming to terms with the new Pago Pago Club, for a singing engagement there . . . The world's largest trailer camp will be completed at Waterboro, S. C. Winston Churchill has written a special foreword for the new movie, "From Mayerling to Sarajevo" . . . Artie Shaw completed his autobiography, and asked John Garfield to appear in it for the movies. Its title is "Come Blow Your Horn."

LUCIUS BEEBE dined at the 21 Club—having caviar, grouse and wine, for a $40 check—then went to the premiere of "The Great Dictator," and rushed to Fefe's Monte Carlo for champagne, protesting: "That picture is nothing but propaganda" . . . Chaplin, who announced at last that Paulette Goddard was his wife, is living at the River House. Miss Goddard is living at the St. Regis . . . LaGuardia will speak at three Brooklyn meetings for Roosevelt . . . Gracie Fields will fly from Hollywood to rejoin Monty Banks here, and start the production of their first show in America . . . The Department of Investigation's interest in James McKinley Bryant's "Cafe Society Register" was the fact that it also includes the addresses of some rich jewel-possessing people.

LILY PONS attended the opening of the San Francisco Opera and appealed to Paul Flato, the jeweler: "You must loan me something to wear, because I left my jewels in New York." Flato obliged with a diamond necklace. When he returned to his hotel, at 3:30 a. m., he found a note which, in large red letters, promised the return of the necklace the next day. It read, "Lily cannot get your necklace off" . . . John Garfield, Paul Draper, William Saroyan and Garson Kanin, at 7 a. m., registered for the draft together, at the West Fifty-fourth Street school. Kanin recorded the event in movie film . . . George Raft, who left Hollywood for New York, is being tempted by Warner Bros. to return for a costarring role with Edward G. Robinson, in Jack London's "Sea Wolf."

JOSE FERRER is playing the title role in "Charley's Aunt." Because Ferrer wears women's clothes on stage, he has no valet to help him dress. He employs a maid . . . Rosario and Antonio, the new dance team who opened with Eddy Duchin at the Waldorf's Sert Room last week—their first American engagement—are being signed to appear in "Panama Hattie," Buddy de Sylva's new show . . . When Clare Boothe heard Chaplin denouncing Hitler, she said: "Hitler has done one great thing." Chaplin demanded: "Tell me one great thing he's done"—and Miss Boothe reminded: "He's made us conscious of our wonderful liberties."

"No Time for Comedy" Is Now On View at the Metropolitan

Motion picture addicts who want to find out if they'd like the lacquered stage plays of S. N. Berman should see the dizzy "No Time For Comedy" now going into its second lap downtown at the Metropolitan. It's Behrman in small and painless doses with a thick syrupy coating of Hollywood that gives one a chance to be moderately intellectual between laughs.

Jimmy Stewart plays his lank, long-legged and lovable self very ingratiatingly during the first part of the picture. Later he goes Park Avenue with overtones of alcohol and romance, finally recovers his pristine small-town self.

A "lorelei with intellectual patter," played by Genevieve Tobin, provides the centrifugal force that spatters the happy though married love affair of Jimmy and Rosalind Russell all over Manhattan's best bistros and headlines. New York has gone to Jimmy's head after too much uninterrupted success as a playwright. Wife Rosalind is so undeviatingly sweet, understanding and humorous that she gets on his nerves, horribly. With male perversity, he seeks the same remedy for the too understanding wife that is usually set aside in cases of "a wife who doesn't understand"—another woman.

To make it a little less graceless, Jimmy is practically hounded into an amour by Genevieve Tobin, an elegant blonde man-eater, who makes a practice of collecting young men with "innate possibilities," swamping them with emotion, affection and flattery. The story is about how the honest and forthright Roz rescues her man from this sea of appreciation gravy.

An atmosphere of laughter dominates with La Russell only once succumbing to tears when Jimmy is in the middle of his deluded infatuation. Speaking of laughs, Charlie Ruggles plays his banker's role without a smile, but still gives out a constantly twinkling humor. Louise Beavers, playing the sepia maid, also contributes heavily to the mirth, although the amount of celluloid allotted to her seems disproportionate at times.

Not important, "No Time For Comedy" still belongs among the gayer and more entertaining picture items of the fall.

Color dominates the Metropolitan shorts. Phil Spitalny and his girl orchestra appear in handsome technicolor, give a rainbow rendition of Ravel's "Bolero." A popular science sort is done in Magnacolor which seems to emphasize the orange and brown scale, but is, nevertheless, highly effective. In the newsreel, the most delightful shot was that of the Dionne quins listening to the broadcast by young Princess Elizabeth of England. MARY HARRIS

In Hollywood

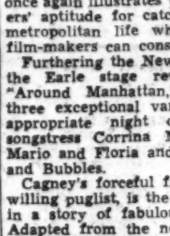
Hollywood, Oct. 18.

When we lost our foreign market, our producers stirred their stumps and gave Americans some of the best pictures I've seen in years. Last week I saw so many hits my head spun 'round like a top. In "They Knew What They Wanted." Garson Kanin's sixth successive hit, Charles Laughton gives his best performance since "Ruggles of Red Gap." Carole Lombard, except when she went melodramatic, was excellent. Bill Gargan has already gotten a salary boost of $1,000 a week through this picture.



HOPPER

John Ford's "The Long Voyage Home" is sure to be among the Academy Award winners. The public wanted something different—here it is. Haven't space to mention all the swell performances, but must pause for praise of Gregg Toland's photography. No wonder Orson Welles grabbed him for "Citizen Kane."

In "A Little Bit of Heaven," with Gloria Jean, we again saw Bill Desmond, a star of yesterday. Why he shouldn't get better parts, I wouldn't know. Also Pat O'Malley. Charlie Ray brought the house down. Jimmy Stewart is our shy hero today, but good though he is, he'll never hold the public's affection as did Charlie, who had a quality of simplicity one rarely comes across. His was one of the first perfectly appointed homes here. And he gathered together writers, musicians, and painters.

I first met Larry Tibbett at his home. Larry met friends there who helped him get his job at the Metropolitan Opera House. But when Charlie insisted on backing his own picture, "Courtship of Miles Standish," he lost everything. But the hand he got the other night proves the public still loves him and would like to see more of him.

"The Thief of Bagdad," which stars Sabu, gives you some breath-taking scenery, all done in color, which many times makes the actors play supporting roles to the Grand Canyon—and why not? Even a "thief" couldn't straddle that ditch. It successfully enters the field of fantasy, which Walt Disney has made his own, but bears slight resemblance to "The Thief of Bagdad," which Doug Fairbanks did in 1924, with Julanne Johnston (now happily married, with a baby, and living in Grosse Pointe, Mich.), and Anna May Wong, as her serving maid. Also it gave Mitch Leisen (now directing "I Wanted Wings") a chance in designing sets for the picture. Raoul Walsh, who directed, is still tops. No wonder actors want to become directors—they last longer.

"Moon Over Burma" proves Dottie Lamour can really act. Albert Basserman gives a fine performance, and Bob Preston and Preston Foster make a mighty team of handsome virility.

Louella O. Parsons' Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Oct. 18 (INS).—What a raft of memories came crowding back today when Cecil B. DeMille, whose "Northwest Mounted" will be previewed in Chicago, told of a wire he had received from Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago, offering him 21 acres along Lake Michigan free if he would build a studio there. Not so long ago, remember, it was Mayor LaGuardia, who was trying to woo the movies away from Hollywood. I'll never forget how excited "Hizzoner" was when I interviewed him in New York and he told his plan to move the picture industry East.

PARSONS

The Chicago area interested me immensely, not only because it is my home town but because the Essanay Film Co. there in the good days was an important as M-G-M today. In fact, in trying to sell his idea to DeMille, Mayor Kelly stressed the former Essanay glory. Charlie Chaplin once made pictures there. So did Gloria Swanson and Wally Beery.

Warners are "between the devil and the deep blue sea," if you will pardon my language. They signed Rita Hayworth to take Ann Sheridan's place in "Strawberry Blonde" and now they can't find Rita. She, knowing nothing of Warner's idea of putting her opposite Jimmy Cagney and Olivia de Havilland, left for Mexico on a vacation with her husband, Ed Judson. Wires galore went out to her, but up to last night she hadn't been located.

Snapshots of Hollywood at random: Nancy Kelly, who nearly eloped with Irving Cummings, jr., is expected to announce her engagement to Edmund O'Brien, her first love; Fritz Feld, famed comedian, and Virginia Kraft, filed their intentions to wed today; Victor Mature's heart beat today is Betty Grable. How that young man does get around; Arthur Hornblow, who has been so sick, was at the preview of his picture, "Arise My Love," and it's a honey—good enough to make him well and Claudette Colbert is very happy, for it is her best picture.

Merle Oberon entertaining at a supper party at Ciro's in honor of her husband, Alexander Korda. She is as proud as he should be over "The Thief of Bagdad"; all of the former WAMPAS baby stars showed up at the meeting at the Town House. The decision will be made later on which ones will win. Janet Gaynor, Sally Eilers, Joan Blondell, June Collyer, Eleanor Boardman, Dolores Del Rio and Sally Blane were all so beautiful that the present day WAMPAS babies will have to work hard to equal them. However, the 1941 crop are all talented and each one did a little skit. It's going to be difficult for Raoul Walsh, and the other directors to make a decision.

Burgess Meredith seems to have moved in on Artie Shaw's territory. He showed up at Ciro's with Frances Neal; Cris Cortez, formerly wed to Ricardo, is back in town after months in the East; was that Jane Wyatt with Edgar Bergen at the Tropics? Louis Blau, Wayne Morris' attorney, and Laraine Day are seeing each other almost daily.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Catholic U. Edges Miami in Thriller, 20-18

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Professional football was supposed to wrap its horny-handed skill around the neck of college football in Washington and strangle interest in the college game, but something seems to have gone wrong with the script.

POVICH

College football here has rebounded nicely from the first spectacular successes of the Redskins and is hitting something of a new peak in fan interest. Georgetown, with its team unbeaten for three seasons; George Washington, with a team that demands respect, is giving the pros a valiant battle of it for local interest and patronage.

Washington was supposed to be the city where pro football would thrive, and that supposition has been eminently justified. The city is peculiar in its fan make-up. It could scarcely cotton to the local college teams en masse as Minnesota or St. Paul might go whole hog for the University of Minnesota, or as Detroit or the whole State might go for Michigan. Washington football goers are in the main transfer fans from every section with no particular allegiance to any local college.

This was the perfect setting for a pro club that could play on the native pride of fans from every State when it presented players from dozens of States. The success of the Redskins here is not strange. Pro football was a natural for Washington and the sell-out crowds are merely a consequence of the football interest that was dormant here.

But pro football hasn't advanced at the expense of college football in Washington. Georgetown and G. W. U. have met the situation smartly by turning out better teams, arranging better games for home consumption, and there is still a large percentage of fans whose interest in football begins and ends with the college brand.

And another thing. George Washington, particularly, has made the college game attractive to local fans with its scale of prices starting at 55 cents. You can't buy the worst seat at a Redskin game for less than $1.10, and if you didn't buy your Redskin tickets last summer, you can't annex any sort of a reserved seat in the grandstands for less than $2.20. That fact may not prevent a Redskin sell-out, but the chances are it is shunting at least a few thousand of the less affluent fans to the college games.

In one sense, the invasion of the pros was a blessing to Washington football. It literally drove together the Georgetown and George Washington teams for an annual game here. The two local colleges buried their peeves as an economic move to meet the threat of pro football's invasion, and Washington fans finally got the game for which they had been shouting ineffectually for years.

The Redskins can pack the park, they can present all of their All-American and stage their between-the-halves carnivals and sideshows, but on the November afternoon when the Georgetown and G. W. U. teams trot out there for the opening whistle, a respectable percentage of fans will be convinved that here is football at its best. There is definitely a more stirring ring to "Sons of Georgetown" tooted by the student band than there is to "Hail to the Redskins" swung by Barnee's pin-feathered mercenaries.

We don't know yet, either, about the lasting qualities of pro football's appeal in Washington. The promoters have been doing very well ever since they brought the Redskins here in 1937 and they have hiked their prices virtually with each succeeding season. They have been able to do that and shut their ears to the squawks of outraged fans because there always seems to be enough people with the heavy dough who will still buy Redskin tickets. But how long will that situation hold out?

What is going to happen, for instance, in the year, or years, when the Redskins may not be such a hot ball club? Thus far, every Redskin team has been a good one, a consistent winner and thus a powerful magnet for the fans. But it is entirely conceivable that there will be a year, or years, when the Redskins won't be a winning club. It is pretty well established that no sort of a fan, even the fans with the heavy dough, likes a losing ball club—especially at those Redskin prices.

We'd say the bulk of the credit for pro football's success in Washington belongs not to the production-minded club officials who bear down between halves with their vaudeville stuff, but to red-headed Ray Flaherty, who produces those Redskin teams. Without Flaherty's Redskins out there winning ball games, those prices would be pretty stiff, even if the vaudeville were good.

On the Line

New York, Oct. 18.—A race track handicapper picks the football winners: (And never has a loser.)

CONSIDINE

MICHIGAN—ILLINOIS. Watch Michigan. Watch Illinois.

DUKE—COLGATE. Duke should take the Duke, if Colgate doesn't clean up.

SOUTHERN CAL.—OREGON. Don't like this one.

TEXAS A. & M.—TEXAS CHRISTIAN. A. & M. may go route. May not.

PENN—PRINCETON. Improving. Good early foot.

PITT—FORDHAM. Both can do better. Or worse.

N. Y. U.—HOLY CROSS. May try this time. Can go either way, or tie, or forfeit.

YALE—DARTMOUTH. No boys.

NORTHWESTERN—WISCONSIN. Like this track. Can go in mud, too.

Speaking of breed-improving, Al Vanderbilt has invited seven turf stars to his fine Pimlico Special, to be run November 1 at the old Baltimore track. The invitations, which are so beautifully engraved that they cost more than some of the horses running at Mr. V's (or any other) track, went out to the owners of Seabiscuit, Timelech, Eight Thirty, Hash, Challedon, Mioland and Fenelon. The last four probably will start, or the last three in case it comes up mud.

In a few short years this special has become a truly great racing fixture. It is run for a comparatively modest purst of $10,000 which is, incidentally, the largest purse given away in America for the winner of a weight-for-age race. It is an imposing fixture not only because it comes as close to deciding the year's champion horse as is possible, but because each year since its inception in 1937 it has produced a thrilling race.

In the opening special, War Admiral nearly got licked in a field of cheap horses. One of them, Masked General, shot wide of the final turn and gave the then unbeaten 3-year-old champion his chance to win. The 1938 renewal was the Seabiscuit-War Admiral Race, one of the great all-time match races. Last year Challedon, bred in Maryland, came back to score a sentimental victory over the South American horse, Kayak II, which had won the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Only win tickets will be sold on the race, which is sensible at that, because all the dough at stake goes to the winner. Vanderbilt feels that it is a good precedent to set because some years he will want to invite two horses only. And in those years when the field is larger, there will never be any need for a beaten horse to be punished by its jockey—trying to reach for place or show purses.

A recent piece wondering what a famed old baseball manager would do if his players revolted in the manner of the Cleveland Indians has wrung a bleak reply from an old baseball fan of our acquaintance. "I'll tell you what he would have done, to save the club from losing the pennant," he writes. "He would have picked out some crooked coach or some dumb rookie who didn't know any better, and would have sent them to the star of the opposing team with a $500 bribe to lay down on his job."

Ice Palace Stages Table Tennis Tourney

A table tennis tournament, the first of its kind staged in Washington for Government employes, will be played tonight at the Chevy Chase Ice Palace, starting at 8 o'clock. Medals will be presented to the winner in each class and a trophy goes to the winner of the Round Robin. Players may warm up at 7 o'clock. Competition will be in four classes as follows: Class A—Good players with D. C., T. T. A. ranking. Class B—Fair players. Class C—For novices. Women's tournament—All classes.

Duquesne Star Flies To Mississippi Game

Pittsburgh, Oct. 18 (AP).—Allan Donelli, star halfback of the Duquesne football team, will fly today to Oxford, Miss., to join his teammates for the Duquesne-Mississippi game tomorrow.

Donelli suffered a hip injury in last week's game with South Carolina. He was left behind when the Dukes departed for Mississippi earlier this week, but Coach Aldo Donelli, a brother, telephoned Duquesne authorities to rush him to Oxford. He was described as being "in pretty good shape."

Sachon Leads Cards' Upset Before 18,000

Star Back Passes For 2 Touchdowns, Drop-Kicks for Pair Of Timely Field Goals

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Oct. 18.—Versatile Pete Sachon threw two down passes and kicked a pair of field goals tonight as Catholic University of Washington, D. C., knocked Miami out of the undefeated list in a hair-raising 20-to-18 football game before a crowd of 21,556.

Catholic University even so had to withstand a surging Miami power attack that almost reversed the tables in the last quarter. Terry Fox's last-minute field goal attempt from Catholic's 18-yard line failed to produce the precious points Miami needed.

The game was less than five minutes old when Charley Moutenot pounced on a fumble by John Tobin to set the stage for Sachon's amazing performance.

Cardinals Score Early

Catholic's quarterback immediately fired a 30-yard pass to Brendan Stynes in the end zone. Mike Cherello tried a dropkick that was blocked, but ran the ball over for extra point.

Miami swept back after receiving the kickoff and went 57 yards for a touchdown. Tobin started the drive with an 18-yard dash and Bill Steiner finished it with a drive through guard from the 1-yard line.

Joe Carrig blocked Fox's placement.

Again Sachon unlimbered his throwing arm in an 83-yard Catholic advance that brought a touchdown. This time Sachon shot a short pass to Moutenot, who galloped over the goal-line on a 39-yard play. Sachon dropkicked the point to give Catholic a 14-6 lead.

Miami, gambling desperately to stay in the game, tried a first down pass deep in its own territory in the third quarter and Moutenot intercepted it to set up Sachon's first field goal. He split the uprights with a dropkick from the Miami 12.

Miami's Steiner Goes Over

Steiner engineered an 80-yard Miami sortie that was interrupted briefly by an exchange of fumbles. Steiner dodged his way over on a 14-yard end run. Fox's placement was blocked.

On the first play after the kickoff, Sachon whipped a pass to Bill Griffin, who ran 60-odd yards to cross Miami goal—but a clipping penalty stopped the play on the Miami seven.

On the first play of the final quarter, Sachon dropkicked 4-yard field goal from a difficult angle. That gave Catholic 20-12 lead but the Miamians were not through.

A couple of substitutes, Reddick Harris and Red Bogart, figured in 66-yard scoring drive, Bogart going over from the 1. Fox's placement was wide.

The Washington team gave Miami a golden opportunity to win the game when Henry Brosteck fumbled and Bill Wunder recovered on Catholic 17. Four plays later, Fox tried his field goal on the 18.

105-Yard Run Helps Temple Beat Spartans

By the United Press

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—Jimmy Powers returned the opening kickoff 105 yards for a Temple touchdown against Michigan State tonight and before the Spartans recovered the Owls rolled up a three touchdown lead which they protected successfully for a 21-19 victory.

Before the 15,000 fans had settled into their seats at Temple Stadium Powers took the kickoff 5 yards behind his own goal line and behind perfect interference swept the entire length of the field for the longest touchdown run in Temple's 16-year football history.

The favored Spartans were knocked back on their heels by the opening minute blow and were completely dazed as the Templars struck overland and in the air for two more touchdowns in the second period.

Successful conversion kicks spelled the Temple margin of victory. The Owls made all three while Michigan State was only able to make one after rallying to push over two touchdowns in the third and another in the fourth.

Temple's second-period scores came when Jim Yeager plunged over from the 5 and Tomasic hit tackle for 7 yards.

The Spartans struck through the air for two third-period touchdowns. One was from Schalb to Carey and the other from Wy Davis to Friedlund. Davis passed to Ball for 11 yards and Fenton added the lone point for Michigan's final period tally.

The last five minutes saw Temple battle gamely to protect its two-point lead and its first win over the Spartans in six starts.

Bears' Osmanski Ready for Dodgers

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—Owner-Coach George Halas said tonight Bill Osmanski, battering full back injured a week ago, will be ready to play with the Bears in Sunday's pivotal clash with Jock Sutherland's Brooklyn Dodgers.

Osmanski has recovered from a hard blow on the head which he suffered in the Detroit game last Sunday. George Musso, guard and Bob Swisher, half back, will be the only Bears sidelined by injuries for the Brooklyn test.

Sutherland's eleven arrives tomorrow morning and will take a final workout at Wrigley Field after the Bears conclude their daily drill.

A Georgetown Touchdown—One of Seven—Last Night

The chap hugging the ball on the goal line is Halfback Jules Koshlap who nosed over on a 3-yard plunge in the third quarter. Georgetown scored three times in that third period during the 46-4 route of Virginia Poly.

'Bama-Vol Clash Holds Grid Spotlight

Odds Layers Ride With Tennessee; Other Football News

By Bill Boni

Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Oct. 18.—The football-interest indicator, which gravitates toward every section of the land at least once each season, bears South this week, on Birmingham, Ala.

There, tomorrow afternoon, Alabama and Tennessee will play the game of the week. Victory in this duel, is likely to bring with it victory of the Southeastern Conference race, and the odds-layers are riding with Tennessee.

A year ago, coming up to this game, 'Bama presumably had proved its worth in beating Fordham while Tennessee was as yet untested. This time the roles are reversed. Tennessee has played and whipped one big one, Duke, while the Crimson Tide has needed little more than orthodox power to get by three rivals. A year ago Tennessee won, 21-0. This one may be as decisive.

72,000 Fans Expected

As for crowds, the biggest of the day, 72,000, is expected in the Ohio State Stadium to see the Buckeyes, Weestern Conference defending champions, attempt to stand off Minnesota.

Yale's higher-ups, incidentally, no doubt will be shocked to find that, in utter disregard of their de-emphasis credo, some 45,000 customers are going to file into the Yale Bowl to see the Bulldog play Dartmouth.

To detour around such crass commercialism, however, and lay the predictions on the line, here goes (home team first, probable attendance in parentheses):

Alabama-Tennessee (25,000)—The Vols' defense appears as stout as ever, the offense to be powerful despite the loss of Cafego. Tennessee.

Cornell-Syracuse (20,000)—Bill Orange recovered nicely last week, but has injury trouble now. Cornell would be the choice even if Syracuse were at full strength. Cornell.

Ohio State-Minnesota (72,000)—The Gophers are well rested and well-primed. Despite an apparent wealth of material, Ohio State has one (disputed) close call, one defeat. Minnesota.

Texas A. & M.-Texas Christian (15,000)—The Aggies' first Conference test also should be their first Conference triumph.

Michigan-Illinois (70,000)—Twenty-three-point-a-game Harmon may not maintain that average forever, but a vote for Michigan.

Washington State-Stanford (22,000)—The word from the West Coast is that Stanford's 1-pointer over Santa Clara really was sump'n. Strictly on hearsay, Stanford.

Penn-Princeton (60,000)—Biggest Eastern game, from an attendance standpoint, and one that should prove whether the Red and Blue has or hasn't got it. Believing it has, Penn.

Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech (35,000)—They say the Irish, like a new car, have been operating under the restraint of a "governor."

Harris-to-Cleveland Movement Underway

Tribe Owner Wants Bucky as Manager; Clark Griffith Gives Bradley and Harris Permission to Make Deal; 3-Year Pact Wanted

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

The Bucky Harris-to-Cleveland movement was storm-tossed by conflicting statements yesterday, but two facts as reported by The Post withstood the cross-fire of quotations. They are:

(1) That Cleveland Owner Alva Bradley wants Harris to manage the Indians and,

(2) That both Bradley and Harris have been given permission by Clark Griffith to bargain about the job.

Despite one report that Griffith confessed ignorance of any dickering for Harris by the Cleveland owner, the Nats' owner yesterday figured in this interview with a Post reporter:

"Did Mr. Bradley call you by long distance telephone and ask your permission to make Harris an offer to manage the Cleveland club?"

Mr. Griffith: "Yes, Mr. Bradley did that."

"Did you give Mr. Bradley permission to deal with Harris?"

Mr. Griffith: "I did. I told Mr. Bradley that I would not stand in Harris' way if he could better himself in baseball."

Permission Given

"Did you tell Harris you would not object if he talked terms with Bradley, Mr. Griffith?"

Griffith: "That is true. I told Harris I would release him as manager if he could make better terms with Cleveland."

Down at Cape Hatteras, where he is on an extended fishing trip, Harris yesterday was quoted by the United Press as follows: "The story about my bargaining with Cleveland is untrue. I know nothing about it."

But the Cleveland Press, which interviewed Harris by long distance telephone drew from Harris the admission that: "Of course I would try to better myself in baseball if the opportunity presented itself."

The Post yesterday reported, on information known to be trustworthy, that Bradley has already been in communication with Harris and flatly offered him the job of managing the Cleveland team in 1941.

Demanded Three-Year Contract

The Post also reported that Harris refused that offer and demanded a three-year contract before he would accept the Cleveland job.

That counter-offer by Harris will be considered, probably favorably by the Cleveland club at its board of directors meeting on October 28, The Post reported.

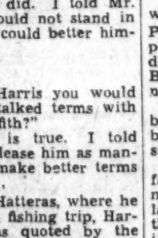
There is always the possibility, of course, that Mr. Bradley asked Mr. Griffith's permission to deal with Harris merely because as a telephone stockholder he sought to increase the company's revenue with a protracted long-distance call.

Mr. Bradley, perhaps, had no intention of making Harris an offer. Perhaps Mr. Bradley is just one of those long-distance telephone addicts, huh?

Willkie Prelim Boy Against Champion, Says Jack Dempsey

By the Associated Press

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 18.—Jack Dempsey, drawing upon his ring career for a figure of speech in a factory gate Democratic rally here, likened Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee, today to "a prelim boxer put in the ring with the world's champion."



DEMPSEY

The former heavyweight champ said he was for Roosevelt because the President was "the smartest statesman in the world today, and that includes Hitler and Mussolini."

"You can't put an inexperienced man in the ring in this great fight to save America," he said.

Conn Gains Decision Over Veteran McCoy

Light Heavyweight Champion Scores Unanimously Over Foe

By the Associated Press

Boston, Oct. 18.—Light heavyweight Champion Billy Conn, from Pittsburgh cut loose with all of his power tonight to gain a unanimous decision over Al McCoy, the veteran Boston heavyweight, in a 10-round nontitle bout at Boston Garden.

Conn spent the last half of the bruising bout trying for a knockout but the only damage his opponent suffered was a half-closed left eye.

Conn, who started as a top-heavy favorite, displayed a marked weakness for McCoy's left jab, which the latter worked to good effect during the early rounds, and then almost ignored that potent weapon.

Both Start Slowly

Both started slowly and when they came out for the fifth round, the action was even. Conn then started to close in and slug with both hands, however, a change of tactics that rendered McCoy's light left harmless. The Bostonian tried a few lefts and was punished severely about the body every time he missed, which was often.

A furious last-minute rally in the fifth put Conn into the lead and he started to build it up from there to the finish. In the sixth, after taking a few light lefts to the head, Conn crowded McCoy and lathered his body with steaming lefts and rights.

McCoy tried to regain the lead in the seventh but the handsome Conn, whose confidence increased with every round, took everything his opponent could deliver to get in his own telling blows, most of which were aimed at McCoy's bulgy body.

The aroused Pittsburger spent the rest of the bout punishing McCoy severely. But his knockout hopes were futile—perhaps because he was losing most of his steam by punching flat-footed.

Conn Shakes McCoy

Conn shook McCoy repeatedly during the ninth and tenth, landing both hands heavily to the body while pausing only to shake off the effects of McCoy's straight lefts to the head. It was obvious that the light heavyweight titlist was striving for a knockout during the last two frames but his best punches failed to halt the courageous McCoy who, realizing he was hopelessly out-pointed, strove to launch a paralyzing punch that never came.

Conn, who has yet to suffer a setback from a heavyweight, scaled 172¾, to McCoy's 181½.

Colonials Hold 2-Hour Drill For Ky. Game

Coach Reinhart Makes Three Line-up Changes; Breeding Farms Visited

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

A Staff Correspondent

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 18.—George Washington University's undefeated football team, a decided underdog here in the horse and tobacco center of the Bluegrass State, went to bed tonight slightly crippled but all set for its big game with the University of Kentucky tomorrow.

The Colonials spent a busy day today. After an early arrival the team followed a hearty breakfast with a visit to several of the country's leading breeding farms near here, including Charles Fisher's Dixiana Farm and Samuel D. Riddle's Faraway Farm where Man o'War, War Admiral and others are in retirement.

The order of the afternoon was a two-hour workout on Stoll Field, where the 33-man squad went through a full passing, kicking and signal drill. Head Coach Bill Reinhart took part in a radio broadcast in the evening and a chalk talk followed in his room, with Kentucky plays the chief subject.

The Colonial coach revealed three line-up changes for the first invasion of the Southeastern Conference. Burnell Martinson in place of Murphy Booth at halfback, Dan Snyder for Tony Barauskas at tackle and Stan Ziobo for John Kokoski at guard.

Booth has been out of practice all week with a shoulder injury suffered in the Washington and Lee game, and at the most he will see action for one half. Barauskas has been troubled with a sinus affection and is a doubtful starter, while Kokoski did not make the trip, as his father died Thursday night in Ambridge, Pa.

The major factor in G. W.'s favor is that the unbeaten Wildcats are undoubtedly pointing for future contests with Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee, and may take the Colonials a little lightly. Kentucky beat Washington and Lee 29 points worse than G. W. and mainly on

G. W. Frosh Beat Young Terps, 37-6

By the Associated Press

George Washington's freshman football team trounced the Maryland freshmen, 37 to 6, yesterday in a practice game.

Weber was the outstanding performer for George Washington, ripping off 60-yard and 30-yard runs for scores in the first half, scoring after a 70-yard run in the second half, and tossing a 40-yard pass to Lewandowski for another touchdown. Maryland's only score came on a 50-yard pass from Tom Mont to Jack Wright in the final minutes.

Penalties Mar Game At Stadium

Doolan and Falcone Spark Hoyas in 20th Game Without Loss; G. U. Penalized 105 Yds.

By Jack Munhall

Amid the public address announcer's monotonous cry of "there's a horn on the play," Georgetown University's powerful eleven managed to gain more yards than the officials penalized them at Griffith Stadium last night and hung a convincing 46-4 defeat on Virginia Poly before an estimated 10,000 fans.

Harried by the frequent and ugly blast of Head Linesman F. L. Gilbert's horn, the Hoyas warmer slowly to the task of registering their nineteenth victory in 20 games, but when the task had been completed Coach Jack Hagerty must have been overjoyed at the result.

Losing the astounding total of 105 yards by 14 inflicted penalties, the Hilltoppers were forced to work extra hard to pick up one touchdown in the first period, two in the second, one in the third and a cliching trio of six-pointers in the final stanza. Meantime the hard-bitten Georgetown forward walls bottled V. P. I.'s vaunted backs pretty thoroughly, the Gobblers being restricted to a pair of safeties, one in the second quarter and another in the fourth.

The visitors' first two points were gained when Jack Spencer, reserve Georgetown halfback, was caught behind the goal line by Irving Chasen, V. P. I. end after fumbling a bad pass from center. Then in the last period a behind-the-goal punt by Lou Falcone, sub Hoya quarterback, was blocked by V. P. I. tackle Henderson and the ball bounded out of the end zone for an automatic safety.

Doolan, Falcone Star

Leaders of the Crushing G. U. which rolled up 255 yards rushing and 142 by passing for a total of 397, were Jack Doolan, sophomore speed merchant, who scored a pair of touchdowns on end sweeps of 38 and 177 yards, and Lou Falcone, who passed for a pair of touchdowns. Falcone connected with ends John Lascari and David Wiley, and tapered off his performance with a toss to Wiley which was good for the conversion following the last of the Hoyas' seven touchdowns.

The Gobblers, though they showed flashes of a dangerous offensive with fullback George Warriner carrying the ball, were never able to get going in the face of Georgetown's swift-charging forwards and finished up the game with a total gain of only 34 yards. And but 15 of these were earned rushing.

The punting of both teams was excellent, Georgetown averaging 41 yards from the boots of tackle Joe Daniels and backs Falcone and Spencer, and the Gobblers getting a distance of 38 per try from the efforts of Warriner, Blandford and Rudkin Hudson, who relieved Warriner when the latter was injured in the first half.

Barrett Tallies

The first two Georgetown touchdowns were the indirect result of breaks which the Hoyas fully capitalized. A pass interference penalty on a heave from Koshlap to Joe McFadden gave the Hilltoppers the ball on the V. P. I. 8 and after Lou Ghecas carried to the 8, Barrett plunged over McFadden converted from placement.

Shortly thereafter, early in the second period, Angelo Paternoster, Georgetown guard, plopped on a fumble by Halfback James, of V. P. I., and the Hoyas obtained the ball on the Gobblers' 25.

The Hoyas then were checked temporarily when two 15-yard penalties for holding and clipping set them back to the 40, but they were on the move again after Hudson punted out to the V. P. I. seven. Frank Dornfeld, sophomore halfback making his debut for Georgetown after finally shaking off injuries, plunged to the 38 and Doolan on a great burst of speed circled left end on the next play to score standing up. Tackle Bill Nealon's placement was short.

Doolan tallied his second touchdown of the game and his fifth of the season for Georgetown several minutes later after the Hoyas got possession on the enemy 17 on a short punt by Hudson, which was returned 19 yards by Al Kull.

Opening the second half Georgetown which had been blocking and tackling rather poorly showed marked improvements. Taking the kickoff the Hoyas marched 61 yards only to be halted on the V. P. I. 30 when a fourth-down pass failed. But after Warriner's kick was returned 9 yards by Koshlap to the G. U. 30, the Hoyas power drove their way to their fourth touchdown, Koshlap scoring.

The fifth Hoya 6-pointer fell to Lascari in the fourth period when standing in the end zone, he caught a 30-yard pass from Falcone. Mc-

Vintage Port Takes Laurel Feature; Favorite Runs Last

Rosetown Disappoints As Choice

Sanford Stud Farm's Gelding Scores Over Predicate; Victor Pays $9.70 Price

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Laurel, Md., Oct. 18.—An invader from the New York tracks, Vintage Port, showed rare courage here this afternoon in winning the first race of his career under the colors of the Sanford Stud Farm. With Jockey Bobby Merritt riding for all his worth, the gray gelding was up in the final jump to hang defeat on W. R. Reid's Predicate. A length in back of the first money struggle was A. C. Bostwick's Shipmate after some poor racing luck.

The odds-on favorite in the race, George D. Widener's Rosetown, brought up the rear of the field apparently without excuses. The crowd of 8,000 noted that Rosetown had won over a longer route of a mile and a sixteenth (today's distance was a mile and 70 yards) in time of 1:44 4-5 and piled the money into the tote on her chances. Today's time was 1:44 3-5 and Rosetown was left up the race track by some 7 lengths.

Backers of Vintage Port collected at the rate of $9.70 for each $2 investment. Three of the original field were scratched this afternoon and two this morning, leaving only five to compete in the race that featured Friday's sport.

Vintage Port Takes Lead

Vintage Port raced along the rail and took a slight lead going to the first turn. Rosetown was closest on the swing to the backtretch, but the leader shook off the Widener miss, to open a good lead.

Many Laurel fans believed they had seen a colt destined to play a big part in next year's 3-year-old stakes when they saw the Milky Way Farm's After Dawn win the fifth race by five lengths in gallopping fashion. The son of Challenger II and After Dark simply ran away from his rivals in the stretch, to turn in time of 1:13 for 6 furlongs. Installed the favorite, After Dawn paid $5.30, while in charge of Jockey C. Bierman, leading rider of the meeting. J. C. Ellis' Dixie Maid was second, and R. F. Tartiere's Light of Morn was third.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars put in a bid of $3,000 for After Dawn at the Saratoga sales last summer, and it has been said that she would have gone as high as $20,000 for the good-looking youngster. Bierman allowed After Dawn to settle into stride on the outside and kept him away from some of the trouble that marked the race for other horses. The stewards took action on the race. Jockey F. A. Smith, under contract to Col. E. R. Bradley, was fined $100 for striking Jockey E. Lindy with his whip. Smith was riding Bitter Ender, while Lindy was aboard Yankee Party.

Gelding Loses Rider

Just as backers of Forest Charm were making plans to spend a $74 mutuel the 8-year-old gelding lost his rider and was eliminated from the steeplechase. Jockey W. Poland had Forest Charm ten lengths ahead of his nearest rival and apparently was headed for a easy victory. In taking the thirteenth jump Forest Charm landed badly, stumbled and sent Poland into the air.

The boy grabbed the horse's mane and attempted to pull himself back in the saddle. However, he lost his grip and fell to the ground. W. G. Jones' Pine Tag then became the leader, took the final jump, and won easily to pay $8.70. Greenwich Time was second and Peter Pine was third.

Jockey Taylor Scores a Triple At Rockingham

Climaxes Big Day by Winning Feature On Burning Stick

By the Associated Press

Salem, N. H., Oct. 18.—Walter Lee Taylor, the Nation's leading jockey, scored another triple today at Rockingham Park when he drove E. A. Bischoff's Burning Stick to a close victory over Josie's Pal and Sundodger in the Sugar Hill Purse, featured mile and a sixteenth event for 3-year-olds.

Taylor also won today with Carnarvon in the third race and Fencing in the fifth, bringing his total for the year up to 211 winners. It was the second triple in two days for the Houston, Tex., boy.

The time was 1:47. Burning Stick paid $7.40, $4.40 and $3.20, while Josie's Pal returned $32.40 and $11.40 and Sundodger paid $2.80.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLUE STRING, $7.40, $5.60, $3.10; LAST BET, $9.30, $4.30; FOLD UNDER (entry), $2.40.

BLUE STRING, hustled to reach serious contention, was rated closest to LAST BET'S pace and was easy winner. LAST BET was hard ridden while setting pace and held on gamely. FOLD UNDER raced on inside and was held safe in closing stages. LAUDERKIN was off slowly and closed willingly. BILL K. can do better than shown.

SECOND RACE—About 2 miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming; steeplechase. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 2:02½. Off at once. Winner, W. O. Jones' ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BROILER, $30.50, $10.00, $6.40; BILLY BEE, $4.00, $3.00; MAROC, $4.90.

BROILER forced pace of BILLY BEE from start and took slight lead approaching wire under strong handling. BILLY BEE was hard handled and tired slightly right at close. MAROC raced wide to improve position and closed full of run. LITTLE KISS raced on inside and was under pressure through stretch. GALLANT STROKE gained contention and then faltered.

Daily Double, BLUE STRING and BROILER, Paid $116.20

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:01. Off 3:01½. Winner, P. Reda's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MADISON, $9.50, $4.60, $3.70; ZENANA, $6.10, $4.50; SURPRISE BOX, $3.60.

MADISON, first away, but allowed to settle into stride, came wide for racing room and withstood long drive to win while drawing out. ZENANA shook off JULIE MACAW to open good lead and was tiring at close. SURPRISE BOX went to inside to better position, was shut off by ZENANA and came willingly when clear. KAPTIME was well placed throughout. GENNARO appears ready to win.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,100; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gate. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 3:32. Off at once. Winner, Milky Way Farm's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—AFTER DAWN, $5.30, $4.60, $2.70; DIXIE MAID, $11.30, $4.90; LIGHT OF MORN, $2.60.

AFTER DAWN, fine looker, was steadied along on outside in early stages, lost ground at stretch turn and went to front with bold rush when called upon and won easily. DIXIE MAID raced in close quarters early and responded gamely when placed to drive. LIGHT OF MORN was rated early while in first flight, moved up on turn for home and closed gamely. YANKEE PARTY had a rough early trip and came willingly at end.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,200; allowances. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:01. Off 4:02. Winner, Sanford Stud Farm's gr. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—VINTAGE PORT, $9.70, $5.70, $6.70; PREDICATE, $12.30, $8.90; SHIPMATE, $8.60.

VINTAGE PORT raced on inside to take lead going to first turn, shook off ROSETOWN to draw clear and responded when shaken up to come again and defeat PREDICATE in closing strides. PREDICATE was rated in early stages, responded when shaken up, drove to front, but weakened right at close. SHIPMATE was squeezed back at first turn, moved up menacingly and then hung. BAR FLY rallied mildly. ROSETOWN followed pace to stretch and stopped.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:31. Off 4:37. Winner, C. O. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WAYRIEL, $35.30, $11.00, $6.90; DOROTHY POMP, $4.40, $3.70; ENTRE NOUS, $7.10.

WAYRIEL, allowed to settle into stride, came around horses to improve position and bore in in stretch run and held on in final test. DOROTHY POMP was in thick of forward contention from start, took brief lead in stretch and was crowded by winner. ENTRE NOUS lacked early speed, weaved between horses to improve position and closed full of run on outside. CHARLENE was far back early, came with good energy to improve position and was held safe at end.

EIGHTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 5:06. Off 5:06½. Winner, H. T. PART ONE, allowed to race on own courage for half, came to inside to improve position steadily, swung out for racing room in straightaway and was up in final stride. ARMY BANNERS was hard pressed by STEEL KING, lost lead momentarily in midstretch, and came again to barely miss lasting. KNOXVILLE was keen forward factor and tired in stretch run.

Selections at Laurel

Dear Al:

This track offers another of those twin-features today and officials are making plans to care for another crowd of from 18,000 to 20,000. The $5,000 added Spalding Lowe Jenkins for 2-year-olds at a mile and a sixteenth occupies the fourth position on the program. This battle will be followed by the $7,500 added Maryland Handicap at a mile and a quarter with 3-year-olds holding the spotlight. Here's some facts on the Jenkins: Today's Spalding Lowe Jenkins will be the thirteenth. Last year the race went to J. Y. Christmas' Rough Pass, carrying 113 pounds and running the mile in 1:39 1-5. Victory Morn was second and Boy Angler third. Today will be the first time the Jenkins has been run at the mile and a sixteenth distance. Previously it has been at a mile since its inception in 1923. The first running, won by Twink, was the richest Jenkins, the winner earning $12,750. R. A. Moore's Clodion holds the time record for the stake, having run the 6 furlongs in 1:38 in 1936 under 111 pounds. No jockey ever has won the Spalding Lowe Jenkins twice. The track record for a mile and a sixteenth is 1:43 2-5, set in 1916 by Boots. And here's some facts on the Maryland Handicap: Today's Maryland Handicap will be the twenty-sixth. Last year the race was won by W. L. Brann's Chatledon, carrying 128 pounds and covering the mile and a quarter in 2:02 3-5. General Mowles was second and Hostility third. The time record for this stake is held jointly by Sir Barton (1919) and Sarazen (1924) each traveling the route in 2:02 2-5. Vanity won the richest Maryland Handicap in 1929, picking up $16,800 first money. Three jockeys have won the race twice. They are George Woolf (Gallant Sir, 1932 and Chatledon 1939); Charley Kurtsinger (War Glory, 1933 and Floradora 1936) and G. Babin (My Own, 1923 and Sarazen, 1924). The track record for a mile and a quarter is held by Hourless, who completed the distance in 2:02 in 1917. See you on the rail.—BILL.

First race—Dark May dropped a neck decision to The Queen in a fast-run race last week and appears primed to whip the slightly cheaper grade platers she meets today. Bellringer has been a consistent winner in late races and will be the one to beat. Crius has the speed to become dangerous.

Second race—Fogoso carried a burden of 118 pounds to victory over a shifty field of class C sprinters in his last and dropping weight for today's contest he figures to repeat. Panoramscope has displayed splendid form in late races but has been going routes. Court Dance has a very good chance.

Third race—Bird Woman was closing when beaten two lengths by the speedy Unquote in 1:11 2-5 in a recent New York race. The distance of today's race should suit. Dark Discovery was second to Tangled and beat Nasca in a stake race in New York. Frontier Model is another New Yorker with class.

Fourth race—Swain, winner of the Arlington Futurity, indicates by his recent third to Monday Lunch and Bold Irishman that he is regaining his best form. He drops weight and likes a route. Bold Irishman will be the one to beat. Madigama displayed a good effort behind Level Best.

Fifth race—Moscow II was beaten a length by Rosetown in his latest test, racing within a second of the track. Chief contention is expected to come from Bolingbroke provided the latter has not lost his speed through competition in the New York Handicap. Rough Pass should show.

Sixth race—Memory Book scored over high class platers at Hawthorne last month and needs only to produce a fraction of his oldtime class to repeat at the expense of these platers. Weekly Stipend was fair in New England and figures next in line. Autumn Quest appears best of the local talent represented.

Seventh race—Alsang has been very consistent among platers of this caliber and his recent second to Bellringer indicates he still retains his edge. Barbed Retort was a nose behind the top horse last outing but takes the worst of a seven-pound weight shift. Dohoev has won her last three but all on off tracks.

Best bet—Moscow II.

Ace Redskins' forward passer, Sammy Baugh, autographs cast on broken arm of Harry Goodwin, Washington Post photographer who received his injury during last Sunday's Redskins-Cardinals game when Baugh knocked him down accidentally. The accident occurred as Baugh was forced out of bounds and into Goodwin, who had his camera raised to photograph the play. Baugh helped Goodwin to his feet, saying "Sorry old man," as he dashed off

By Bill Burnett

Pushing across a touchdown in the first 30 seconds of play, Western High's jarring grid machine went ahead to score at least once in every period and pin a 32-6 beating on Anacostia eleven yesterday in an interhigh series game.

The early score and another registered in the first period removed all doubt of the outcome, giving the Raiders a tie with Eastern for the league lead. Approximately 2,000 spectators turned out at the Georgetown stadium, saw a thrilling game despite the one-sidedness of the score.

Anacostia disputed every yard picked up by the Raiders and with the count 32-0 against it in the final stanza was still interested enough to work a "sleeper" which accounted for its only score.

Highlight of Game

That was the high spot of the game, overshadowing Western's five scoring drives. It came immediately after the Georgetowners had tallied their last time and after the following kickoff had been run back to Anacostia's 38.

Lanky Dick Faircloth, brother of the Indians' 1939 star, laid out on the sidelines as his team huddled. He was waiting patiently on the Western 40 for Bob Nolte's arrow-straight pass and took it over with five Raiders chasing him futilely. The play was good for 62 yards. Nolte's pass to Faircloth for the extra point was caught, but outside the end zone.

Exactly two plays were all the defending inter igh champions needed to score their first touchdown—along with Burback's fumble of the openink kick-off on the Indian 30. Jack Sickel recovered for Western, and Jake Hilleary hit the line for 5 yards. Again it was Hilleary in the tailback spot, passing to Bill Goodman for the goal. Sickel plunged through a pile-up for the extra point, but was short.

Western Scores Again

Late in the same period Western tallied again, this time after a 40-yard drive. From the 10-yard stripe Hilleary went over without a hand on him and completed the play with a perfect placement.

One of two interceptions by the Raiders accounted for their second-quarter score. Capt. Jack Xanten grabbed Nolte's pass from the Indian 25, waited for his blockers and scored easily. This time Hilleary's kick was wide.

Taking the second-half kick-off, Western pushed straight down the field from its own 42 to score on Bill Marlow's 3-yard line plunge. Scarlet point-making was finally wound up in the last stanza on a 24-yard aerial from Clarence Kuldell to Bobby Leach. Kuldell tried to placekick but the effort was wide and Lineman Simpson staged a race with players of both teams for the ball.

Hilleary, Western's big gun, was removed in the second quarter when an injury to his right ankle was aggravated. Other first-stringers, however, stayed in until only one minute of the game was left. Coach Dan Ahern was taking no chance with the Indians.

Briarley Beats Woodward In Grid Opener

Ammendale, Md., Oct. 18.—After a 7-year layoff due to the lack of material, Briarley Military Academy reentered the scholastic football wars today when it defeated Woodward School, 13-0, on the home field.

In the first of a four-game schedule, the Cadets were held scoreless by Woodward for two quarters, but in the third they finally reached pay territory. A 40-yard pass from Quarterback Meyers landed in Reed's arms in the end zone.

In the fourth period, scoring was closed out when Halfback Todgkins, backing up the Briarley line, raced in to intercept Prosis' pass and romp 42 yards for a touchdown.

Western Had a Field Day—Indian Boosters Had None

Upper—Without a member of the opposition anywhere near him, Western High's Jake Hilleary is shown stepping over the goal line for the Raiders' second touchdown against Anacostia yesterday. The play occurred in the first period on a 10-yard dash through tackle. Lower—Some idea of the outcome may be had from the appearance of Anacostia's cheerleaders here. Virginia Matthews, Ruth Moore and Margaret Ferneyhough register deep disgust as the Indians go down, 32-6

Liners Battle Florida Today At Gainesville

Speedy Murphy Gets 'Hit-and-Run' Role; Heat May Hurt Terps

Special Dispatch to The Post

Gainesville, Fla., Oct. 18.—Joe Murphy, Maryland's speedy but slim quarterback, is scheduled for "hit-and-run" duty here tomorrow when the Terps meet the University of Florida eleven in what to them will be unaccustomed heat.

Maryland's Coach Jack Faber said today that he plans frequent substitutions to enable his players to weather the high temperature and that Murphy, the Southern Conference dash champion, will be inserted only when the Old Liners are in scoring position.

In that way Faber hopes to utilize Murphy's talents to the fullest and at the same time to keep him fresh.

The Terrapins, winless in three games this season, will be strengthened for tomorrow's clash with the 'Gaters by the return of Fullback Bernie Ulman, who missed last week's Virginia game because of a throat ailment.

H. C. Byrd, president of Maryland and formerly a successful coach at College Park, is expected to arrive here tomorrow and occupy a box on the 50-yard line together with prominent Florida officials.

G. W. Holds Long Drill for Ky. Clash

the comparative scores every football forecaster in the country has picked Kentucky, by from one to four touchdowns.

The Wildcat team took the field following G. W.'s workout today, and was feted at a giant pep rally at night. The team, on the comeback trail after several lean years on the gridiron, has won three, over Xavier, Baldwin Wallace and Washington and Lee, and last week died a good Vanderbilt team in the last two minutes of play.

As Coach Reinhart expressed it today, "We didn't come here for the train ride." The entire squad has the same idea. The boys realize that a victory here will give them a great start for five consecutive home games, and they feel, with Ken Batson and Walter Fedora in their usual scoring form, they can spring one of the day's major upsets. Tom Grady, a slow starter last year, is figured to come through and give added punch in the backfield.

Coach Ab Kirwan is also a little beset for reserves, and instead of his usual two-team basis in previous games he is reported to have just one good team and scattered reserves for tomorrow.

The nearby Keeneland race track will more than likely detract from the crowd tomorrow, but some 10,000 are expected at the university stadium.

D. C. Table-Tennis Tourney Tomorrow On Columbia Courts

The D. C. Table Tennis Association will hold its second tournament of the season tomorrow at 8 p. m. at the Columbia table tennis courts, Fourteenth and Monroe Streets Northwest. Entries will be accepted at the courts and admission for spectators will be free.

Already are entered Stanley Fields and Carolyn Wilson, the District's No. 1 man and woman players. Miss Wilson also is champion of Maryland and California and shares the mixed doubles title in Maryland with Bob Bensinger, local tennis player, who also will participate.

A large entry is expected, as the tournament will be used for ranking purposes.

D.C. Girl Bows In Fort Worth Golf, 3 and 2

By the Associated Press

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 18.—Mrs. George (Babe Didrikson) Zaharias, of Los Angeles, today eliminated Helen Dettweiler, of Washington, D. C., from the Texas Women's Open golf tournament.

Mrs. Zaharias dropped a curling 10-foot putt on the sixteenth green for a par three that gave her a 3-2 decision over the tanned blonde from the East in a semifinale.

Elizabeth Hicks, of Pasadena, Calif., downed Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, of Fort Worth, 3 and 2, in the other semifinal. Mrs. Zaharias hadn't lost a hole in the tournament unil she got wild and dropped No. 6 to Miss Dettweiler's bogey five. That left Babe 2 up and she retained this advantage at the turn in a match of mediocre scoring.

Like Mrs. Goldthwaite, Miss Dettweiler had a lot of trouble on the greens.

Idaho Sportsmen Grumble—Cause Is Sun and Law

Twin Falls, Idaho, Oct. 18 (AP).—South central Idaho sportsmen grumbled—and loudly—as the duck season opened.

The sun rises 20 to 27 mintes later—legally—in Cassia County, Idaho, than in contiguous Box Elder County, Utah. Marshes, ideal for duck hunting, are along the border.

The difference in sunrise time—when hunters may start firing—is all a matter of Weather Bureau jurisdiction. Officials at Boise regulate Idaho's sunrise; those at Salt Lake City set Utah's.

Paul Jarman Sets Two Pin League Marks

His 175 and 439 Top in Chevy Chase League at Ice Palace

Paul Jarman, Columbia Specialty, was red hot at the Ice Palace last night as the Chevy Chase Commercial League resumed rolling. Jarman had season record high counts for game and set of 175 and 439 and helped his team to take two out of three from City Motors. The Ramblers garnered team highs with 619 and 1,800, but lost the odd game to the Hot Shoppes quintet. J. C. Flood and Mount Vernon Mortgage won all three games from Uptown Liquor and the Ice Palace, respectively.

In the Treasury Department League play at Brookland Recreation Ford, Public Health, and L. Howder, Secret Service, took individual honors with 153 and 366, respectively. The Procedure quintet won high team game with 579, while the Chief Clerks garnered top set with 1,662.

Miss Teed, Edmonds Opticians, and Donna-May Mulquin, Willis Esso, shared the limelight at Brookland Recreation as the Brookland Ladies League rolled. Miss Teed's high game of 133 and Mrs. Mulquin's set of 334 gained individual honors, while the Willis Esso quintet took team set with 1,507. Myrtle Alderton, Brookland Garage, had a 332 set, while Margaret O'Brein, Michigan Park Market, posted a near record set of 321. The last-place Continental Life quintet swamped Brookland Recreation in all three games for the upset of the evening.

It was Virginia Calvagno and her D. D. W.'s quintet most of the way at Arcadia in the Ladies Independent Bowling League. Virginia's high count for game and set was 134, 337, and a big boost in her team's capture of high game with 529. United Typewriter recorded a total of 1,512 to garner set laurels. Kidwell's Senators are in first place, taking the odd game from the D. D. W.'s despite the performance of Miss Calvagno.

Mike Gass was high individual game man in the Petworth League rolling with 166 which led his team, Bill Jawish Service Station, in a three-game sweep over York Restaurant and a tie for second place in the standing with 10-5, Schaeffer Motor being the other team. Lou Jenkins, Wonder Bread, had high set of 410 to pace his boys to team set of 1,794 and all three games from Brotman's Market. The Jawish five took team game with 635. Soller's Plumbing holds down first place with 11-4.

Penn Recreation will be the scene Saturday night of a doubles match between Mabelle Hering and Marie Spates rolling against Ruth Zentz and Naomi Zimmerman, comprising the Franklin team of Baltimore. The 5-game doubles match will start at 8 o'clock Saturday night at Penn Recreation.

Cavaliers Set For Invasion Of V.M.I. Today

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 18.—The University of Virginia football squad rested its case today and retired to the peace and quiet of Woodberry Forest to await tomorrow's clash with the powerful forces of V. M. I. here in Scott Stadium, starting at 2:30.

Leaving immediately after a brief workout, the Cavaliers returned to their preseason practice headquarters for an overnight stay, remaining there until seveal hours before game time.

The Cadets also are scheduled for a late morning arrival on the scene, and it will be a confident squadron Coach Pooley Hubert is leading across the Blue Ridge from Lexington tomorrow for Virginia's homecoming event, which is expected to attract a crowd of more than 15,000.

Meanwhile, the stage seemed to be set for Charlottesville's biggest football week-end, with everything to be decided on the field. The balance of power may center in V. M. I.'s backfield, but the Cavaliers have been working on some mystery weapons to offset that.

Hash Favored In $15,000 'Cap At Jamaica

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Payne Whitney's 4-year-old Hash, who hasn't done so well ever since he was invited to the Pimlico Special, gets what may be his last "prep" outing for that event on November 1, in the $15,000-added Gallant Fox Handicap at Jamaica tomorrow.

Only three other horses—all of them 3-year-olds—were named today to run against the aptly-named son of Questionnaire—Delicacy in the second running of the mile-and five-eighths event named after one of the greatest horses in the last dozen years.

Although he is asked to pack 123 pounds, spotting his rivals up to 21 pounds, the Whitney hope probably will go to the post an odds-on choice to take the winner's end of the stake won last year by William Woodward's route-going Isolator.

Steve Hiser Stars For Saints, Scoring Three Touchdowns

With Steve Hiser, 185-pound senior, doing the bulk of the scoring, St. Albans turned an upset into a rout yesterday as they defeated Georgetown Prep, 27 to 6, on the Saints' field. Hiser accounted for three of the winners' four touchdowns, the last being the culmination of a 65-yard run in the third period.

St. Albans lost no time in getting into the scoring column. After an exchange of punts, Bill Terry blocked a kick off the toe of Bud Echrich early in the opening stanza on the Prep's 15-yard stripe, and Hiser on two rushes carried to pay dirt. The second score, again by Hiser, was a result of a 45-yard march down field where it was plunged over from the six. Bill Terry added both placements.

On the opening kick-off of the third period Hiser broke away for a 65-yard jaunt for his third touchdown. Terry's placement was blocked. Later in the same stanza a Bud Echrich pass was intercepted by the Saints on the ten and on two plays Mike Rizik took it over for the score. Terry converted.

The prepmen scored their lone marker in the final canto. With Bud Echrich doing most of the running and passing, the Little Hoyas drove to the Albans 29, where a pass interference placed the ball on the one-yard line and Echrich took it over. The try for extra point went wide.

Recreation Lists 3 Touch Games

Touch football in the D. C. Recreation League will go into the second week of play tomorrow with a schedule of three games. All matches will be played on the football field located south of the Reflecting Pool.

The first match is on tap for 9:30 a. m. with Census Bureau meeting the Dawn Wanders. At 11 a. m. Civil Service will play the Veterans' Bureau and at 12:30 p. m. Procurement plays the Hot Shoppe squad.

In the opening games last Sunday Procurement Division and Dawn Wanders played to a scoreless tie while Census Bureau eked out a last-minute 6 to 0 score over Civil Service. The Recreation Department is conducting its first touch football this season.

Gonzaga Puts End To Tide Streak, 6-0

Winner of Three Straight, Eastern Bows as Healy Hurls To Score in Opening Period

A highly-favored Eastern High eleven, victor in three straight games, was upset yesterday by Gonzaga, 6-0, as the Purple scored in the first period and clung to its lead with the tenacity of an octupus throughout the game at Eastern Stadium.

Two long passes accounted for the only goal, both from the capable arm of "Muffins" Healy, Purple veteran. With the game only a few minutes old, Healy hurled a 20-yard strike to Joe Mullin and the latter reached the 20-yard stripe before going down. Again Healy tossed, this time to long Bob O'Donnell on the 7, and it was merely a matter of falling over the line for O'Donnell. A placement try by Bob Mulvihill was wide.

Eastern Threatens

In the second quarter, Eastern came back with a torrid threat of its own, but Gonzaga's line held at the crucial moments. In four first downs the Tide swept from its own 20 to Gonzaga's 15, Eddie Teague, Bernie Adams and Neil Craig doing the carrying. A Craig-to-Kennedy pass reached the four, and after two more plunges Eastern found itself on its foe's 6-inch line. That was the extent of the advance, however, and Elmer Raba kicked out of danger.

Gonzaga, despite its victory, was the victim of penalties totalling 130 yards. One siege of penalties, including half the distance to the goal—30 yards—for unneccesary roughness and a 15-yard setback for arguing with officials, set the Purple back on its own eight, but still Eastern was unable to push over into scoring territory.

Last Desperate Thurst

Making one last desperate effort to score, Eastern's Teague and Adams reached the Purple 3-yard line in the final period but their downs gave out at that point.

In first downs Eastern had an 8-6 edge, but the teams were practically even in the aerial department. Each completed three passes, Gonzaga attempting six and Eastern 5.

W. Maryland And Bucknell Play 0-0 Tie

Both Muff Chances To Score; Bisons Make 17 First Downs

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Oct. 18.—Displaying a powerful offensive, but lacking a final scoring punch, Bucknell University was held to a 0-0 tie by Western Maryland at Baltimore Stadium tonight.

The Bisons were considerably superior in ground gaining, making 17 first downs to 6 for Western Maryland, and they smashed to the Terror 8-yard line in the final period, only to lose the ball on a third-down fumble.

Western Maryland also had its scoring chance, late in the third quarter, when a power drive placed the ball on Bucknell's 5 for a first down. The Bison line then dug in and forced surrender of the ball on downs.

Bucknell threatened in the first period, driving 50 yards to Western Maryland's 28, where the Terrors held.

After the Bisons were stopped on the Maryland 13 and again on the 22 in the second quarter, the Terrors opened their first offensive thrust and crossed midfield for the first time, but the attack bogged down.

Muhlenberg Drops Star Halfback

Allentown, Pa., Oct. 18 (AP).—Dismissal of James (Cowboy) Franklin, star halfback, from the Muhlenberg College football team for disciplinary reasons was announced today by Heach Coach Alvin Julian.

Franklin, a native of Sapulpa, Okla., who was playing his third year of varsity football, has left college and is now employed at the Bethlehen Steel Corporation in Bethlehem, Julian said.

Riders Triumph Over St. John's, 13-12

Roosevelt Stages Late Drive to Win

Rough Riders Score Touchdowns, Extra Point in Final Period of Game

The most amazing comeback in schoolboy football circles this season gave Roosevelt High's eleven a 13-12 victory over St. John's yesterday at the Upshur Street stadium.

Beaten in their first three starts by scores ranging from 33-7 to 7-0, the Rough Riders rang up two touchdowns and an extra point in the final period for their initial triumph.

Chubby Les Wicklein, pile-driving back, was the individual star of the game, scoring both the tying touchdowns. The point that made the difference between victory and a tie, however, was credited to 200-pound Marvin Kogod, a tackle who pulled out of the line to pinckick an extra point.

After the Johnnies had registered a 6-pointer in the opening period, it appeared that the Riders were headed for their fourth straight setback. Dick Hathaway turned the trick then when he took a pass from Buddy Speiss on the Roosevelt 35 and crossed the line.

Rider hopes sagged even more early in the final quarter when Steve Burns laid a shovel pass in Speiss' arms on the 18-yard stripe and the latter scored, following a sustained Johnnie drive of 60 yards.

But backed bounced Roosevelt. It scored its first touchdown with a straight pass taken by Wicklein. Kogod made the count, 12-7. The Riders' second score came on a razzle-dazzle forward lateral, with Bob Stein on the throwing end and Dick Goodman on the receiving end, from the Johnnie 40. When Goodman was almost to be tackled, he lateralled to Wicklein, who went unhindered to the goal.

Mrs. Meckley Wins Low Gross Golf Honors

Mrs. Betty Meckley, with a one-under-men par 36 for her incoming nine, yesterday posted an 81 for low gross honors in the National Broadcasting golf tournament at Army and Navy.

Mrs. Meckley, deducting a handicap of 2 from her round of 81, also tied with two other women for the low net prize. The other two in the deadlock were Mrs. M. J. Barroll, with 89-10—79, and Mrs. E. H. Henderson, with 94-15—79. Since Mrs. Meckley chose to accept the prize for low gross, Mrs. Barroll and Mrs. Henderson will play off for a low net at 10 o'clock this morning at Army and Navy.

Tied for second low net were Mrs. W. M. Moses, 92-12—80, and Miss Jerry Weible, 97-17—80. Third low net was a tie between Mrs. E. Hall, 96-13—83, and Mrs. H. Smith, 95-12—83. Fourth low net went to Mrs. A. McEntee, with 95-11—84, and fifth low net was a four-way deadlock among Mrs. K. J. Beach, 97-12—85; Mrs. Leo Walper, 89-4—85; Mrs. Frank Giles, 91-6—85, and Mrs. K. McClellan, 100-15—85.

Mt. St. Mary's Frosh Beaten By Bullis, 27-6

Young Mountaineers Outclassed by Prep Team at Frederick

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., Oct. 18.—Mount St. Mary's College freshmen were outclassed by a heavier and more experienced Bullis Prep eleven from Silver Spring, Md., today and bowed, 27-6. The visitors tallied in every quarter, with Hume and Dove scoring in the first quarter to clinch matters.

An automatic safety gave Bullis two more points in the second quarter when Brogan was tackled behind his goal line, while passes to Metzler and Hill accounted for touchdowns in the last half.

The young Mountaineers, who were completely stymied by the strong Bullis line, managed to avoid a shutout in the waning minutes when Bradie broke loose for a 60-yard touchdown dash.

Bullis presented two powerful tackles in Drum and Dobbs, who repeatedly smeared Mountaineer plays before they could get started.

9 Freshmen to Start for Eagles Today Against Johns Hopkins

American U. Relies on Frosh Material in Attempt to Wrest Victory From Rivals at Baltimore

American University, seeking its second victory over Johns Hopkins since their rivalry began in 1926, will start nine freshmen and perhaps eight boys from the District and its environs in today's game at Baltimore.

Freshmen in the Eagles' lineup which hopes to duplicate the victory the 1936 A. U. eleven scored over Hopkins will be Bart Fugiar, Wilson High, and Mac Potter, of Pennsylvania, at ends; Bob Kelley, Washington-Lee High, and Bob Lanzilotti, Central, at guards; "Wee Willie" Payne, All-Virginia State from George Washington High, or Jack Cornwall, converted Wilson fullback, at center; Bill Garland, Wilson, at quarterback; Tommy Simpson and Homer Sprinkle, both of Washington-Lee, at halfbacks, and Jim Shaw, Gonzaga, at fullback.

Only upperclassmen in the starting American line-up will be Ken Fox at left tackle, and Cal (Bing) Byham at right tackle. Byham is a converted end.

Al Houghton Wins Sweeps At Beaver Dam

Al Houghton, host pro, won the sweepstakes at the Beaver Dam's pro-am tournament yesterday with a 37-38—75. George Diffenbaugh, Kenwood, and Wiffy Cox, Congressional, were tied for second with 76 and Mel Shorey, Indian Spring, and Cliff Spencer, East Potomac, deadlocked for third with 78's.

Houghton and Volney Burnett, Beaver Dam, tied with Tommy Doerer and Leland Abrams, both of Rock Creek, in the pro-am best-ball with 70's.

In the amateur sweepstakes Burnett took low gross with 40-36—76. Abrams posted a 40-40—80, minus 8 handicap for a 72 low net. Ed Ault, Indian Spring, and Jesse Baggett, Beaver Dam, were next, both carding 78 low net.

CONGRESSIONAL

Mrs. P. J. Winkler took the ladies' match play against par tourney at Congressional yesterday with a 7 down to par. Three were tied at 8 down to par, Mrs. G. F. Buskie, Mrs. G. Jani and Mrs. F. E. Berquist. Mrs. Buskie won in the draw for second.

Low-putt honors went to Mrs. C. E. Slawson with 33 putts.

Wiley further compensated for his clumsiness soon after by winding up the evening's further scoring on a 28-yard aerial from Falcone after Benny Bulvin's recovery of a V. P. I. fumble on the kickoff following the sixth touchdown. This pair also made the conversion on another pass.

80-Yard Run For Score Nets Detroit Victory

Ghesquiere's Marker In Third Quarter Defeats Jaspers, 6-0

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 18.—Al Ghesquiere's 80-yard touchdown run from scrimmage in the third quarter gave Detroit University's Titans a 6-to-0 victory over Manhattan tonight before a slim crowd in the Polo Grounds.

After Manhattan had fought the 1-to-3 favorites to a standstill for two periods, and pooh-poohed Ghesquiere's passing reputation, Al showed he's a considerably better runner than a pitcher by galloping to the only score for 11,500 well-chilled spectators.

This bit of footwork kept the Titans in the undefeated, untied lists for the year after four games, but while Ghesquiere's run was a "honey," the victory was somewhat hollow over a team that the Detroit fellows were supposed to run right out of the ball park.

Up to the time Al went to town, Manhattan had stolen the show. Then, with Detroit backed up deep in its own territory by a kick Ted Mazur booted out of bounds on the 7—it was one of several such he got off during the evening—everything was changed in a hurry.

Two plays brought the ball to the Detroit 20. Then, on a spinner, Chesquiere squeezed through the line, veered to the south sideline, got past the safety men and outran them all the way home.

Afterward, Detroit's real passing threat was revealed in Paul McLaughlin, who spear-headed a fourth-quarter drive which Manhattan stopped on its 2-foot line.

In the closing moments, Johnny Supulski's desperation passes for Manhattan drove the Jaspers from the Detroit 49 to the 6 before the Titan line pulled itself together and put the crusher on to save the victory.

Landon Beaten By St. Paul's

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Oct. 18.—St. Paul's School's crushing attack, which has amassed 79 points in its first three games, continued to roll along as the Crusaders smothered Landon School, of Washington, 39 to 12, today.

The visitors gave the Crusaders a real run for their money in the first half. St. Paul's recovered a fumble in the first quarter and took the ball over in two plays, Andy Anderson scoring on a flank play. Sager, the visitors' ace, tossed a 35-yard pass to Baker to down the ball on St. Paul's 10. Three plays later, Sager circled end to score.

John Robertson scored in the second quarter on a 35-yard end run. But just before the half ended Sager sliced off tackle, cut back and ran 75 yards to tally. The Crusaders held a 2-point margin after two conversions.

One minute after the second half began Austin intercepted a pass and raced 40 yards to count again for St. Paul's. Robertson tossed a pass to Ed McFeely for a 40-yard touchdown play a few minutes later. St. Paul's again drove up the field to score before the session closed, Dick Russell passing to Ray Greene for the touchdown.

Russell knifed off tackle and ran, behind good blocking, 35 yards to score in the final period.

Navy, Shooting For 4 in Row, Meets Drake

Coach Larson Expects Tough Game and Will Start Ten Regulars

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Oct. 18.—A confident but cautious Navy eleven, conquerors of Princeton, entertains Drake University tomorrow in the last game this season in Thompson Stadium.

A capacity crowd of 20,000, Academy officials estimated, will see Navy attempt to stretch its winning streak to four games.

Swede Larson, Middie coach, visualizes a hard battle and will start all of his regulars except Joe Sliwka, veteran guard, who suffered a twisted arm in the Tiger contest. Ed Svendson will replace him.

Although the undefeated Sailors are favored to whip the Bulldogs, sufferers of one setback this season, Larson said:

"Navy tomorrow will face the best-balanced attack we have encountered to date. I only hope my boys are keyed up to the tough battle they have before them."

Walter O'Connor, left half, and Quarterback Moore are the Bulldogs' jackrabbits, both fast and smart ball players. They pass and run well and O'Connor has the reputation of being an excellent quick-kicker.

Bill Busik and Howie Clark, his understudy, are the Tars' flashy backs. Johnny Harrell, quarterback, is the key interference for the sprinters and for piledriving Cliff Lenz and Alan Cameron.

The Middies participated in a light workout today, including signal practice. Twenty-eight Drake players, who arrived this morning, held a light drill in Thompson Stadium.

Solomon, also of Philadelphia, Goren's partner, made the first try for it, bidding two no trump on the queen and one spade. It was not a stopper but he hoped if Goren had an honor or spade length to bolster it, he would carry on.

He was not disappointed. Goren, with jack, nine, small, sensed the situation immediately. Other pairs tried for five daimonds and were set one and two tricks. Solomon succeeded in taking 11 tricks against a spade opening. He won a spade, three hearts, three diamonds and four club tricks.

Roosevelt Signs Measure for Debt Relief of Draftees

By the United Press

President Roosevelt yesterday signed legislation granting draftees relief from debt payments and other civil obligations while they are in training.

The measure provides that the courts may suspend the operation of contracts, leases and other civil obligations of draftees who are unable to continue payments out of their service pay ($21 a month for the first four months and $30 a month for the remaining eight months.)

Eviction from dwellings rented by draftees will not be permitted where the rent is $80 a month or less. Installment-purchased goods may not be repossessed during the period of military service unless the trainee agrees to such action. Mortgages may not be foreclosed while the trainee is in service. Life insurance policies up to $5,000 will be kept in force by the Veterans' Administration. Tax sales of his property could not be held until after the man has completed his service.

D. C. Pilot 'Chutes To Safety as Army Plane Crashes

Lieut. R. B. Hubbell, Air Corps Reserve, of 3002 Rodman Street Northwest, leaped to safety from a 10-year-old Army plane yesterday before it crashed on a mountainside 25 miles west of Elkins, W. Va.

Seen taking to his parachute, a searching party was formed which pushed to the scene and brought him out to Elkins. He was uninjured and declined to comment on the probable cause of the crash until he had submitted his report at Bolling Field, where he is stationed. He took off from Cincinnati for Bolling at 3:08 p. m. and crashed at 4:30 p. m., according to a Civil Aeronautics Authority airways communications operator at Elkins.

Lieut. Hubbell was flying an A-17 attack airplane built 10 years ago and since abandoned by the Air Corps as a tactical type.

Drive Against Fake Charities Planned in D.C.

Civic Leaders to Ask Legislation Curbing Fraudulent Activities

Groundwork for a concerted campaign to rid Washington of "charity" rackets was laid yesterday at a meeting of civic leaders.

Called together by Mrs. Pearl Klein, chairman of the Council of Social Agencies legislation committee, the group organized itself into a special committee which will fight to protect the donor, the receiver of relief and legitimate charitable organizations from questionable and fraudulent solicitation agencies.

Mrs. Klein, who presided over the meeting, held at the Y. W. C. A., was elected chairman of the committee and Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary of the Council of Social Agencies, secretary.

The group agreed unanimously to press for Congressional legislation or municipal regulation, whichever is most feasible and appropriate, to curb the chiseling, misrepresenting type of funds seeker.

Speakers pointed out that stories published in recent months by newspapers, including The Post, exposing the problem, have helped to a great degree to educate the public but statutory restrictions are still necessary to cope with it.

Reviewing past efforts to effect reforms, Mrs. Klein said Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen heartily agreed last year that regulatory action was necessary but, nevertheless, a remedial bill subsequently drafted by the Corporation Counsel has never been forwarded to Congress by the Commissioners.

The Rev. John Mixon, of the Washington Federation of Churches, described tactics of some telephone solicitors. He recalled that last year, following a statement by him warning the public to investigate before they contribute, he received a telephone threat against his person.

Claude Woodward, director of the Better Business Bureau, recommended the drafting and enforcement of a law or regulation that will end practices now allowed to flourish, which result in Washington public's being bilked of thousands of dollars annually.

Edward Shaw, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, pledged the support of his organization in the clean-up crusade. Thomas Pace Veterans of Foreign Wars legislative officer, urged that the fight be directed toward obtaining a law which is the simplest aid most enforceable.

Three subcommittees were formed and the following appointments made by Mrs. Klein:

Steering committee—Claude Woodward, chairman; the Rev. Mr. Mixon, Edward Shaw and Mrs. Henry P. Chandler, League of Women Voters.

Publicity committee — William Press, Washington Board of Trade, chairman; Mrs. Sally Muchmore, Better Business Bureau; A. F. Jones, The Washington Post, and James Free, the Evening Star.

Rothschild, Lyon and Mrs. Chandler pointed out that they will serve in their personal capacities, rather than as official representatives of their organizations.

Giant Bombs Blast London, Nazis Claim

Mass Raids Resumed; Berlin Also Reports Channel Naval Victory

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Saturday Oct. 19.—Large-scale attacks on London and other industrial centers in England were resumed during the night, informed German sources reported early today.

Since early last night German bombing squadrons have been taking off for England "in uninterrupted succession," these informants said, "to continue their work of destruction."

[London reports said that heavy antiaircraft fire had "taken the steam" out of the raids of last night and early today and that the "all clear" signal had sounded in the British capital several hours before dawn, but, after a lull, another alarm was sounded at daybreak.]

From Thursday to last night, they asserted, several hundred thousand pounds of explosives were hurled on London alone. Included in the bomb shower was reported to be a great number of huge bombs hitherto used only in rare instances.

Naval Victory Claimed

German destroyers, sweeping into the Atlantic, attacked and chased a British cruiser and destroyer formation at "the exit of the Bristol Channel," the high command declared yesterday.

The communique reporting the clash, in which a Nazi torpedo was said to have hit a British warship, also described a fierce flurry of sea and air action in which warships, submarines, speedboats, airplanes and coastal artillery exchanged blows in wintry weather.

Authoritative German sources called the attack by German destroyers the first naval engagement of the war in the North Atlantic and said it was "extremely noteworthy."

It showed German naval forces no longer are restricted to the North Sea, they said, but are in position, by conquest of the French, Netherlands and Belgian coasts, to challenge the British navy on the high seas and push ever closer the encirclement of Britain.

British Version Differs

[The British admiralty said four German destroyers fled "precipitately" back to Brest when encountered by a British naval force 100 miles southwest of Lands End, and that no damage was suffered by the British in the long-range encounter. Informed British said the encounter was far from the Bristol Channel.]

Buses to Serve Fort Totten Area In Rush Hours

Bus service for several hundred families in the Fort Totten Park area will begin October 27, by order of the District Commissioners and Public Utilities Commission.

The joint board action extended the terminal of the Rock Creek Church Cemetery bus line from Webster Street and Rock Creek Church Road Northwest to Hawaii Avenue and Allison Street Northeast. Only during the rush-hour service will the Webster Street terminal be used by the transit company buses.

Setting of the date for the new service yesterday terminated a campaign by the Hampshire Heights Citizens Association for the extension of the bus line.

Dr. W. A. Ganfield, Educator, Dies at 67

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—Dr. William A. Ganfield, 67, retired president of Carroll College at Waukesha, Wis., and a prominent figure in Wisconsin Republican circles, died today. He retired in 1939.

In 1922, he was the Republican candidate for United States Senator from Wisconsin, but was defeated by the late Robert M. La Follette. He was a member of the Republican National Advisory Committee headed by the late Dr. Glenn Frank.

Bethlehem Steel's Labor Policy Hit

By Louis Stark

Copyright by New York Times

A petition of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee charging the Bethlehem Steel Corporation with disobeying Federal labor statutes and demanding that Government contracts be withheld from companies failing to comply with the orders of Federal administrative bodies, was presented to the labor advisory committee of the National Defense Commission yesterday.

Sidney Hillman, labor member of the Defense Commission, to whom the petition was handed by Van A. Bittner, regional director of the S. W. O. C., acting for Philip Murray, S. W. O. C. chairman, asked for further time to study the document. It was agreed that the advisory group's standing committee would study the petition and make a report at the next meeting of the committee in two weeks.

The demand made by the steel union had the effect of placing Mr. Hillman "on the spot" with labor and more particularly the C. I. O., which has been pressing for drastic action by the Government against violators of labor statutes.

Hillman told reporters that meetings have already been held by members of his staff with Bethlehem personnel and that these meetings would continue in the hope of settling the union's controversy with the company.

Hillman is now expected by the S. W. O. C. to impress on the Defense Commission the justice of its cause and to demand action. If he succeeds in working out the problem by settling the Bethlehem case he will still be expected by labor to insist that all contractors be barred from Government contracts if they violate orders of Federal agencies. Apparently all the members of Hillman's labor committee, whether A. F. of L. or C. I. O. or railroad unions, are united in this demand.

The petition demanded that the labor policy proposed by the S. W. O. C. and which had been adopted by the Defense Commission until the recent public clamor had caused Government officials to explain it away, be embodied in an executive order signed by President Roosevelt.

A similar demand has been made frequently in the last year or two by John L. Lewis, chairman of the C. I. O. But President Roosevelt has replied that such a proposal was a legal matter.

D. C. Picked for Parley

The Patriotic Order of Americans, which recently held its annual convention in New York City, will hold the 1941 reunion in Washington during the month of October, it was announced yesterday. The last convention held in the District was in 1928.

Rules to Speed Counter Trade Are Prepared

Set of Standards Drafted at 3-day Conference Here

Traffic rules to speed up and simplify trading and delivery of securities in the over-the-counter market are expected to be adopted soon on a Nation-wide basis.

Completing a three-day session here this week, the uniform practice committee of the National Association of Securities Dealers approved a comprehensive set of standards for trade practices. The revised rules are to be acted on by the association's board of governors which is expected to adopt them in the near future.

These standards are all technical in nature and will vary somewhat for different sections of the country, but their aim is to make uniform the procedure regarding delivery of securities for cash, regular way, delayed delivery, sellers' or buyers' option, etc., and to spell out the method of handling when-issued transactions.

Dealers in Washington expressed the belief yesterday that such simplification and uniformity would tend to cut down misunderstandings and delays and therefore make for more efficient and less expensive trading.

Nolan Heads I. B. A. Group

James Parker Nolan, of the Washington house of Folger, Nolan & Co., Inc., yesterday was installed as chairman of the southeastern group of the Investment Bankers Association. The induction took place at the annual meeting of the group in Baltimore.

Others elected at the meeting were J. Elliott Irvine, of Mead, Irvine & Co., Baltimore, and Edward C. Anderson, of Scott & Stringfellow, Richmond, Va., as vice chairmen; William W. Mackall, of W. W. Mackall & Co., Washington, D. C., as secretary-treasurer; Alexander Brown Griswold, Alexander Brown & Sons, Baltimore, to the executive committee to serve for a three-year period, and Robert B. Hobbs, W. W. Lanahan & Co., Baltimore, a member of the national board of governors, to serve as ex-officio member for one year.

The election followed report of a nominating committee of which Y. E. Booker, of Y. E. Booker & Co., Washington, served as chairman.

Named to Bank Board

Vincent C. Burke, postmaster of the District of Columbia, has been appointed a member of the advisory board of the H Street Branch of the Bank of Commerce & Savings, according to an announcement by Thomas J. Groom, president. A. E. Giegengack, public printer of the United States, is chairman of the advisory board and the other members are William M. Mooney, Leo A. Rover, A. S. Gatley and Francis E. Robey.

Dulin Has Exchange Seat

James C. Dulin, jr., former treasurer of the American Security & Trust Co., and now a practicing attorney, has been elected to membership in the Washington Stock Exchange.

Cotton Futures

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Trade and mill demand for cotton futures outweighed hedge pressure today and the market advanced 2 to 3 points.

Dealings started in the October, 1941, contract, which was subject to active selling and closed at a wide discount under July. October was priced at 8.80 cents early but soon dropped 50 cents a bale. Brokers pointed out that the month lacked the sustaining influence of the present Government loan.

Southeastern advices indicated 25 per cent of ginnings in that area were headed for the Government loan. Mills filled their needs in the country at prices 25 to 40 points above loan rates.

Worth Street reported moderate business at recently established high levels. The week's sales were estimated at 200 to 250 per cent of current output.

Exports Thursday, 31,632 bales; season so far, 242,615. Port receipts, 44,024. Port stocks, 2,925,680.

Washington Area Store Sales Jump 11% in Week

By the Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that department store sales throughout the Nation during the week ended October 12 were 3 per cent higher than in the corresponding week last year. The Richmond district, including Washington, showed a sharp increase of 11 per cent.

For the week ended October 5, sales were 1 per cent above the corresponding 1939 week, while for the four weeks ending October 12 sales were 3 per cent higher than in the similar period a year ago.

These increases were reported by Federal Reserve districts:

Philadelphia, 3 per cent; Atlanta, 2; St. Louis, 11; Kansas City, 4; San Francisco, 2. Chicago reported a decrease of 1 per cent, and Dallas, Tex., a decrease of 9 per cent. Boston, New York and Cleveland reported no change.

Paris Bourse Reopens For Limited Trading

Paris (Delayed), Oct. 14 via Berlin (AP).—The Paris Bourse reopened for the second time since the German occupation today for strictly limited trading in government bonds.

Only professional traders were admitted by card, and Jewish dealers were excluded from the floor. Financial sources said very little trading actually was done on the first day.

New Plane Firm Has $24,000,000 Backlog

Hawthorne, Calif., Oct. 18 (AP).—Northrop Aircraft, Inc., which a year ago had its office in an old hotel, now has a $24,000,000 backlog and a new factory which is to be enlarged 150 per cent, President La Motte T. Cohu told directors at their first annual meeting.

Cohu said financing of enlarging the seven-months-old plant would be handled entirely by the company "which has ample funds to carry this project through." He estimated the cost at $1,000,000.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—Afflicted with a "what's the use" attitude today, the wheat market followed the path of least resistance and declined moderately.

Taking of small profits more than offset the influence of a continued good shipping demand and prices drifted slowly downward on a weak and easy market. The reaction, though, was rather expected in view of the recent creeping advance which had raised prices to the season's high marks.

Wheat closed ⅛@⅜ cent below yesterday's final quotations. December, 85¾@86⅛; May, 84¾@84⅝; corn, ⅛@⅜ down; December, 60⅝@60¾; May, 61⅜; oats, ⅛@⅜ off, and lard, 2@7 cents down.

A brisk shipping demand in the cash markets was reported with 190,000 bushels sold. This was much less than the 362,000 bushels sold yesterday, but heavy enough to surpass most daily sales in recent months.

Corn fluctuated within a moderate and steady to easier price range. The volume of trade was light, notwithstanding a good shipping demand with 175,000 bushels sold. Cash interests did not support the market.

Oats were dull and easy. Rye was slow. Lard suffered moderate losses with grains and on scattered liquidation, despite hog market strength.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Even though popular weaves sold sparingly at new advanced prices, a continued brisk flow of business into the cotton goods market was reported today. Predictions by the trade placed sales for the week between 300 and 350 per cent of production.

Woolen goods traders, in view of added Army commitments, found the problem of delivery on civilian orders increasingly difficult. Aggregate business in rayon goods continued subseasonal, as actual sales were light. Combination yarns commanded some interested. Silk goods again were quiet at unchanged prices.

Sales were reported on the basis of the following quotations for immediate delivery:

Boston, Oct. 18 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agri.).—Spot good French combing length fine original territory wools were fairly active today at 1.03 to 1.06, scoured basis. Demand for graded territory wools was rather keen at the auctions on Thursday. Good French combing fine wools brought 1.02 to 1.05, scoured basis, delivered East, while some lots carrying a good percentage of staple combing length brought prices ranging 1.06 to 1.09, scoured basis. Average to good half blood wools brought 66 cents to 1.00, scoured basis. Three-eighths blood brought 83 to 86 cents, scoured basis, and one-quarter bloods sold at 78 to 82 cents, scoured basis, delivered East.

Moderate Rise In Leaf Prices Seen in 1941

U. S. Bureau Predicts Continued Increase In Domestic Use

By the Associated Press

The Agriculture Department predicted yesterday that the tobacco situation during 1941 would continue to be marked by existing trends—increases in domestic use and probable further declines in exports.

With Government programs continued and an improved stock situation for some types, the Department said, prices next year should show further small increases, barring the closing of some of the limited export outlets still available.

The situation at present "continues to be greatly influenced by the loss of continental European markets and the low level of British imports," the report said.

"Non-export types are in a stronger position than the export, production being more closely in line with prospective disappearance. The market situation of flue-cured tobacco has been improved by the imposition of marketing quotas resulting in smaller production, and by Commodity Credit Corporation purchases for British account. Since domestic demand continues to be fairly strong for most types, the average price for all types combined will be somewhat higher for the 1940 crop than the 1939 average of 15.4 cents."

Pontiac Reports Jump in Sales

Detroit, Oct. 18 (AP).—Pontiac division of General Motors Corporation reported today that its retail sales of new automobiles during the first 10 days of October numbered 8,243. This was an increase of 49.7 per cent over sales of the final ten days of September.

The company reported unfilled orders on hand as of October 10 were up 2,365 over the preceding ten day period. At the end of September these orders were reported at 18,635.

Kroger Boosts Dividend

Cincinnati, Oct. 18 (AP).—A dividend of 60 cents a common share on stock of the Kroger Grocery & Baking Co., was authorized by directors today. It will be payable December 2 to stock of record November 8 and was authorized in lieu of the regular quarterly 50 cent payment.

Last-Minute Rally Overcomes Profit Taking, Stocks Score Fourth Consecutive Advance

New York, Oct. 18.—The stock market made it four straight on the rising side today when buying in the final hour slightly more than offset an early profit taking stumble. A fair-sized volume of offerings unsettled prices for steels and other recent industrial climbers at the start. Dealings then slowed and quickened again on the last-minute recovery shift. At the close extreme losses running to a point or so were substantially reduced or replaced with modest advances.

Rails edged forward along with farm implements, mail orders, amusements and scattered aircrafts.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up .1 of a point at 44.8, sustaining the latest upturn which got under way October 15. Transfers totaled 590,280 shares against 648,900 the day before.

Customary selling preceding a week-end was in evidence in the forenoon. Some offerings of securities from British and French sources also was reported. The quick slackening of activity on the retreat, however, seemingly inspired a little short covering here and there and brought in modest investment nibbling.

Nothing particularly bearish could be found in domestic business or foreign war news, brokers said, and this, combined with a little more Wall Street political optimism, was thought to have given moderate encouragement to speculative forces.

While the week's retail store spending flattened out due partly to abnormally warm weather in most sections of the country, holders of merchandising shares saw a hopeful note in the fact that aggregates held above the corresponding period last year.

Helpful was another upswing in this week's estimated automotive production to a new peak for 1940 to date, predictions of a continued high steel mill operating rate next week, reports of mounting rail traffic and revenues, talk of a substantial advance in this year's agricultural income and indications defense expenditures in 1941 would exceed the present year by $5,000,000,000.

General Motors and Chrysler were up small fractions. In the advancing column were Great Northern, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake & Ohio, Douglas Aircraft, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Sears Roebuck, Paramount, Loew's and American Telephone.

A bit lower were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, U. S. Rubber, duPont, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Loft, Standard Oil of N. J., Kennecott, American Smelting and Consolidated Edison.

In the curb, where the turnover was around 102,000 shares compared with 132,000 yesterday, moderately higher prices were posted for Bath Iron Works, Gulf Oil, American Gas and Wright Hargreaves.

Selected issues, mainly among the lower priced rails, attracted buyers today, giving the bond market in general something of a lift.

Corporate issues, in the main, advanced only by fractions but the tone throughout was firm with the more active liens experiencing rises.

Transactions were the largest in 10 days, totaling $8,294,500, face value, compared with $5,752,450 yesterday.

Chief interest centered in one issue, City of New York 3s, which slipped ⅜ point at 99⅛ in recorded transfers of 446 bonds.

On the rising side appeared Western Union 5s of '60 at 74; Studebaker 6s at 102¾; Nickel Plate 4½s at 69¼; General Steel Casting 5½s of '49 at 89; Erie 5s of '75 at 16¼; Baltimore & Ohio convertible stamped liens at 15½; Alleghany stamped 5s of '50 at 53½, and International Telephone 5s at 24.

The trend of United States Governments was slightly mixed at the close, 8-32 point higher to 6-32 lower.

Latin American and Japanese bonds gave a rising tinge to the foreign government dollar list. Best gains were recorded for Japan 5½s and 6½s, Uruguay 3⅜s, 4s and 4½s, Sao Paulo stamped 7s, and Brazil 6½s.

Commodity prices jostled unevenly in main futures markets today. Hide prices increased nearly ½ cent a pound at New York in one of the few decisive moves. Lead, zinc, Santos coffee and silk advanced moderately.

Trade buying helped lift cotton 10 to 25 cents a bale.

Copper closed .06 of a cent a pound lower to .08 higher at New York despite a Bureau of Mines estimate supplies for the final quarter this year would outweigh demand by around 81,000 tons.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale staples, based on 1926 as 100, advanced to 74.93 from 74.76 Thursday.

Missouri Pacific Acquisition Approved

By the Associated Press

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized the Missouri Pacific Railroad to acquire control of the Union Terminal Railway Co., and the St. Joseph Belt Railway Co., both of St. Joseph, Mo., through ownership of the capital stock of the two companies.

The Missouri Pacific will pay $400,000, in addition to $3,200,000 already paid, for the stock of the two companies. The agreement called for settlement of all litigation resulting from the Missouri Pacific's agreement to purchase the St. Joseph properties.

McKeesport Tin Plate Plans Name Change

McKeesport, Pa., Oct. 18 (AP).—George F. Doriot, president of McKeesport Tin Plate Corporation which recently sold its nearby Portvue tin plate plant to Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, informed stockholders today directors will recommend a change in the corporate name to the National Can Corporation at the next meeting of stockholders.

The letter said the corporation is now concentrating its activities on can manufacturing at plants in Maspeth, N. Y., Baltimore, Boston and Hamilton, Ohio.

Cost of Living Gains Slightly In September

Increase in Latest Period Interrupts 2-Month Decline

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 19.—The cost of living for wage earners increased .5 of 1 per cent from August to September after declining for two months, the National Industrial Conference Board said today.

Increases in all major items such as food, rent and clothing, caused the rise.

The purchasing value of the dollar, based on 100 cents in 1923, declined to 115.7 cents in September from 116.3 in August. In September, 1929, the purchasing value was 98.9 cents.

The conference board is a research organization supported largely by business concerns.

Egg Prices Spurt

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—Fresh eggs in the local cash market here advanced as much as a full cent to the highest levels since early in February today despite a report that September production was the largest since 1926.

The firmness displayed in the local cash market reversed the recent downward trend in futures trading which depressed values to near five months' lows, prices advanced around ¼ cent, with October at 18.25 cents, November, 18.35 cents, and December, 18.45 cents.

Top quality eggs advanced 1 cent to 24 cents a dozen, while other grades of fresh eggs rose ¼ to ½ cent. Quality eggs were scarce.

The agricultural marketing service reported that September egg production reached a new high for the month since 1926 at 2,504,000,000 eggs, but the heavy production was not unexpected by traders and had little effect on the market.

Bureau Forecasts Dip in Oil Demand

By the Associated Press

The Bureau of Mines yesterday forecast the November daily average market demand for domestic crude oil at 3,570,000 barrels.

This was 10,600 barrels below the estimated October demand and 3 per cent below the actual demand last November.

Officials estimated November exports at 3,900,000 barrels compared with 5,323,000 a year ago. Forecasts from exporters, they said, indicted that foreign shipments of crude oil next month may

SUPERMAN — Unpredictable Lois — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

AFTER MRS. DREXMORE LEAVES THE ROOM, LOIS SITS STARING AT THE DESK DRAWER AS THO' HYPNOTIZED...
OBSERVING LOIS FROM THE ROOF ABOVE WITH THE AID OF HIS X-RAY VISION, SUPERMAN IS PUZZLED BY HER STRANGE BEHAVIOR...
WHAT IS SHE UP TO?
SUPERMAN RECEIVES HIS REPLY NEXT MOMENT, AS LOIS HASTILY APPROACHES THE DESK, SWIFTLY OPENS THE DRAWER, THEN JOTS DOWN THE COMBINATION OF MRS. DREXMORE'S SAFE UPON HER PAD...
QUICKLY—BEFORE SHE RETURNS...!
AS LOIS DRIVES OFF FROM THE MANSION, SUPERMAN FOLLOWS HIGH IN THE SKY....

It's not often that you can hear a full-fledged speleologist on the radio. So this is just a tip that that rare occurrence takes place tonight over WJSV at 7:30 on "Your Government This Week." What! You don't know what a speleologist is? Well, disappointedly, we explain that he's a man who makes a scientific study of caves—scientifically speaking, a cave man, see! He's Dr. Don Bloch, of the Department of the Interior, and he'll tell you a lot you don't know about caves, unless you're a speleologist yourself, of course. Such information may come in mighty handy any day now.

Dr. Bloch is something of an unusual character, even in addition to being a speleologist. In his time he's also been an English professor at Northwestern, a tumbler in a circus, a Y. M. C. A. instructor and a writer for The Post. He's wound up being in a hole most of the time now, but he likes it.

Charles Boyer, the French film star, is to play an unusual role in a program to be heard over WJSV at 10:15 p. m. from Hollywood. Mr. Boyer is to explain to foreign born persons in the United States why it's so very important for this country's defense purposes that all aliens register themselves with alien registration boards. On the broadcast with him will be Martial Poirier, chef at Le Chateau Rouge, the fashionable Hollywood restaurant, an alien. The accent will be on patriotism.

For Maryland and Virginia—Fair and continued cold Saturday and Saturday night; Sunday fair with rising temperature.

Conditions

The Atlantic storm which was some distance off Nantucket Thursday night has advanced rapidly northeastward beyond the field of observation with greatly increased intensity, causing a cyclonic wind circulation over a wide area of the western Atlantic Ocean. A trough is advancing eastward over the upper Mississippi Valley. Pembina, N. Dak., 1,030.5 millibars (30.44 inches). A high-pressure area is advancing eastward over the lake region, Alpena, Mich., 1,034.9 millibars (30.24 inches), with a wedge extending southward and southwestward to southern Texas. Corpus Christi, 1,023.7 millibars (30.23 inches). Pressure continues high over the western Plateau States. Ely, Nev., 1,026.1 millibars (30.30 inches). During the last 24 hours light rain has occurred on the North Pacific Coast and there have been showers in the northern Middle Atlantic States, and showers and snow flurries in New England. The weather has become cooler in the western States with temperatures now considerably below normal, while temperatures have risen rapidly west of the Mississippi River, with unseasonably high readings reported in southern California, the Pacific Northwest, and the Plains States. The maximum at Los Angeles Friday afternoon was 97 degrees, and temperature of 91 was reported at Waynoka, Okla.

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — Object Lesson — BY FRANK MARTINEK

WELL, ADMIRAL, WE FOUND THAT DEVILISH BOX KITE A COMPLETE WRECK BUT I THINK I CAN SHOW YOU ON PAPER HOW ASMARA'S GANG USED IT TO DROP A MINE INTO THE CHANNEL
TO HELP OVERCOME THE WEIGHT OF THE MINE A RUBBER BAG OF HELIUM WAS ATTACHED INSIDE THE KITE
HELIUM BAG
THE MINE ITSELF—HIDDEN INSIDE THE KITE—WAS RELEASED AT THE PROPER INSTANT BY A CORD RUNNING BACK TO THE GROUND
HELIUM BAG

FIENDISH! AND TO THINK THOSE CRIMINALS ARE STILL AT LARGE!

OUR RULER NODS APPROVAL! SEIZE THE SCOUNDREL!
YOU CAN'T DO THIS TO TORRO! THAT MAN IS AN IMPOSTER! OPEN HIS SHIRT! I OVERHEARD THEM SAY HE BEARS A FOREIGN TATTOO MARK ON HIS CHEST!
AWAY TO THE DUNGEON WITH HIM! IT IS YOUR RAJAH'S COMMAND!
YES, NETAH!
NOW IS YOUR CHANCE! GET OUT OF THIS UNHAPPY COUNTRY AT ONCE!
NOT YET! WE'RE GOING TO DELIVER A MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE OF BAKDORE FROM THE PALACE BALCONY AT NOON!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

TRY TO KNIFE ME, WILL YOU, CURLEY?
HERE'S TH' DYNAMITE, BOSS—HEY— WHAT TH—
QUICK, GET THAT CHARGE OR I'LL GIVE YOU TH' GAME
DON'T, JAKE! CRANE'S GONNA KILL US ALONG WITH KING AN' TH' INJUNS, BECAUSE WE KNOW TOO MUCH!
